ADMIRALTY ORDERED USE OF U. S. FLAG

DEATH REVEALS GIRL 'WED' GIRL TO FIGHT WANT

"Husband" Got Man's Wage with Mallet After "Industrial Union."

THEN PHTHISIS CAME.

Three persons yesterday morning crowded the small bedroom in the rear of the second floor of 2146 Ogden avenue. They were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rosenstein and Mrs. Rosenstein's mother.

Ben Rosenstein was dying—of tuberculosis at the age of 26.

"Pauline, I am sorry,"—the effort brought coughs. "Please bury me in my first black suit—you know."

The young wife at the bedside buried her face in a pillow. The mother at the end of the bed prayed aloud in Hebrew. The dying victim continued between short labored breaths:

"We've been happy. I think I have done right. I wish it was true that 'dead men tell no tales.'"

Doctor Reveals Grim Joke.

A few hours later Ben Rosenstein died. The undertaker and the doctor revealed the grimness of the dying joke.

Ben Rosenstein was a woman.

Seven years ago Ida Weinstein landed at Ellis Island, a flaxen haired, full cheeked Jewish immigrant from Russian Poland. She brought with her to Pittsburgh the two children of her brother-in-law, Sam Cohen. Sam had paid her passage.

Ida Weinstein at 19 years old found that the wage for a girl supply worker in a cigar factory was not one that she could live on. In domestic service she was handicapped by her inexperience and the position did not coincide with her ideas of American liberty.

Read Marx and Tolstoi.

She had been reading Marx and Tolstoi. At the Jewish Shelter house in New York she met Pauline Rosenstein, 19 years old, very frail, and out of work. The girls roomed together to cut expense.

In their hall bedroom one night they worked out the new idea. Ida, the strong one, could earn a better wage as a man than the two could as women. Ergo, Ida should be a man. They would get married. An "industrial wedding," they called it.

So they went to Cleveland and took a room as Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cohen.

The girl husband had clipped her hair and dressed herself in a black suit of clothes. She found factory work and was able to obtain a salary much higher than she had received as a woman. The work was harder—but, then, Ida told Pauline she was strong and by extra exertion could work right along with the men in the factory or the workshop.

Bigger Pay Envelope.

The extra exertion was forgotten in the joy of the bigger pay envelope. The girls were able to live in better quarters, eat better food, and go to the theater once a week. Pauline worked at such odd jobs as she could get.

"Ben Rosenstein and his wife" never owed the room rent and their credit was always good at the delicatessen. They always went out together in the morning. The girl husband donned overalls and swung a mallet in a furniture factory. She was in the packing department. Aside from a high pitched voice, which the other workmen joked about, "Ben Rosenstein" was considered a good employé and a willing worker.

In the course of time they moved to Detroit.

Again in the packing department of a furniture factory Ida found wages more satisfactory than those received by the women workers. She was even able at times to leave Pauline at home and adventure into the smoke hazy poolrooms or behind the mystic screens of saloons.

Begins to Lose Weight.

Then the industrial husband began to lose weight. She returned home at night exhausted, and arose in the morning tired. She noticed that the fringe of cropped blonde hair was frequently damp on her forehead. She began to lag at her work. One night she came home with her arms aching and pains running through her back. Her face was damp with perspiration and her hands were cold.

The next morning the boss put another workman in the place of the absent "Ben Rosenstein." The industrial husband had broken down under the burden of a man's work. She lost weight—a severe cold—and she found herself too weak to even search for a new job, much less fill it.

Unable to make out on the "woman" salary of Pauline, who was working in

U. S. to Cut Off Supply of 'Dope' to Many Users

Physicians Expect Many Crimes and Suicides to Follow.

MILLIONS ARE VICTIMS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—The most complete and sudden "cure" of every variety of "dope fiend" ever attempted in this country is about to be administered by the United States government through the enforcement of the new federal law, which was approved by the president last December and will become effective March 1.

That it will ultimately prove efficacious there seems to be no reason to doubt, but the consensus of opinion among medical men is that the immediate results will be unexpected and appalling. They predict an outbreak of crime—of weird, unusual crime—an epidemic of suicide, a wholesale collapse of careers, and a breakdown of prominent and popular citizens at which the country will stand aghast.

Heavy Penalty on Offenders.

Outwardly the new law is merely a matter of taxation and registration. Actually and practically it means that any person who gives away or sells habit forming drugs without the instructions of a physician is liable to five years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,000 for each offense.

Moreover, the instructions must come from a physician authorized by special license to write the prescription, a record of which must be kept for two years subject to examination by the authorities.

While not absolutely prohibiting the sale of habit forming drugs, the risk of selling will be so great and the prices necessarily demanded will be so high as to make the drugs practically unobtainable.

Opium Used by 2,000,000.

Estimates as to the number of opium "addicts" in the United States vary from 1,000,000 to 4,000,000. To place the number at 2,000,000 would be conservative, and this means users of opium and its derivatives only, users of cocaine and similar drugs not being included. It is the effect on these unfortunates which is feared by medical men, especially those whose practice has been to any extent among drug victims.

The law is the belated acquiescence of the United States to the plan it was the first to recommend to other nations through the international opium conference. China went so far as to inflict the death penalty on those of her people who persisted in the use of the drug.

Effect of Opium's Use.

An expert who has made a lifelong study of the effects of habit forming drugs said today:

"In words for the layman's understanding it is something like this: The nerves of the body are each encased in a sheath which normally it exactly fills. The prolonged use of any form of opium causes the nerve to shrink until, to use a popular expression, it 'fairly rattles around' in its envelope. The friction causes acute pain and more and more opium is required to keep this pain deadened.

"A victim suddenly deprived of the drug will go to any length—cheat, lie, rob, even murder, to obtain it. If he fails he will be thrown into convulsions, which will sooner or later cause his death.

Many Users Not Suspected.

"Men in good health often use opium for years without detection. Any expert will tell you that he has treated hundreds of opium users whose best friends never suspected they were addicted to the habit. And they are men in all walks of life—men whose names stand high in the business of their communities, clergymen at the head of large parishes, public men, leaders of reform movements, as well as the most wretched wanderers of the streets whom we regard as the offscouring of humanity."

That is why physicians are worried at the prospect of the enforcement of this rather drastic law.

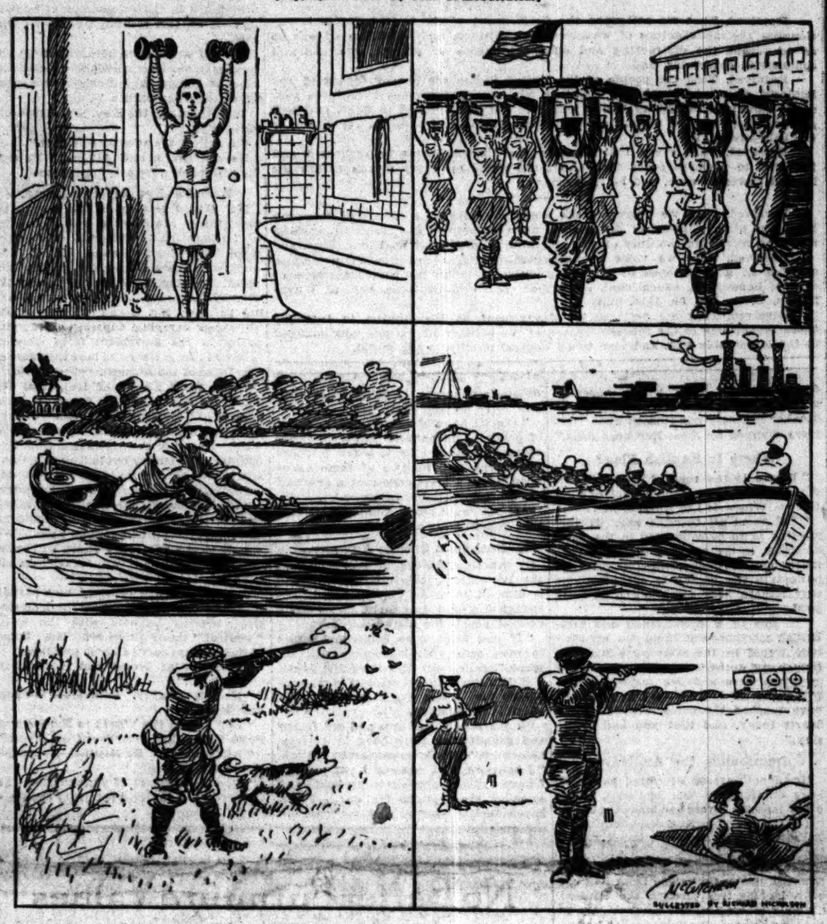

DOCTOR GOES TO PATIENT IN A BREECHES BUOY.

Sick Man Is Captain of Ship Aground Near New York—High Waves Preclude Boat Trip.

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Dr. W. Franklin Wood of Bay Shore made a professional call today without driving or walking. A breeches buoy carried the physician to his patient. The sick man was Capt. McDonald of the British bark Hougomount, which is aground near Fire Island. High waves precluded a trip to the vessel with the doctor in a boat.

WOMEN ABANDON USE OF CIGARETS

Rule Allowing Sex to Smoke at Blackstone Seldom of Use Now.

Have women tired of their cigarets?

Have they discovered, with the "privilege" granted to them, that smoking isn't such a treat after all?

Judging from the results of an experiment at the Blackstone hotel the answer to both questions is, Yes. The Blackstone experiment has been made unostentatiously and without public announcement, which may be the reason, some say, for the rather unexpected development.

Let Women Smoke.

Until a few months ago there was a rule in force at the Michigan avenue hotel prohibiting women patrons from smoking outside of their own apartments or private banquet halls. At one time and another women unaware of the rule produced their cigaret cases in the restaurant and were warned by the maitre d'hotel they would be requested to leave at the first puff.

There were so many complaints thereafter that the management decided sentiment was in favor of smoking by women. Manager Gates called in the maitre d'hotel and told him that in future things would be different.

"If ladies wish to smoke, let them," he said.

Now Hold Match.

Other hotel executives, assistant managers and clerks got the same orders. Waiters who formerly shook their heads and smiled apologetically when asked a certain delicate question began to say:

"Why, certainly, madam! Surely!.."

And then they would stand by with a match.

"It is really surprising," said Assistant Manager Tompkins last night. "Although matters have been so arranged that there is no embarrassment for women smokers in the public rooms, I haven't seen two of them puffing at cigarets in the last couple of weeks. Even at the supper dances from 11 o'clock until 1 the woman who smokes is rare."

DR. ROBERT GOOD ARRESTED AS HE PREPARES TO SAIL

Former Chicago Dentist Taken in New York by Hoyne's Men on Charge of Wife Abandonment.

According to dispatches from New York Dr. Robert Good, a dentist who deserted his wife two years ago at the Blackstone hotel and went to Paris, was arrested on a charge of wife abandonment by detectives from State's Attorney Hoyne's office yesterday as he was leaving the Hotel Biltmore to board a steamer for France.

Dr. Good formerly was a member of the Chicago Athletic, the old Calumet, the South Shore Country, and the Chicago Yacht clubs. He gained notoriety in 1910 when he instituted a suit against Miss Nellie Annheuser of St. Louis, alleging she had failed to pay him for professional services. He caused an attachment to be made on her opera cape and other articles of her wardrobe while she was in Chicago attending the opera.

Good and his first wife were divorced in 1907 and less than a year later he married Mrs. Loretta Campbell of Toronto, Canada, at Crown Point.

Two years ago he went to Paris, where he took up his practice. He returned to the United States, it was said, to get dental supplies for the French army. Mrs. Good read of his visit and obtained the warrant.

60,000 HEAR POPE PRAY FOR PEACE

Bells of 400 Churches Call People to St. Peter's; 22 Cardinals There.

ROME, Feb. 7.—Pope Benedict prayed for peace today and 60,000 worshipers, on their knees in St. Peter's, repeated after him his supplication to the "God of all mercies, king of peace," that the war might be speedily ended. The pontiff stood before the papal altar surrounded by twenty-two cardinals.

It was "Pray for Peace" day in Rome. At 8 o'clock this afternoon all the bells of the 400 churches in the city pealed out, calling the residents to services. Despite the rain thousands poured into St. Peter's.

Great Edifice Thronged.

The great edifice was thronged with worshipers when the pontiff mounted to the papal altar. Standing between the four richly gilded spiral columns of the Bernini canopy, Pope Benedict intoned the prayer that was taken up by the thousands who heard him.

The pope on arriving and departing was given applause. As he was leaving after the ceremony there were many cries of "Long live the pope" and "Give us peace."

Basilica Appears Imposing.

The immense basilica appeared more imposing than on usual occasions, there being no decorations except the numerous candlesticks with their flickering flames on the papal altar under the colossal dome where the pope alone says mass.

Before the altar stood the great faldstool, which is approached by five steps, from which the pope prayed.

Special places had been reserved for the members of the sacred college, the patriarchs, archbishops, bishops, and diplomats, members of the aristocracy and of the papal court and representatives of all the religious institutions.

Burglars Take $1,500 in Loot from Resident of Buena Park —Make Escape.

Mrs. Margaret B. Lehmann reported to the Town Hall police last night that her home at 924 Buena avenue had been broken into Saturday and jewelry and clothing valued at $1,500 stolen. She has missed the following articles: Diamonds valued at $300, a seal coat valued at $150, bird of paradise plume, $100; seal leather suitcase, $75; ninety inch piece of cluny lace, $125; forty-five inch piece of ecru lace, $65; two silk nightgowns, $36; linen tablecloth, $40.

ANTI-BRITISH HISS BRYAN AT PEACE MEETING

ARMS EXPORT DECRIED

When the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of All Souls' church, Gustavus Schran, a celebrated lecturer from Sweden, and Congressman Frank Buchanan, the labor leader, were invited to speak at yesterday's mass meeting in the Coliseum "under auspices of the American Neutrality league, organized to promote peace between the nations," they looked forward to a love feast, devoid of partisanship and thoroughly American in spirit.

Before the meeting closed the Rev. Mr. Jones found himself facing a pro-German uproar. He introduced Mr. Buchanan, a neutral speaker, with the proviso that "he may present himself to you, if he chooses to take his life in his hands."

Lecturer Schran told the audience he had sat "in shame" listening to the inflammatory speeches made. He said he was not in sympathy with the spirit shown and would not have come had he foreseen the character the meeting was going to assume.

Hooted for Defending Bryan.

Mr. Buchanan was met with hoots and jeers when he defended the sincerity of purpose of Secretary of State Bryan, who early in the evening had been bitterly attacked by Jeremiah O'Leary, president of the "American Neutrality League of New York," in a furious tirade against the teaching of "Anglo-Saxonism" in the United States."

In addition to adopting the declaration of principles of neutrality, adopted at the conference of representatives of various organizations in Washington, D. C., Jan. 30, the meeting adopted formal resolutions calling for the enactment of legislation prohibiting the export of arms, ammunition and munitions of war. These resolutions also call for national control of the manufacture of weapons, and for peace and harmony in the promotion of neutrality without the arousing of animosities. The resolutions "deprecate the use of airships as a means of dropping bombs or other missiles of destruction upon unfortified and nonmilitant communities."

Arrival of the Rev. Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones had been appointed chairman of the meeting, but was half an hour late in arriving.

When the venerable clergyman reached the Coliseum he found the sidewalk lined by men selling banners bearing pictures of the German kaiser, the German eagle, and the inscription, "Deutschland ueber Alles."

When the Rev. Mr. Jones made his way into the hall he saw similar German banners depending from the packed galleries, but conspicuous over all were banners of German societies said to number 150, which decorated the space above the speaker's platform. Some of them bore inscriptions referring to the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. American flags were overwhelmingly outnumbered in the general scheme of decoration, which was German.

Orator O'Leary was eliciting frenzied applause by denunciations of England and by attacks on the American press.

Quotes Imaginary Letter.

Mr. O'Leary in his speech quoted an imaginary letter from Secretary Bryan to the English government:

"'My Dear John Bull,' wrote Mr. Bryan, according to the speaker, 'the people of this country and particularly those hyphenated Americans in it have made a great stir, and I am compelled to write you this letter. Some people complain you are standing on their toes. We know you are the champion of the freedom of the sea. I do not want to embarrass you, but will you please tell us when you intend to get off.

"'Give my best regards to Capt. Reginald Owen and tell him to look out for those German forty-two centimeter guns.'

Paraphrases "Cross of Gold."

"Mr. Bryan here in this place I believe once made the statement that the Republican party was trying to crucify the people upon a cross of gold.

"Today he is trying to crucify thirty millions of the fatherland upon a cross of British gold. It is a bastard neutrality.

"Mr. Bryan has stated that this country is neutral. If you people here say that it is not neutral, then Bryan lies.

"The Cologne Gazette has stated that

Russians Pierce Second Defense of Enemy at Warsaw

Begin Flank Move When Center Breaks; Czar and Kaiser Watch.

CHECK ON AUSTRIA

PETROGRAD, Feb. 7.—The stubborn character of the battles developing in the extreme north of East Prussia is attracting the attention of the Russian general staff, which sees there indications that the Germans have withdrawn troops from the Bsura region and massed them in the vicinity of Insterburg, between Gumbinnen and Tilsit.

The operations there are becoming a new factor in the situation, and lead to the belief that the fierce attack on Borjimow and Goumine was more in the nature of a demonstration than a serious effort to break through toward Warsaw.

At Borjimow the Russians appear to be more than holding their own, having pierced the German second line trenches.

Call Situation Satisfactory.

Military observers, reviewing the entire situation, declare it is satisfactory, although they are not of the opinion that the crisis has arrived.

In spite of the activity of the Germans farther north, staff officials still attach the greatest importance to the movement in the Carpathians, where the Russian armies are opposing the Austro-German troops, who are in tremendous force on a line which forms the arc of a circle in the vicinity of Mezo Laborcs, fifty miles southwest of Przemysl.

Farther eastward there appears to be an entire separate army, about ninety miles south of Lemberg, on the Wyszkow-Nadworna line [Austria-Hungary]. The purpose of the latter force appears to be an effort to pierce the Russian line east of Lemberg and menace the forces about Warsaw in the rear.

The Russians are awake to this possibility, however, and recently rushed several corps toward this front.

On practically all the Carpathian front the Russians have succeeded in checking their antagonists, but the Austro-German forces still are undefeated.

Czar and Kaiser at Front.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—With the German and Russian emperors as eyewitnesses the armies of Russia and Germany are still contending for the positions which protect the Polish capital of Warsaw from the invaders.

The Russian emperor has been at Russian headquarters for several days, and the German report announces that the German emperor has joined his generals and has actually visited some of the troops in their trenches.

Russians Get Good Grip.

The Russians, according to Saturday's official statement, had strengthened their positions on the western bank of the Bsura river, which they had crossed near its mouth, and captured another German vantage point. They also captured a long line of German trenches near Borjimow, which has been the center of most desperate fighting.

In East Prussia another big battle is developing, the Germans having sent reinforcements, apparently from their Bsura front, to that region.

In the Carpathians, while their right is advancing, the Russians are only able to report that their left has checked the Austro-German offensive.

With regard to all this fighting the German official report simply says: "No essential events have taken place."

Report Terrific Battles.

VIENNA, Feb. 7 via London, Feb. 8, 1:22 a. m.—The following official statement was issued today:

"The situation in Russian Poland and western Galicia remains unchanged. In the Carpathians heavy battles are proceeding.

"In southern Bukowina our troops are progressing favorably and the Russians are in complete retreat. Twelve hundred prisoners and much war material have been captured. In the afternoon our troops entered Kimpolung and were acclaimed by the population.

"The resignation of the finance minister, Von Bilinski, has been accepted. Former Premier von Kober succeeds to that office."

BURIED BY QUAKE 25 DAYS, BUT IS JUST AS WELL AS EVER

Red Cross Workers Unearth Man at Paterno, Italy, Who Has Lived on Water for Nearly a Month.

ROME, Feb. 7.—Red Cross workers in the earthquake ruins at Paterno yesterday heard faint moans, and on delving into the debris excavated a man named Cairolo, who had been imprisoned there for twenty-five days. The man, who is 28 years old, had had nothing but some water during this time. He was uninjured, and when taken in an automobile to the nearest town was able to alight from the machine without assistance.

BRITISH ACT IS DEFENDED BY OFFICIALS

Statement Says Change of Ensign Is Legal Course in War.

STIR IN WASHINGTON.

War News of Last 24 Hours.

PASSENGERS on Lusitania say American flag was raised on order of British admiralty. Action stirs up Washington.

RUSSIANS pierce Germans' second line trenches before Warsaw; begin flank movement; czar and kaiser at battle front.

OFFICIAL statements show slight gains by Germans and allies at various points on western line.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The use of the American flag by the British steamer Lusitania of the Cunard line in its voyage across the Irish sea has aroused great interest and, although it did not mention this instance specifically, the British foreign office issued a statement tonight dealing with such usage in a general way.

It argues that the only effect in the case of a merchantman flying a neutral flag would be to compel a belligerent ship to investigate the nationality of the vessel and the character of its cargo before capturing it.

It is pointed out in this statement also that by the merchant shipping act of 1894 foreign vessels are permitted to use the British colors for the purpose of escaping capture.

Order from the Admiralty.

From stories told by passengers on the Lusitania it would appear that the captain of the liner deceived his instructions to hoist the Stars and Stripes from the British admiralty. Already he had been warned of the presence in those waters of German submarines.

A Birmingham magistrate, Joseph Sturge, who was returning from a trip to the United States aboard the Lusitania, said that the voyage had been uneventful until the steamer arrived off the Irish coast on Friday morning.

"Then, on an intimation from the admiralty," he said "we hoisted the American flag, which caused some sensation among the passengers. We proceeded under the American colors, but the English flag was rehoisted before we reached the landing stage at Liverpool."

Officials here hold strongly to the view that in the use of a neutral flag British ships, bearing neutral passengers, particularly Americans, are fully justified in taking whatever measures are deemed necessary to save life.

Opposed by Daily Express.

Commenting editorially on the use of a neutral flag by British merchantmen, the Daily Express tomorrow will say that, while such action may be legally consistent, it nevertheless will disturb British public opinion.

"In our case, above all others," it will say, "such tactics will seem inexpedient and even humiliating to the British mind. Since when has the Union Jack become a color to be hauled down timidly or an inadequate protection on all the seas? The whole affair leaves a disagreeable taste in the mouth of England.

"We do not presume to question or criticise the admiralty, but our confidence in the admiralty and the navy is such that we are bound to regret profoundly a resort to a subterfuge which, while it in no way excuses German piracy, may give the enemy and neutral nations an opportunity for the sneer which we are least inclined to tolerate."

Statement by Foreign Office.

The following statement was issued by the foreign office tonight:

"The use of a neutral flag is, within certain limitations, well established in practice as a ruse de guerre. The only effect in the case of a merchantman of wearing a flag other than its national flag is to compel the enemy to follow the ordinary obligations of naval warfare and satisfy himself as to the nationality of the vessel and the character of the cargo by examination before capturing the vessel and taking it into a prize court for adjudication.

"The British government always has considered the use of the British colors by foreign vessels legitimate for the purpose of escaping capture. Such practice not only involves no breach of international law but is specifically recognized by the law of this country in the merchant shipping act of 1894.

Instructions to Consuls.

"In instructions to British consuls in 1914 it is stated: 'A ship is liable to capture if a British character is improperly assumed except for the purpose of escaping capture.'

"As we have in practice not objected to foreign merchant vessels using the British merchant flag as a ruse for the purpose of evading capture at sea, at the hands of a belligerent, so, we should maintain that in the converse case a British merchant vessel committed no breach of international law in assuming neutral colors for a similar purpose if she thought fit.

"By the rules of international law, the customs of war and the dictates of humanity it is obligatory upon a belligerent to ascertain the character of a merchant vessel and cargo before capture. Germany has no right to disregard this obligation.

"To destroy a ship, noncombatant crew, and cargo, as Germany announced the intention of doing, is nothing less than an act of piracy of the high seas."

AFFAIR STIRS WASHINGTON.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—As a result of the excitement stirred in and out of official circles by the Lusitania incident, the United States may take drastic action to prevent the use of the American flag to disguise the nationality of the vessels of belligerent powers.

Discussion of the action of the Cunard line in causing the Lusitania to fly the American flag between Queenstown and Liverpool in order to prevent an attack by German submarines disclosed a pronounced sentiment in favor of a protest by the United States to Great Britain against this practice.

While state department officials were reticent in discussing the matter, it was learned that there is an indisposition on the part of the administration to lodge any formal protest.

The most extreme action now contemplated is an instruction to Ambassador Walter Hines Page to inquire whether the reports of the use of the American flag by the Lusitania are true and whether the British government was in any manner responsible for the ruse.

The instructions may also include an inquiry as to the attitude of Great Britain on the question of the use of the American flag by British vessels to avoid the contingencies of war in the future.

It is apparent that the advisers of the president are divided on the question of dealing with this latest incident of the war affecting the interests of the United States. Some officials believe the administration should take aggressive steps to discourage such misuse of the American flag and to warn foreign nations that it is an offense this government will not tolerate. Others contend that there is no ground in international or American law even for lodging a protest.

Congressmen in Militant Mood.

Among senators and representatives, however, there is a more militant view of the affair. It transpired tonight that a majority of the senate committee on foreign relations favors a protest, if not even more drastic action, and it is probable that the administration will be subjected to pressure from this source to take a firm stand in defense of the dignity of the flag.

Senator Stone, the chairman of the committee, intimate in significant language tonight that a protest should be made to Great Britain at once.

The indications are that there will be a deluge of bills and resolutions in congress evoked by the incident. Several senators are preparing bills proposing to close American ports to steamship companies misusing the American flag.

Warning Issued to Neutrals.

The most serious aspect of the Lusitania incident is its relation to the German decree establishing a war zone, including the British isles and warning all nations of the danger of neutral shipping therein.

German officials here said today the flying of the American flag by the Lusitania substantiates the German charge in this paragraph of the decree:

"Neutrals are therefore warned against further intrusting orews, passengers, and wares to such ships. Their attention is also called to the fact that it is advisable for their ships to avoid entering this area, for even though the German naval forces have instructions to avoid violence to neutral ships in so far as they are recognizable, in view of the misuse of neutral flags ordered by the British government and the contingencies of naval warfare, their becoming victims of torpedoes directed against enemy ships cannot always be averted."

Urge Caution by Germans.

It is contended that if British vessels are to be permitted to fly the American flag the United States cannot demand that German submarines respect all craft carrying the stars and stripes without inquiring into the right to display the emblem. The most that the administration could do under the circumstances would be to warn the German government of the consequences of harming Americans and American property, an intimation that the commander of a submarine would do well before loosing a torpedo to inquire into the registry of the vessel flying the American flag.

There is no United States statute prohibiting the misuse of the American flag by foreign vessels. The state department in the past has ordered its consuls to communicate full information of all such incidents. In 1879 Secretary of State Evarts held that "there is no prohibition of the use of the American flag by a foreign vessel beyond the jurisdiction of the United States or any penalty provided therefor."

Some Hold Consent Needed.

International law authorizes each nation to determine for itself the conditions under which its flag may be bestowed on a foreign vessel. Various authorities hold, however, that the assumption of the flag of a foreign state without its permission is a violation of international law and "as a device both fraudulent and injurious to the honor of the state whose flag is wrongfully used."

The British merchant shipping law holds that a ship owner using the British flag without authority subjects his vessel to forfeiture unless the flag is used "for the purpose of escaping capture by the enemy or by a foreign ship of war in the exercise of some belligerent right."

In 1899 the state department ruled in connection with the Caracas incident that the American "flag should only be shown by citizens" of this country. In 1898 Secretary of State Sherman compelled the disuse by a British line of steamers of the United States union jack as a company flag.

Stand Taken in 1860.

The following definition of the attitude of the United States was made by Secretary of State Cass in 1860 in a note to the minister to England:

"In the dispatch of Lord John Russell I perceive he refers to the American flag as if it were contended that that national ensign afforded protection to the vessel bearing it. I beg to assure his lordship that this country advances no such pretension. The immunity of a vessel on the ocean depends on the national character, to be ascertained, if contested, by its papers, and, if need be, by other circumstances, but not by the flag under which it sails."

Upon the outbreak of war with Chile in 1879 Peru inquired of the United States as to what conditions must be complied with in order that a merchant vessel might be considered as belonging to the United States, and under what conditions the United States flag might be used.

The American legation in Peru sent a note in reply, which was supplemented by a memorandum from the secretary of state, Mr. Evarts, who said that "there is no prohibition of the use of the American flag by foreign vessels beyond the jurisdiction of the United States or any penalty provided therefor."

Interest in German Decree.

In official quarters there was much greater interest manifested in the memorandum of the German admiralty in explanation of the war zone decree published generally today. From this document it was concluded that the new German program is aimed much more at the neutral countries contiguous to Germany than at the United States.

The German intentions are now regarded largely as an attempt to retaliate against Holland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Italy for the agreements they have entered into with the British government for the prohibition of the exportation of contraband of war from their territories into Germany.

There is little doubt that the Germans intended to get supplies through the neutral countries, but British diplomacy, supported by the British fleet, has made this absolutely impossible.

JAPAN ADMIRAL LOOKS TO CHICAGO AS GREATEST CITY.

Baron Shigetoo Dewa, Special Panama Envoy, Says Some Day We'll Lead World.

Baron Shigetoo Dewa, admiral of the Japanese navy and one of the heroes of the Russo-Japanese war, believes Chicago some day will be the greatest city in the world.

He expressed that opinion yesterday after he had spent the day in "seeing" Chicago from Lincoln park to the University of Chicago. He will leave this afternoon for Washington, where he will convey the regards of his government to President Wilson, for the admiral is Japan's special representative to the opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition and the Panama canal.

Admiral Dewa was the guest of S. Kurusu, the Japanese consul general, and his wife at luncheon at the Blackstone.

American neutrality is only a thin curtain behind which zealous, loving service to England conceals itself.

"Every American bullet fired from an American gun by a Frenchman or a Russian into a Teuton heart is a bullet fired into the heart of a Teuton in the United States.

"Is the bullet neutral when it strikes the German soldier who is fighting for liberty and salvation?

"Great Britain never has taken this country seriously. It has been the intention of Great Britain to reconquer this country by force.

"The war of '61 made Great Britain change objects, but did not make her change plans.

"The will of Cecil Rhodes is evidence of the effort to gain British sway in America.

Says British Rule Press.

"Today Andrew Carnegie represents the reincarnation of Cecil Rhodes.

"Pro-British capital is in control of our public press in furtherance of a policy which shall keep everything in this country English.

"America is without a free press. It is controlled by the news agencies of London.

"This country now has no merchant marine. England has destroyed it. German reservists who are anxious to die for their country are anxious to sail, but England dictates who the passengers shall be."

When the speaker mentioned the name of Mr. Bryan he paused, while the hissing proceeded.

"I dare say that a great many of you who are hissing now voted for him for president," he commented.

Decries Passions of Hate.

Horace Brand of the Staats Zeitung, who had been acting as temporary chairman, then introduced the Rev. Mr. Jones, whose snowy beard was quivering with indignation and whose dark eyes were flashing.

"In coming to this meeting I supposed I would meet neither German nor Saxon, American nor Irishman, but one solid body of men earnestly deploring the passions created by national lines," began the Rev. Mr. Jones. "I was asked to come here and preside over a meeting of people with hearts wrung with pity for all, regardless of national designations, who are suffering on the battlefields today.

"No nation on the battlefield can come into court today with clean hands. Let not pot call kettle black today. Let us in humiliation admit that we have been laying sacrifices at the feet of the god of wars.

"If I have a tongue today let me plead for the men in the rifle pits under all flags. Let my tongue cleave to my mouth rather than that I should add a spark to national prejudice. I stand here today to speak of things above the narrow claims of flag and country. I claim membership in the great family of men. It has been well said that patriotism may be the resuk of the work of knaves.

Born of All Races.

"I trace my origin to Wales, a Celtic country which, like the rest of Britain, was born out of the great Teutonic heart of the middle ages and subdued and taught by religion.

"I acknowledge my debt to the Germany of Goethe, of Schiller, and of Kant. By the same token, I acclaim what I owe to the England of Shakspeare. 'I am a Frenchman of the France of Hugo, and I am a Russian of the Russia of Tolstoy.'

Turning dramatically to the relatively few American flags which appeared among the German society emblems, the speaker feelingly commented upon "old glory dimmed by these European flags."

Where Is English Flag?

"Where is the rose of England?" he demanded. "Why is the French flag not there? Where is the Russian flag?

"Put them all there, I say. If this meeting is to be conducted in the spirit of amity, in the spirit of the peace that must come, the peace that will lift all the powers to the highlands of reason, we may remain here a while and do some good.

"If this is a pro-German and anti-British meeting—and, mind you, my attitude would be the same were it a pro-British and anti-German meeting—I have no place here and beg respectfully to withdraw. I believe, however, that I have touched the better chord in your hearts today, and that you had better stay."

Dumfounds the Audience.

Mr. Jones' speech appeared partly to have dumfounded the audience, which a few minutes before had made the building shake in anti-British demonstrations. There was some applause, but it was of the uncertain variety.

Then came Lecturer Schran, who announced he was a Swede from Sweden on a lecture trip through the United States and an absolute neutral. Up to the time he was called on to speak he had been sitting in a front row on the platform, shielding his face with his hat in order to avoid being photographed in a way to identify him with the platform group.

Mr. Schran was cold and determined in his manner.

"Would Not Have Come."

"Had I known what kind of a meeting would be held here today I would not have come," he told the audience. "After hearing two of the speeches made here I have felt ashamed to sit in this peace meeting. I have heard ad nauseum talk of brotherly love and neutrality. These expressions as used are mere words. None of the speakers, with the exception of Dr. Jones, has displayed the spirit of them."

The speaker was interrupted by continued hissing and scattered applause. Numbers of people caused confusion by noisily starting to leave the hall.

"This talk that peace is coming about by putting American interests above all others is nonsense. I did not rise when you voted on your resolution.

"We all know the history of the scrap of paper. International law as it exists today is known only to a few hundred professors, and no two of them agree upon it. We must construct a court of concise international behavior.

"If you want peace, you must see to it that you do not play upon emotions."

Buchanan Speaks Anyway.

By this time the uproar was such that the Rev. Mr. Jones arose, but he found it difficult to make himself heard. Although the hour was early, there was a rush of people for the exits.

"If you want to go home, and refuse to give order, Mr. Buchanan will not speak," called out the Rev. Mr. Jones. "If Mr. Buchanan is willing to take his life in his hands by presenting himself to you, he may do so.

"I am American born, and my father and grandfather were born in America before me," said Congressman Buchanan. "I believe that I can say I am neutral. I have opposed appeals to prejudice and so-called preparations for war. I had hoped such a war as has occurred in Europe would be impossible. But war will be possible until the great class of working people wake up and refuse to furnish weapons.

"My only purpose in coming here is to help point out how we can bring this war to a peaceful termination. I don't believe we can add anything to it by permitting the shipment of arms and ammunition to the war."

Mr. Buchanan said he regretted hearing the speeches attacking the administration.

"Yes, and Mr. Bryan, too," said Mr. Buchanan, oblivious to the growing hisses. "While I may not agree with him, I do believe in his sincerity in his work for peace and I believe he will be able to do some work that will be valuable.

"You are not going to make progress by appealing to prejudice. Do not take up these subjects in that manner.

"Because other people differ with me, I do not charge them with being insincere in the movement."

Jones Dubious About Meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Jones, in dismissing the meeting, expressed himself doubtfully.

"Are we parting with a deeper sympathy for all involved?" he asked. "Have superficial and inconsequential lines of race faded in the common lot of humanity? If so, this meeting has been a success.

"But if we go from here with more bitterness in our hearts and more consciousness of things that divide, our coming here today has been a failure."

To a reporter, the Rev. Mr. Jones said earnestly:

"Dwell on the sweeter side of it."

Horace Brand and Attorney Patrick H. O'Donnell were other speakers.

Brand's Eye on Big Issue.

Mr. Brand introduced his speech by referring to the meeting as a gathering of "Americans." When he reached the word "Americans" some hissing was audible in the audience, but quickly subsided. In referring to the movement covered by the resolutions which were awaiting passage, Mr. Brand said one of the envelopes carrying expressions of sympathy in the movement from foreign lands was from Italy and bore the name of the Duke of the Abruzzi.

"The royal family of Italy and the American colony are in favor of this movement," Mr. Brand asserted. "Today, after two months, the movement is nation wide. Not only does it extend from this country to Germany but to England, Canada, Scotland, Russia, and, I doubt not, to Serbia. It is of cosmopolitan character.

"Thousands of people are being killed by American bullets. There should be fair play for all belligerents alike. We should have a neutrality which will know only Europeans and will treat them all alike."

The meeting was followed by a parade from the Coliseum through the loop district, bearing banners with the word "neutral" many times repeated. Some of the banners carried these protests:

"Freedom at Home and Hospitality Toward All."

"Keep Neutrality. Remember We Are Americans."

"Don't Send the Wheat to Europe and Pay a Higher Price for Your Own Bread."

"All We Ask: Be Neutral—Neutral—Neutral."

"Stop the Export of Ammunition. It Is Increasing the Starvation of the People in Europe."

Resolved, That we, citizens of the United States of North America in massmeeting assembled, hereby declare that it is the imperative duty of the administrative officials, who are the servants of the people of the United States, to refrain from utterances and acts which will bring about a spirit of unrest among the cosmopolitan population of our country, and

Resolved, That every individual in the United States is requested and implored to promote peace throughout the world by every means within the limited power of each, and be it further

Resolved, That we deprecate the use of airships as a means of dropping bombs or other missiles of destruction upon unfortified and nonmilitant communities, menacing the lives of women, children, and other noncombatants, and

BRITISH CONSUL FREED BY TURKS; BOWS TO ITALY

Hodeida Affair, with Threat to Bring New Powers Into War, Reported Closed.

ROME, Feb. 7.—It is announced that the Turkish authorities in Yemen have given complete satisfaction to the Italian government for the invasion of the Italian consulate in Hodeida and the removal of the British consul, who had taken refuge there.

The authorities at Hodeida today saluted the Italian flag on the consulate. The British consul, George Alexander Richardson, was present at the ceremony, but left the city on a British auxiliary cruiser.

Attack British Consulate.

On Dec. 11 the Turkish gendarmes at midnight attacked the British consulate in Hodeida and Consul Richardson fled to the Italian consulate, where he was followed and a demand was made upon the Italian consul, Sig. Cecchi, for his surrender. The demand was made in the name of the governor of Yemen.

When Sig. Cecchi declined to give up Mr. Richardson, one hundred Turkish soldiers with cannon surrounded the consulate and broke down the doors with axes. Soldiers also fired into the building, wounding a servant. Consul Richardson was then surrendered.

Italian Consul Detained.

Sig. Cecchi was not permitted to leave the consulate for several days, according to one version of the affair. It was stated that he was to be treated as a prisoner and tried on a charge of having housed the British vice consul and also with firing on Turkish soldiers. He was finally rescued by the Italian ship Giuliana.

Italy demanded that Mr. Richardson be returned to the Italian consulate and that the Italian flag be saluted. The governor of Yemen dismissed the officials connected with the seizure of the consul, returned Mr. Richardson to the consulate and permitted him to leave the country.

YOUNG MEN'S GOOD MEAL LANDS THEM IN A CELL.

Cafe Manager Refuses to Take Signatures in Lieu of Cash and Has His Patrons Arrested.

A. L. Soule, 20 year old son of William D. Soule of 4650 Clarendon avenue, proprietor of a detective agency at 180 North Clark street, took six guests to dine at the Rome restaurant at 117 North Clark street late Saturday night. When the waiter presented the check young Soule affixed his signature to it in his best handwriting. A. Pellingrini, manager of the restaurant, has no key on his cash register for ringing up signatures, and so he sent the waiter back for $3.70. R. A. Babcock of 622 University avenue added his signature to the check. When the manager protested, the young men produced cards showing they were duly approved advertising solicitors. Cards carried no more weight than signatures. Pellingrini had them arrested. They got bail last night.

FRANCE OBSERVES "75 DAY."

Success of Famous Cannon Celebrated—Trophies Sold for Funds for the Soldiers.

PARIS, Feb. 7.—Today has been called "75 day," for throughout France the people celebrated the success of the famous French cannon. Little flags, medals, and other insignia bearing reproductions of a cannon have been sold everywhere. The funds collected will be used to purchase comforts for the allied armies fighting in France. It is expected that the receipts today will be as large as from the sale of flags for the benefit of Belgian refugees when $700,000 was collected.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Amsterdam to London, Feb. 7.—The official statement issued today by the government says:

BOY QUITS HOME FOR NAVY.

Nineteen Year old Arthur Sullivan Leaves Note to His Father.

Timothy J. Sullivan, attorney for the fire prevention bureau, residing at 1319 Cornelia avenue, reported to the detective bureau last night that his son, Arthur, 19 years old, has been missing since Friday. The boy left a note saying he was going to enlist in the navy.

Modern "Aladdin Lamp" and Dissector.

A PECULIAR little boxlike contrivance with electric bell attachments, thermometers, speedometers, light bulbs, and what nots was the center of interest at the detective bureau yesterday. It was the machine which Al Weiss, alias Joe Parmousky, invented for the purpose of changing blank paper into legal tender and some $1,500 from the pockets of Attorney Clarence W. Shaver to his own. Parmousky sat in his cell bemoaning his mistake of picking a lawyer for his customer.

While detectives were dissecting the elaborate "Parmousky prosperity producer," others were engaged in dissecting the pasts of the inventor and Charles W. Galvin of 7144 Cornell avenue, who was arrested with him. They came to the conclusion that Galvin was an innocent party to the fraud and not in league with Parmousky, as Attorney Shaver supposed.

Parmousky was to sell the machine to Galvin and Shaver for $3,000, half to be paid by each, and the two purchasers were to go into partnership in the greenback grinding business, according to the plans of Parmousky and Galvin.

ARMY WON'T GET AMERICAN GRAIN

Germany So Promises; Rule Limiting Cargoes' Sales Has Been Rescinded.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Positive assurances that the grain imported from America will not be used for the German army or the German administration, were given by Vice Chancellor Clemens Delbruech in a statement today. He declared the regulations under which imported grain was subject to sale only to municipalities or the grain monopoly organization had been revoked by the bundesrath, and announced the willingness of the government to entrust the sale of such grain to American organizations for the duration of the war.

Join in Relief to Poland.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 7.—America and Germany are joining hands in movements for the relief of the civil population in the war devastated districts of Poland. Representatives of the American Red Cross and the Rockefeller foundation, after investigation, found this work as essential as relief for Belgium.

While American representatives were negotiating what amounts to a formal treaty with the German and Austrian authorities providing guarantees not only that imported food supplies shall not be requisitioned by the military authorities, but that all requisitions shall cease in occupied regions, a German committee had begun raising funds to buy food for a people who officially are their enemies.

Berliners Subscribe $85,000.

Prominent residents of Berlin subscribed $85,000 as their first contribution to the fund to which Germans generally were invited to subscribe in an appeal issued Saturday.

The German committee was organized Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the reichstag with Prince Hatzfeld-Trachenberg as chairman and Dr. Theodor Lewald, director of the ministry of interior, as vice chairman.

Won't Sell Wilhelmina Cargo.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The owners of the cargo of the American steamer Wilhelmina, on the way from New York to Hamburg with food supplies for Germany, have intimated to the commission for the relief of Belgium that its offer for the purchase of the cargo will not be considered.

The commission for the relief of Belgium desired to acquire the cargo of the Wilhelmina owing to a shortage in the food supply for the suffering Belgians. A friend of the commission placed at its disposal a sufficient sum of money to buy the cargo with the object of diverting it to Rotterdam. The offer provided for a fair profit for the Wilhelmina's owners and charterers.

Russia Thwarts Price Kiters.

WARSAW, Feb. 7.—Military orders have been issued prohibiting speculation in food or other necessities of life under penalty of court martial. Since this regulation went into effect artificially advanced prices have fallen 25 per cent.

HOW FOOD IS DISTRIBUTED.

New York, Feb. 7.—A description of what is done in distributing a shipload of food so soon as it arrives at Rotterdam was given today by Lindon W. Bates, vice chairman of the commission for relief in Belgium. He spoke in connection with the arrival of the Virginia relief ship Lynorta at Rotterdam, where it is now unloading. The statement was telegraphed to the Virginia relief committee.

The cargo, it says, is first put on canal boats, which go from Holland waterways past the military inspection to several hundred communes and distributing centers in Belgium. The distribution, which is under the supervision of Americans, is done by the Comite National de Secours et d'Alimentation, a representative Belgian body.

Each destitute person in a community becomes subject to special investigation. If the case warrants, they are given free nontransferable tickets entitling them to a deunite ration twice daily at communal canteens.

Work people of small means pay for their tickets, getting the same ration as the destitute. The cost of these rations is about $1.80 each month, and they consist of two-thirds of a pound of bread, a portion of potatoes, coffee, salt, a quart of soup containing vegetables and lump meat.

GEN. PAU OUSTED BY JOFFRE FOR MEN'S BLUNDER, RUMOR

His Old Comrade Asks Him to Suggest Censure and Acts Accordingly, Story Has It.

PARIS, Dec. 26.—[Correspondence.]—A story of Gen. Joffre, who is now evoking praise even from the Germans, has reached here. Gen. Pau, in the early months one of the leading figures of the war, was unfortunate enough to be in command of some regiments which by mistake fired on a position occupied by French troops. The slaughter was not inconsiderable.

Gen. Pau is an old friend and comrade of Joffre. He did not wait to be summoned before his commander in chief, or to defend at a courtmartial troops for whose action he had to shoulder responsibility. He went to Joffre, who received him kindly. Joffre said:

"Old friend, if you were in my place and I in yours, what would you say to me?"

"I would say," Pau replied, "that you must go."

"My dear boy," Joffre retorted, "go!" Pau left the room a broken general.

ANARCHY HOLDS ALBANIA IN GRIP

Bands Kill and Pillage; Merchandise on River Held for Ransom.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The following note has been issued by the Montenegrin consulate general here:

"Cettinje—Complete anarchy reigns in Albania, which is continually augmented by the intrigues of the Austrians and young Turks. Albanian bands kill and pillage all Montenegrin subjects who are obliged to traverse Albanian territory.

"All the merchandise transported along the River Boyana is confiscated and held at enormous ransom, despite the incontestable right of Montenegrin navigation of this river.

"The consular cabinet at Scutari is without authority over the Albanians, whose misdeeds against Montenegrin commerce grow daily."

CARRIER PIGEON REACHES U. S. WITH GERMAN'S NOTE?

Message Said to Be from Soldier in Belgium on Neck of Bird Found in Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—A carrier pigeon dropped from the roof of a building here and Fred Jacobs, who found it, discovered a message tied about the bird's neck which evidently was the message of a German soldier in the Belgium trenches to his wife. The message read as follows:

"Dear Wife: I am alive and well in the trenches of Belgium, but your brother has been killed."

There was no signature.

The pigeon showed evidence of long flight. The message was written in English and wrapped in the heading of a German newspaper and the date mark of the paper was Saxony, December. The day of the month was missing.

Spanish Press Lauds Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 7.—Extracts from leading Spanish and Swedish newspapers, eulogizing Germany, her army, and Emperor William, circulated among commission merchants in the form of brochures, were seized today by the police.

GERMANS TAKE FRENCH TRENCH IN YPRES FIGHT

Berlin Official Statement Admits Allies Made Gains Near La Bassee Canal.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The official statements issued in Berlin and Paris today reported several engagements in which slight gains were made at different places by both the Germans and allies.

"Southeast of Ypres" says the German statement, "we have taken a French trench and two English machine guns.

"South of the canal of La Bassee, the enemy penetrated one of our trenches. The battle is still raging there."

French Official Statement.

The statement by the Paris war office says:

"In the night of Feb. 6-7 the enemy delivered in the region of Nieuport several minor attacks, all of which were repulsed.

"Between the canal and the road from Bethune to La Bassee, east of Cuinchy, a brickyard where the enemy had maintained a position was taken by the English.

French Near Arras Bombarded.

"In the sector of Arras to the north of Bourie the German batteries have bombarded the trench captured by us on Feb. 4, but there has been no infantry attack. There was a bombardment of the district to the north of Soissons.

"From Arras to Reims there have been artillery fights in which we have had the advantage.

"In Champagne we have repulsed an attack by half a battalion to the north of Beausejour.

"From the Argonne to the Vosges artillery combats have been handicapped in the mountain region by a thick fog."

SPAIN TO BUY ARMS IN U. S.; ALSO SEVERAL AEROPLANES.

Military Officials Leave Madrid on Government Mission—Four Submarines May Be Purchased.

MADRID, Feb. 7.—Senor Oviedo, director of the government armament works, and Lieut. Col. Rivera of the artillery, have started on an official mission to the United States to purchase arms from American manufacturers.

It has been confirmed officially that the Spanish government soon will purchase several aeroplanes from factories in the United States.

Announcement was made here on Feb. 5 that parliament had authorized the government to purchase four submarines from a builder in the United States. There has been no previous official statement regarding the purchase of other military equipment in this country.

TELLS POSITION OF GERMAN NAVY

Grand Admiral Says Fleet Cannot Afford Battle at Present.

LAUDS SPIRIT OF MEN.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Grand Admiral von Koester, president of the German Navy league, in an address at Kiel university today, discussed the considerations governing the part that is to be played by the German navy in the present war.

He declared that the relative strength of the German fleet compared to the Anglo-French-Russian fleet is perhaps one to four. The British, he added, perhaps estimated German lust for battle so highly that they had said to themselves, "some day they will come and we shall be able to assume battle in a situation favorable for us."

German Spirit Is Better.

Another possibility, Admiral von Koester declared, was that the British have a higher regard for the German fleet than Nelson had for the French or the Spanish. That the offensive spirit of the Germans is greater than that of the British, the admiral continued, can justly be assumed when one recalls that the Germans took an offensive against England's east coast, whereas the English have not dared to approach the German coast.

"We are full of the firmest confidence in our fleet," said Admiral von Koester, "but we know that a sea battle means death or victory, and that a destroyed fleet cannot be replaced in the course of the war, even if it lasts for years. We must, therefore, under all conditions, be cautious in our procedure and allow ourselves to be incited to no deed which might eventuate in our defeat."

Defeat Would Peril Coasts.

"For what would be the situation if a sea battle took place tomorrow in which each one of our ships took a hostile ship to the bottom with it, and perhaps some others? Then we should be without a fleet and England could proceed gradually in its attacks against our coasts. And you can be sure after the conduct of England in our colonies that no city would be spared. Our coast from Emden to Memel would be most severely threatened. Landing attempts, if they were sufficiently well prepared, could succeed at places most uncomfortable for us.

"Our fleet must protect us under all conditions and may accept battle only when it can reckon on victory."

Bombard Dardanelles Forts.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Four torpedo boats of the allies have bombarded the Turkish forts in the Dardanelles, according to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. One hundred and seventy-four shells were discharged and two ammunition depots were set on fire.

SEE PEACE HOPE IN EUROPE TOUR OF COL. HOUSE

Diplomats Think Wilson Thus Can Learn Conditions on Which War Can End.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Plans which President Wilson may have looking to the eventual termination of the European war were the subject of much speculation among foreign diplomats today, as a result of the arrival in London of Col. E. M. House, intimate friend of the president, on a tour of the capitals of Europe.

At the White House it was stated that Mr. House was not authorized to carry on any negotiations for peace while in Europe, though the president naturally expected to learn much of interest.

Many diplomats were inclined to believe that the report of Col. House might e instrumental eventually in developing unofficially an understanding of the conditions under which the belligerents would make peace. He is on intimate terms with some of the principal foreign secretaries of Europe, and most of the American ambassadors in Europe were his close associates before their respective appointments to foreign posts.

Col. House bears a letter, saying he is the personal and unofficial representative of President Wilson, so that Americans in charge of various branches of relief work will not hesitate to discuss their plans and coöperate with him freely.

MERCIER AVERS HE WAS HELD BY GERMANS 3 DAYS

Restrained in Palace, He Tells Visitor; Belgium Needs Food; Cardinal Thanks U. S.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—"The situation remains acute. If the supply of food is diminished Belgium will starve."

This message was cabled today by former Congressman Charles F. Scott of Kansas, who is returning from an inspection of relief work in Belgium and France, to former Gov. Walter R. Stubbs of Kansas.

While at Malines Mr. Scott called on Cardinal Mercier. Describing his interview with the prelate, Mr. Scott said:

"The cardinal obviously enjoys the dilemma in which he has placed the Germans. At 6 o'clock one morning, said the archbishop, a German officer and two soldiers brought a communication from the commander asking him to deny the statements that he had been deprived of his personal liberty.

Restrained in Palace.

"Cardinal Mercier said he requested his callers to return in the evening for an answer, but the officer declared they must await a reply in the cardinal's room.

"Describing his subsequent experiences the cardinal said:

"'It is true no manacles were used to restrain me, but I was to have performed a service at Antwerp and was not permitted to go there. For three days I was restrained in my palace. Two days later I was asked to modify my letter and wrote another. If the Germans are clever they will publish my first pastoral.'

"Asked if he had any message for Americans he said:

"'Nothing except to give the people of your great country assurances of our gratitude. We would have starved had it not been for you. The work of your relief commission has been very efficient.'

Can Save Cathedral.

"So far as I could see Cardinal Mercier was free to come and go as he pleased, subject, I presume, to the usual restrictions imposed upon Belgians. Men were at work bracing the walls of the cathedral and tearing down the parts which must be removed. Although terribly battered, it now appears that the beautiful building will be saved. The damage to it is estimated at $200,000.

"The people in and around Malines appeared as depressed as any I saw in Belgium, which is saying more than I can describe. They wander aimlessly through the streets, where bands of wretched, ragged children beg from every one in sight.

"Elsewhere I was struck with the courage the Belgians show in efforts to rebuild their homes and resume their normal life, but, of course, they are utterly dependent upon supplies brought in by the commission.

Germans Provide Food.

"The Germans have been giving the inhabitants enough bread to keep them alive, but they told me they could not possibly continue this work, for it would be physically impossible as soon as active operations are recommenced.

"Throughout my trip I saw enough to convince me the Germans are treating the commission with perfect fairness, helping out with absolute good faith. We have done well as a country, thus far staving off actual famine, but more food is essential."

Care for Allies' Refugees.

PARIS, Feb. 7 The minister of the interior, Louis J. Malvy, announced today that the number of refugees, either in Belgium or invaded French departments, number approximately 1,000,000, half of whom have been housed by prefects. The other 500,000, M. Malvy stated, have evacuated voluntarily.

The United States a Fool's Paradise.

A Hundred Million Defenseless People Sound Asleep.

BY DR. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY.

DR. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, director of the New York Zoological park, has sent to "The Tribune" a manifesto to the American people, pleading that they awaken to the dangerous state of unpreparedness of our army and navy. Dr. Hornaday is an eminent naturalist, who has a world-wide reputation as a traveler and explorer. His appeal follows:

"Fool's paradise" is a harsh expression, but the time has come for hewing to the line. There are times when soft talk becomes a crime.

Outside of our national capital at this moment the spectacle is presented of 90,000,000 of people still half asleep regarding the defenses of their nation.

We behold the experts of the United States army and navy and a wideawake secretary of war pleading with congress for the men and materials that are necessary to place this nation in a state of defense that will not be an international joke.

Our coast defenses are short 564 officers and 10,988 men; our navy is short 203 line officers and 4,565 men, and our standing army could put only 45,000 fighting effectives on the firing line.

Our navy is fourth in rank as to number of units, and its fastest ships of the line are like the Bluecher that was overhauled and sunk because it was so absurdly slow. The fast cruisers and battleships of the British and German navies could sail in circles around the fastest of our best sea fighters, like a cooper going around a cask.

Congress is at this very moment trying to make both financial ends meet without any unusual expenditures for defenses.

Now is there any honest American so dull that he cannot see the joke of our "defenses?"

We behold well meaning congressmen held back from voting adequate appropriations by the well grounded fear that their constituents will not back up adequate defenses on election day.

Finally, as a touch of real comedy in a far too serious spectacle, we behold an organization of excellent ladies and gentlemen (mostly past the ability to bear arms) approaching congress with a formal and solemn protest against the increase of the defenses of the United States!

We are well within bounds in assuring congress and the president that a great many private citizens are now thoroughly alarmed by the present conditions of the defenses of the United States.

We believe that the silent majority will strongly support all the efforts that the president and congress may be persuaded to make for the quick and thorough strengthening of our army, navy, militia, and defensive equipment.

While we yield precedence to no man in desiring honorable peace with all nations, while we are willing to submit to everything that honorable and courageous men may rightly endure before appealing to arms, we solemnly protest against a degree of weakness in our defenses so conspicuous and so grotesque that it constantly invite attack from without.

We have full faith in the American people—when they are awake!

We believe that a large majority of Americans are firmly convinced that the best guarantee of peace for the United States is the ability successfully to repel insult and attack.

We must not shut our eyes to the hard fact that in the twentieth century great events sometimes move very swiftly, and that it is possible for a grave crisis to be precipitated in a day.

We have seen that with warlike nations, inclined toward aggression and bent upon conquest, it is their way to strike first, strike quickly, and with tremendous force.

It is the way of aggressive nations to fall upon peace loving or slow nations unawares. Why should we forget Sedan and Chemulpo?

A careful study of the last annual reports of the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, and the chief of coast artillery is sufficient to chill the heart of every thinking American with well grounded fear.

Our defenses of every description are inadequate to an extent that to every foreigner must be laughable, but to every American the situation is too serious for levity.

The American people are not children and the only reason we can suggest why the present situation has been created is that the people at large are ignorant of the extent of our national defenselessness.

It is only the confirmed and illogical miser who neglects to provide proper security for his wealth and willfully exposes himself and his hoard to deadly attack.

We desire to inform all Americans that at this moment Switzerland, with only one-third the territorial area of the state of New York and less than one-half the population of New York, has an army much larger than that of the whole United States, even including all our militia. (Report of the secretary of war, 1914, page 10.)

We desire our countrymen to know that we have at this moment only "about one-fourth of the officers and one-half of the enlisted men necessary" to man our primary home coast defenses and protect our Atlantic and Pacific cities that without better protection can be laid under tribute by any hostile fleet stronger than ours to the tune of billions of dollars.

At this moment the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska, and Porto Rico are so ludicrously undefended that they invite seizure. This, too, despite the injunction of holy writ that it is wrong to place temptation in the way of sinners!

The general board of the navy, a body of naval authorities that in any other country than the United States would command the highest respect, has officially submitted to our government a program of recommendations for naval increase in 1915. A few only of these recommendations have been adopted.

We observe with regret that the board's recommendation of $5,000,000 for air craft for the army and navy has been reduced by the house of representatives to one-tenth of that sum, $500,000.

Does not the fate of the slow Bluecher point out a defect in our cruisers and battleships in the matter of speed? That is the fault of our naval constructors, not of congress.

Coincident with this, and also neatly synchronized with the protests of the Society to Prevent the Increase of our National Defenses, comes the news that the navy of our country has dropped to fourth place in rank with the navies of the world. This should give that society great joy.

In view of the recent slaughter of large war vessels by small submarines, congress is really disposed to adopt the recommendation of the general board of the navy, rather than that of a too optimistic secretary, for nineteen submarines, which, in the light of recent events, are really about one-half the number that should be built and distributed in 1915 along our coasts and among our oversea possessions.

There are times and seasons when the able bodied citizen with red blood in his veins has laid upon him other duties than enlistment in war and the bearing of arms. There are times when it is his duty to raise his voice and protest against dangerous forms of peace.

It is now the duty of every serious-minded American to express his views regarding the defenseless and attack inviting condition of his country and his hearthstone.

In all the countless thousands of proverbs that the English language has produced there never was one more pregnant with truth and wise warning than that which says:

"Speak softly, carry a big stick, and you will go far."

The idea that the power to fight will necessarily render us aggressive is entirely unfounded and fallacious, as every thinking American well knows.

One more citizen now asks the president and congress to take immediately all the steps that they would wish they had taken if a great war with a first class power suddenly should be thrust upon us two years from this time.

In the matter of defensive preparations let us not be post-mortem philosophers. Let us not compel ourselves to say in 1917:

"We should have done so and so in 1915," or "Why did not congress do its duty in 1915?" or "If we had only done as we should have done!"

We urge congress to go forward rapidly and forcefully, and not pause even to be amused by the advocates of defenselessness.

Defensively, we are today fully five years behind the needs of the present hour.

We are convinced that the American people desire for their nation and their homes a degree of protection commensurate with the needs of the time, the dangers of our position, and the resources of this mighty nation.

We believe that the hour has come when congress and the departments of war, navy, and the treasury should swiftly go forward to build, to enlist, to arm and equip all our various lines of national defense until a satisfactory basis is reached.

We believe that the recommendations of the general board of the navy, the secretary of war and the chief of coast artillery are sane, safe, and by no means too expansive to be adopted in full by congress.

The inadequacy of our naval and coast defense personnel is serious and deplorable. The lack of a large reserve body of army officers fit to train recruits in peace and lead them in war is equally disquieting.

We contend for the immediate enlistment of not less than 5,000 educated men to be trained as army officers and held as a permanent reserve.

Thus far throughout all the recommendations for increased defenses that have been made to congress and to the public, I have not seen one word of advice dealing with financial ways and means. The extra expenditure proposed will require extra funds, but it seems that no one dares to tackle that particular porcupine.

At this moment congress is striving to avoid a maintenance deficit of $29,000,000, which means proceeding along the old lines.

A gentleman who claims to know things says that "congress would not listen to a suggestion for a special national defense loan." I do not believe it.

As a cold business proposition it is perfectly clear that in order to meet the heavy extraordinary expenses that unavoidably will be incurred in increasing our armaments as the situation now demands, a large extra defense fund must be provided.

In our judgment the inexorable logic of the situation calls for an issue of $100,000,000 worth of national defense bonds, drawing 3½ per cent interest, and salable in small lots to the people at large.

That any important number of Americans would object to such an issue is inconceivable. A hundred millions borrowed and wisely expended in 1915 and 1916 may easily save us from war loans and war expenditures of $2,000,000,000 or more in 1920, or some time thereafter.

We have talked long, and also loudly, about the Monroe doctrine and "the defense of the Panama canal," and now the time has come that we must either put up or shut up.

The annual interest on these bonds would amount to $3,500,000, and it is just possible that for that small annual sum we can purchase a good measure of security against wanton attack.

No wise man balks at the cost of insurance upon his property or his life. If we can insure the safety of even one-half of our United States seacoast cities by the payment of an annual premium of less than $4,000,000, would it not be a good business investment?

We challenge all men to show how such a sum could be more wisely invested by the American people.

The time to act is today, not tomorrow. It takes time to build big guns and ships and produce new regiments of trained men.

As reflected in the daily press, the defensive program thus far laid down by the house of representatives is very inadequate. At this time the boldest and the most far reaching policy is the best policy. The logic of the situation is inexorable.

Our army, our navy, and our coast defenses are all right as far as they go. We have no fault to find with our nation's defenders except for smallness of their number, insufficiency of their equipment, and the slow speed of our best fighting ships.

They have gone just as far as congress has permitted them to go.

Congress has held back because we have all of us been lulled into a beautiful dream that no nation ever attacks another without just cause, and the determination that no nation ever will be given just cause to attack us. But, presto! Our dreams of eternal and world wide peace have been shattered by the explosion of a tremendous and cruel war, unnecessary and unspeakably wicked as to its original cause.

The times are indeed out of joint. They have changed fearfully since Aug. 2, 1914.

If we are wise we must heed the lessons that the last six months of carnage and destruction have forced upon our attention.

The men and women who now are actively opposing the increase of our national defenses are taking upon themselves a serious responsibility. In my opinion they are trying to do their country a great injury.

AUSTRIA RENEWS ATTACK ON MONTENEGRO, BUT FAILS.

Fire on Drina Positions Silenced—Franz Josef's Aeroplanes Drop Bombs on Antivari.

PARIS, Feb. 7.—Resumption of Austrian attacks on all Montenegrin positions along the banks of the Drina in the mountains near Dorado are reported in a dispatch to the Havas agency from Cettinje. It is stated that the Austrian fire was silenced by the Montenegrin artillery.

Three Austrian aeroplanes flew over Antivari, the dispatch states, dropping many bombs which did considerable damage to buildings, but resulted in no deaths, although one person was wounded.

The aircraft were driven off by artillery fire and flew in the direction of Cattaro.

VALUE giving is one of the cardinal principles of this business; and the fact that we've done it always, and that our customers know it, has been the real reason for our steady growth. Every man who buys anything here has the assurance that he's getting a full equivalent of his money; and whenever he thinks otherwise, he can have his money back.

Right now, this value-giving is at an unprecedented level; we're giving our customers more value per dollar than ever in our history; or yours either.

First showing of Spring 1915 Manhattan and Star shirts. Many exclusive patterns and colorings in madras, satin broches and pure silks. Soft double and laundered cuffs. $1.50 to $7.50

Just look at these facts and figures

Hart Schaffner & Marx fine suits and overcoats are now selling at $16.50, which are worth at ordinary times, when clearing operations are not concerned, $20, $22.50, $25, $28 and $30. When we say "worth" these prices we mean value; they're worth it; but are $16.50

Another unusual thing is this special lot of suits, newly made, in Spring 1915 styles, by Hart Schaffner & Marx from the over-yardage in their special order department. We took over this lot of fine stuff, including many very choice foreign weaves, for two reasons; it keeps the big tailoring organization busy and intact; and we give our customers a good thing. So now you have your choice of suits worth $30 and $35 at $20

CROWN PRINCE OF GERMANY AT THE FRONT—The heir to the Kaiser is here seen in an observation tower getting a view of the enemy's line in the Argonne forest. He was reported to be sick recently, but did not leave his command. Young and vigorous, the German Crown Prince has withstood the hardships of the campaign successfully. [Photographs, copyright, by New York Times Company.]

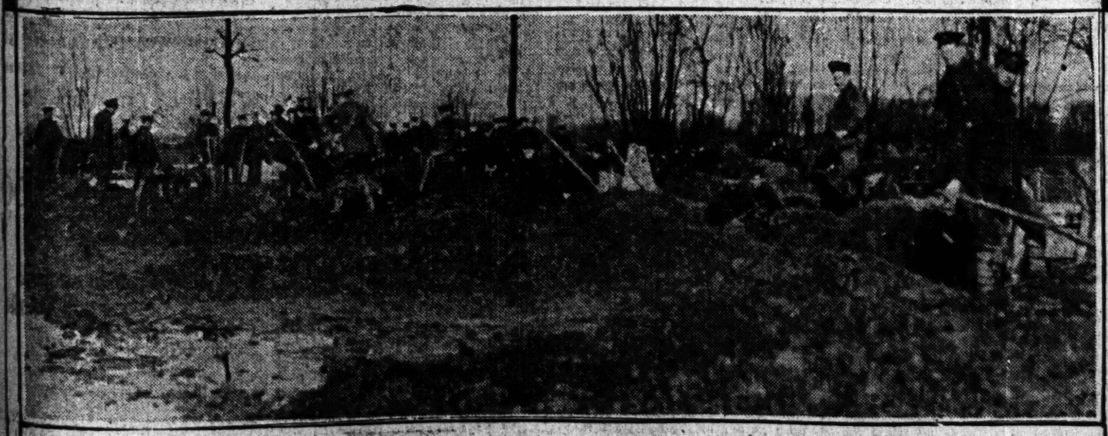

RUINS OF A SMALL HAMLET IN WESTERN BELGIUM—A desperate fight raged for weeks for the possession of this village. Of little value commercially, this place was of great value strategically. When this photograph was taken both the British and Germans were making great efforts to get possession of it. The near side was held by the British and the German trenches were only 200 yards away. All the inhabitants were forced to flee to safety.

INDIAN TROOPS IN FLANDERS—Unlike the fighters in the French army from Northern Africa, these East Indians are able to stand the rigors of the winter campaign in northern France and Belgium. Many of them came from the mountain regions in upper India, and in addition to being great fighters seem to flourish in winter weather.

CHURCH WRECKED BY GERMAN SHELLS—These roofless ruins of the church at Sainte Chappelle were snapped by the photographer after the place had been bombarded by the Kaiser's artillery. The roof was entirely demolished. As by a miracle the stately altar and the windows back of it escaped destruction.

BRITISH TERRITORIALS AT THE FRONT—These troops from England, which correspond with our militia, have rendered excellent service. The picture shows a company of Territorial engineers building a redoubt at La Bassee, northern France. They took part in a brilliant action there which resulted in victory for the allies.

BATTLE LINE IN THE WEST—With the exception of a few slight gains, such as the taking of a trench by either side, the allies and the Germans have maintained their positions in France and Belgium.
Artillery duels are frequent along the entire front, especially along the Aisne. Southeast of Ypres the Germans report the taking of a French trench and two English machine guns. On the La Bassee canal the British penetrated the German intrenchments. From Arras to Reims the heavy artillery bombardments are reported to have resulted in favor of the French.
Farther to the east in the Argonne and Vosges districts a heavy fog has interfered with operations. Little of a decisive nature is looked for in the western theater of the war until March or April. Both sides are making preparations for a general offensive as soon as the weather moderates.

"Our country! in her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

A WEEK OF ADVANCE.

The week opened hopefully for industry, commerce, and investment. The heavy oversubscription of the 4½ per cent bond issue of the Pennsylvania railroad was a most encouraging sign. It meant that the credit of the carriers had improved; that the rate decision of the commerce commission was producing its effect on the public mind, and that the railroads would be able to undertake refunding or new financing operations and also to enter the market more actively as purchasers.

The January export figures, while unofficial, furnished another cause for satisfaction. Cotton shipments reached unprecedented totals for the period. The lumber situation was shown to have improved decidedly. The feeling in the steel trade, at last, was reported to have become better than at any time since the spring of last year. Every steel center sent news of increased output and confident expectation of further substantial additions in the immediate future. The Steel corporation had worked up to 55 per cent capacity, against but 35 a short month ago.

All these facts and items reacted favorably on Wall street and on stock operations. The passing of the steel common dividend was almost forgotten by the pessimists and recoveries were registered. Indeed, the week on the whole bade fair to go down into history as one of marked advance and improvement.

Suddenly the German announcement interpreted as a blockade of Great Britain came to remind us all that the one uncertain and disturbing factor in the situation is the terrible and criminal European war. That desperate conflict is a grave menace to neutral trade and neutral prosperity. It can be nothing else in the nature of things. The German announcements are pregnant with problems and dangers, but the business world has not permitted itself to become unduly alarmed. The effect on the security market was slight, and the shipping interests have not been thrown into any unreasoning state of excitement. Sober consideration is to be given to the German warning, and our government, with other neutrals concerned, will have to meet the situation as it unfolds itself. At home meantime the conditions remain sound and business continues to improve.

SALARIES AND THE FEE SYSTEM.

Attention has been called to the unexpected result of the law of 1912 providing for the payment of a salary to state's attorneys in lieu of fees. In most counties this has resulted in a gain to the official and a loss to the county because the fees are less than the salary fixed. As a consequence other fee officers are moving for a similar provision.

To avert this advance it has been suggested that the remedy lies with the Supreme court. It is not probable that the constitution ever contemplated making fees a burden on the fee payer and taxpayer alike. The constitution did not intend that the fees should be revenue, and the original purpose, which seems now to have been entirely abandoned, was toward a continuing lower scale of fees, which operates to benefit the fee payer—that is, the person who uses our courts, either in the capacity of plaintiff or defendant. The policy adopted seems to be that of keeping the fees as high as possible, in order to produce from fee payers as much as possible, so that salaries can be established payable from the treasury, which can thereby be made as high as the traffic will bear.

The Illinois constitution provides (section 12, article X.): "And the general assembly shall, by general law, uniform in its operation, provide for and regulate the fees of such (county) officers and their successors, so as to reduce the same to a reasonable compensation for services actually rendered."

In support of the above provision Joseph Medill, as a member of the constitutional convention of 1870, said (constitutional debates, page 1354): "The art of extracting money out of the pockets of taxpayers is brought to a much higher perfection by the professional office holder and his confederates than the art of protecting the people has ever been brought by their legislators. We have in all states, Illinois not excepted, a very numerous, unscrupulous, sharp witted class of men who make a living, and who make it a study to make it a living, by tapping the taxpayers as a sugar tree, as woodpeckers perforate that saccharine wood. They have brought their art to such perfection that it will require all the wisdom of this convention to, in part, prevent such bleeding and suction. . . . I have a great deal more faith in saving taxes to the people than in squeezing them out of them in the shape of high fees, in the expectation that they will be benefited thereby after the money has passed into the treasury and is exposed to the depredation of the office holders."

If the legislature had done its duty and "regulated the fees so as to reduce the same to a reasonable compensation for services actually rendered" during the years past we would have no fees questioned on our hands now, and it is its failure to act and its inability to stand between the officer who demands higher fees and then higher salary in lieu of the fees that has brought about the present day conditions. The constitution intended no revenue to be produced from fees. It intended that this regulation be always a benefit to the fee payer, but that has not been the practice in this state.

We can well afford in Cook county to waive any advantages this method of handling the fees may bring us now, if its ultimate result is to fasten upon us, as well as upon all the rest of the state, this elaborate system of complicated and increased fees for the treasury as a basis for still higher salaries, which system can be expanded indefinitely both as to officials and amounts. To assume such burdens for any present gain is not the part of wisdom, and safety requires a return to the simple and clearly defined methods of the constitution of 1870.

CLOSING THE SEA.

The declaration of Germany's intent with regard to the English channel and the waters around Great Britain and Ireland is contained in the statement issued Feb. 4 by the German admiralty office. This statement was interpreted to be a notice of a blockade effective after Feb. 18. In its language it does not make any such pretensions.

When a blockade has been established and made effective within the acceptance of international law there are no such things as neutral ships. Any vessel endeavoring to go through the blockading line without permission is a blockade runner, subject to capture or destruction.

An effective blockade establishes a condition which is a bar to trade and a neutral vessel loses the protection of its government while endeavoring to run the blockading line.

Germany has not declared a blockade. It would be a physical impossibility for it to make one effective. It could not encircle the ports of Great Britain and of France. Even by submarines it can make only raids; it cannot maintain stations. Effectiveness is out of the question and a paper blockade would not be respected by neutral nations. They would not submit to the destruction of their ships.

Germany has seen fit, owing to the misconceptions which prevailed regarding the statement of Feb. 4, to issue an explanation which sets the matter right but leaves it just as delicate. Neutral shipping not carrying contraband will not be interfered with. A zone of war has been described. It existed from the moment war was declared and needed no definition. The setting of a date after which dangers within this zone will increase can be attributed merely to a desire to warn neutrals that activities will be increased and dangers multiplied, but what is that to neutrals? There might be a mistake in identification? That is a mistake no warring nation can afford to make, if it is to be a mistake carrying vessel and crew to the bottom.

A ship is the most scrutinized and most easily identified instrument of human intercourse. It is protected by special laws and subject to special supervision. Its identity and its purpose are declared. Its movements are noted officially. It cannot be mistaken if any effort be made to ascertain what it is, whence it sails and whither it is bound. The only chance for a mistake to occur is to torpedo on sight and learn afterward what ship has gone down.

Germany seems to be trying to establish a practical blockade by intimidation, by emphasizing the possible dangers which neutral shipping may encounter if a mistake in identification should occur.

Great Britain is seeking to obtain the results obtainable from a blockade, by lengthening the list of contraband. If every possible article of commerce be contraband if shipped to Germany, then a blockade of the German ports is not necessary to the shutting down of trade with Germany. Ships carrying goods to Germany may be picked up in the lanes of ocean travel or in the approaches to German ports and taken to Great Britain for the verdict of a prize court.

Contraband is a vague term which gets definition by the warring powers themselves. Although cotton is used in the manufacture of ammunition Great Britain has not put it on the contraband list. This exemption is plainly in favor of what the British think to be the predominant political element in Washington, the southern, cotton growing element. The British do not desire to make the dominating southern influence a hostile influence. Embargoes might be ordered in consequence.

Foodstuffs, not consigned for military purposes, have not been contraband, but since the German government has undertaken to direct the apportionment of food within the German empire, the British reveal a disposition to hold that all foodstuffs sent to Germany are potentially for military purposes. That will lengthen the list of contraband and approximate, in effect, a blockade.

Evidently the relations of the United States as a neutral with both the belligerents are becoming so involved as to require the coolest and most intelligent judgment our government can bring to bear on them.

CO-OPERATION IN CITIZEN MAKING.

Several weeks ago THE TRIBUNE commended and welcomed the evening classes in citizenship. They are to be a permanent feature of the city's school system, although the beginning this year is a very modest one. Only a few schools have such classes for the benefit of aliens seeking to fit themselves for naturalization, but it appears that more may be added in the immediate future. The demand for such instruction is likely—perhaps certain—to grow, for even the alien who comes at first merely in the hope of being helped to obtain "his papers" soon learns to appreciate the value and the interest of the classes. Much, of course, depends on the instructors—their skill, their enthusiasm, their knowledge of the various races and elements that are attracted by the classes.

A new development that deserves special approval is the announced readiness of the superintendent of the school system, Mrs. Young, to cooperate with voluntary instructors and settlement classes in citizenship. Where, for example, a social settlement or other civic center has pupils and teachers but no suitable accommodation, the school building in the neighborhood is to be placed at their disposal in the evening once or twice a week. Since we owe the classes in citizenship to civic and voluntary enterprise and initiative, this recognition and this cheerful cooperation are as grateful as they are natural. There is plenty of room for such team work, and no better field for it is conceivable than the one in question. The assimilation and fitting of aliens for intelligent citizenship and better living—for living in America rather than underneath America, to use the striking expression of a naturalized Polish leader—is a task as difficult as it is important.

VICIOUS ADVICE TO LAW STUDENTS.

[From the Arizona Star.]

The students of a Chicago law school were the innocent victims of a vicious and foolish lecture recently. A lawyer told them to avoid the practice of the criminal law, because that branch of the law is in disrepute and its practitioner could expect nothing but obloquy and contempt from the community.

Contemptible and disreputable criminal lawyers, and they alone, have brought criminal law into disrepute. Time was when the ablest and noblest advocates defended criminals. Criminal law needs redemption, rescue, and rehabilitation, and young students should be advised to practice it, and do so honestly, earnestly, and candidly.

"THE war," says Mr. Herrick, seriously and gratefully, "has given us all something to talk about." Well, rather. The difficulty is, almost everything that can be said about it has been said, and we all find ourselves repeating what we said yesterday, and the day before, and the antepenultimate day. The Prussians have been damned to an au revoir, the courage and reticence of the French have been lauded, the unbeatableness of the British has been conceded, and the possibilities of the Russians debated; little remains to be told. Of course, if one could understand the German viewpoint, conversation, which has begun to languish, might revive. Perhaps we ought to make an earnest effort to understand it; in time the mental adjustment might come. As a means to this end we advise every one to attend the performances of "Alice in Wonderland," which begin next Thursday at the Fine Arts theater.

OF conversation in general, Mr. Herrick says there are obvious reasons why Americans talk without producing conversation. They may be obvious to a philosopher, but we fear they are not obvious to many persons who gather around Chicago's dinner tables. To our observation the main reason is a lack of allusiveness in the talk at these prandial gatherings; if a topic is broached, one must begin at the beginning; nothing is taken for granted. The topic is never flirted with, but is passed about like a medicine ball, until the last person falls exhausted upon it.

THAT gossip and story-telling kill conversation ought to be obvious. Indeed, the chief difference between a gathering in Mrs. Dearborn's town house and a gathering in Bill Godfrey's general store, is that in Mrs. Dearborn's drawing-room there are no cracker barrels to sit on and no sheetiron stove to spit at.

REVERTING to the subject of dinner talk, few of us could dine frequently at Patterne Hall or at Mrs. Mountstuart Jenkinson's and not come down with brain fever. Still, something approaching the following would be a welcome change from what Mr. Herrick calls the "mere grunts of human intercourse":

(From "The Egoist.")

"How would you define a rough truth, Dr. Middleton?" said Mrs. Mountstuart.

"A rough truth, madam, I should define to be that description of truth which is not imparted to mankind without a powerful impregnation of the roughness of the teller."

"It is a rough truth, ma'am, that the world is composed of fools, and that the exceptions are knaves," Professor Crooklyn furnished the example avoided by the Rev. Doctor.

"Not to precipitate myself into the jaws of the first definition, which strikes me as being as happy as Jonah's whale, that could carry probably the most learned man of his time inside without the necessity of digesting him," said De Crave, "a rough truth is a rather strong charge of universal nature for the firing off of a modicum of personal fact."

"It is a rough truth that Plato is Moses atticizing," said Vernon to Dr. Middleton, to keep the diversion alive.

"And that Aristotle had the globe under his cranium," rejoined the Rev. Doctor.

"And that the Moderns live on the Ancients.'

"And that not one in ten thousand can refer to the particular treasury he filches."

"The Art of our days is a revel of rough truth," remarked Professor Crooklyn.

"And the literature has laboriously mastered the adjective, wherever it may be in relation to the noun," Dr. Middleton added.

"Orson's first appearance at Court was in the figure of a rough truth, causing the Maids of Honour, accustomed to Tapestry Adams, astonishment and terror," said De Crave.

AN ODE TO HORACE.

Dear Horace Brand, I understand you love this country truly. Your words and acts are caused by facts which make you feel unruly. Your sympathy with Germany is purely altruistic, and when you pray for our "fair-play," you're quite idealistic! Your daily jibes and diatribes at every Allied action, are aimed of course against "brute force," for your own satisfaction. Your notice brief, and poignant grief when Germans have to flee, sir, but illustrates to noodle-pates your broad neutrality, sir! With gifts of speech to teach and preach, you're suddenly invested, and it's a shame to spoil your game—you're so "disinterested." But tell me true, is it not you who owns the old Staats-Zeitung? If that's not so, just let me know and maybe I'll hold MY tongue! If it's a fact, be more exact in disquisitions martial; your hand disclose and do not pose as being so impartial. C. S. A.

ALTHOUGH more than 90 per cent of business ventures result in failure, Mr. Taft says we should treat politics as we do business. Evidently we do.

ACCORDING to German newspapers, American neutrality is of the Judas type. We shall have to order a font of it.

WAR HITS RUM.

I AM sure that the average person who guessed the results of the war last August did not include Europe-wide prohibition among his prophecies.

Three months after the beginning of hostilities two contestants had prohibited very strong drink, and most of the contending nations were throwing their moral force in favor of temperance.

The Russian government has been in the wholesale and retail liquor business for many years. It owned the vodka factories and the vodka saloons as well. Several years ago it inaugurated a policy of gradual restriction of the sale and use of vodka.

As the saloon business was a large source of revenue to the Russian government, it was natural to suppose that when an expensive war was undertaken the government would double its efforts to make money with its saloons.

On the contrary, it decided that saloons were too hard on the people. It knew that in this time of stress the people would be called upon to stand all that was possible. The government decided that it was good judgment to spare them from vodka.

In France the sale of their very toxic drink, absinthe, was prohibited. Several years ago the effects of absinthe were investigated by the authorities. A policy of gradual repression was undertaken.

In order to conserve the forces of the people that they might withstand the shock of war, the government now prohibits the sale of absinthe to both soldiers and civilians. The French Academy of Medicine has indorsed this policy of its own government and also the vodka policy of the Russian government.

The efforts made by the Germans have been to lessen the consumption of alcoholic beverages by advising against their use. The German emperor began advising his people to be more temperate many years ago. Since the war began he has repeated this advice. The Berlin correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association wrote on Dec. 8 that the first orders of the army were to restrict the use of alcoholic drinks to the minimum.

When the cold weather came on some of the generals thought the use of red wine would prevent their troops from developing bowel troubles. The prohibition orders were lifted as to red wine. Immediately some of the generals and most of the surgeons protested against this order, stating that the use of even red wine was harmful.

The English government has thrown all its influence on the side of temperance. It could easily have been foreseen that when Lord Kitchener assumed charge of the English army a positive program against all forms of immorality would be undertaken. I doubt if any one expected him to have much to say about alcoholic beverages. This is the position taken by the English authorities:

"It has been proved by most careful scientific experiments and completely confirmed by actual experience in athletics and war, as attested by Field Marshal Lord Roberts and Field Marshal Lord Wolseley and many other army leaders, that alcohol or drink slows the power to see signals, confuses prompt judgment, spoils accurate shooting, hastens fatigue, lessens resistance to disease and exposure, increases shock from wounds. We therefore most strongly urge you for your own health and efficiency that at least as long as the war lasts you should become total abstainers."

These positions are assumed because in the sober judgment of the governmental heads the use of alcohol makes for inefficiency. Inefficiency is expensive.

KNEE JOINTS CRACK.

C. J. S. writes: "I am a married woman, 38 years old. All my life, when I stoop down, my knee joints have cracked loudly."

REPLY.

What you meant to write was that you had noticed this cracking for years. It is probably of no great importance. Your joints will be efficient enough for your work. If you were a racer or a prize fighter the case might be different.

Probably this is the sequence in your case. For twenty years or more you have had bad tonsils or bad teeth or a suppurating nose sinus or some other focus of absorption. As the result of a long continued, low grade infection, fringes and other roughening of the membranes have developed.

Were this worse it would mean chronic rheumatism or rheumatoid arthritis. Developing as it has done in your case, it means that there is not much likelihood that any serious disorder will follow.

BABY'S SECOND SUMMER.

H. J. M. writes: "I notice reference in your column to a baby's second summer being a hazardous period. Is it any more so than any other summer, and, if so, why? Would you recommend any special food?"

REPLY.

It is especially difficult to hold a child to a simple diet during the second summer. During the second summer a child should have five meals between 7 in the morning and 7 in the evening. The diet lists should be made up from milk, dry toast, crackers, cereal, rice, eggs, a little meat, orange juice and other fruit juices, butter, soups, and a few vegetables, such as spinach, asparagus, new peas and potatoes.

MUST BE CONTROLLED.

M. K. A. writes: "Will you please tell me what to do for a person with hysterics? This person goes into hysterics when crossed or denied anything we are unable to give her."

REPLY.

Have a very careful examination made. It may be advisable to take her into court. She must be controlled.

If examination shows that she has dementia precox she should be restrained according to the methods employed with the insane.

If, as you have guessed, and is probable, she has hysteria, the method of control will be different.

Apparently the family cannot control her. Others should be permitted to try.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

LORD NORTHLAND'S death on the battlefield last week in France, where he was fighting as a captain in his old regiment, the Coldstream guards, which he had rejoined on the outbreak of the war, is worthy of note on this side of the Atlantic through the fact that he had in his veins the Quaker blood of William Penn, and that his father, the Earl of Ranfurly, is the head of the Scotch house which furnished John Knox to Scottish history as the leader of the reformation north of the Tweed.

Lord Northland leaves two little boys, the eldest of whom, 3 years of age, will now become Lord Northland in his stead and eventually succeed to the earldom of Ranfurly.

The widowed Lady Northland is a daughter of the late Sir Daniel Cooper, so well known on the English turf and one of the leading members of the English Jockey club. She inherited a large fortune from her father and grandfather, who acquired enormous wealth in Australia as the ground landlord of the greater portion of the city of Sydney. He was speaker of the legislative assembly of New South Wales half a century ago.

Lord Northland's name at one moment figured quite extensively in the American press in connection with a divorce suit brought by the Scottish laird, John Alexander Stirling, against his American wife, who was Miss Clara Elizabeth Taylor of Washington, D. C.

It was widely asserted here that Lord Northland would marry Mrs. Stirling as soon as the decree of divorce had been pronounced. But the Scotch laws stood in the way of any such union. They do not forbid divorced people to marry again. The guilty party, indeed, may marry immediately after the decree is announced anybody excepting the corespondent in the case.

This rule is most strict and imperative. It dates in its present form in Scotland from the year 1600, and has always been most vigorously enforced.

It can be traced back to much greater antiquity, having been insisted on by the Roman Catholic church in early times.

Pope Innocent III. in 1212 relaxed it to the extent of a decree that on the death of the innocent spouse the guilty parties might be married.

The Scotch Reformed church, at the instance of John Knox, however, revived the rule in all its severity, and, although several attempts have been made to bring about its repeal—on the last occasion in 1890—it still remains in force.

Lord Northland was a man about 33 years of age and had seen a good deal of the world, having among other things acted as A. D. C. to his father, Lord Ranfurly, when he was governor general of New Zealand.

Besides that, he spent two or three years in Bolivia gold dredging on the Bani river, undergoing all sorts of strange adventures in the wilds of that country.

So much has been cabled to America concerning the sensational Slingsby legitimacy case, which has just been decided in the chancery division of the Supreme court of England in favor of Charles Henry Slingsby, a former lieutenant of the royal navy, and of his American wife, depositions to the extent of over a million words, taken on commission at San Francisco by the British consul, figuring in the trial, that it is unnecessary to discuss the merits of the affair.

It may be, however, of interest to state that the Slingsbys are one of the oldest county families of Yorkshire, and that they were already flourishing and in possession of their present estates near Knaresborough at the beginning of the sixteenth century, when Sir John de Slingsby succumbed to wounds received at the battle of Flodden field in 1513.

There was a baronetcy in the family, conferred on a cavalier, Sir Henry Slingsby, who was beheaded in 1658 on Tower hill by the parliamentarians for being concerned in a premature attempt to bring about the restoration of Charles II.

His headless body lies in the chancel of the old church of Knaresborough, which is close to Scriven hall, the ancestral home of the Slingsbys.

Close by the tomb of Sir Henry Slingsby lie the remains of another namesake of the family, the Sir Henry Slingsby who in the reign of Queen Elizabeth earned fame as the discoverer of Harrogate.

He alighted on a sulphur spring in the midst of what was then part of the Knaresborough forest, and he proclaimed its virtues to the world, thus laying the foundations of Harrogate's prosperity of today.

The baronetcy became extinct in 1867 when Sir Charles Slingsby, one of the most famous masters of the hounds of his day, was drowned with many other members of the York and Ainsty hunt, by the sinking of a ferry boat on which they were crossing the river Ure.

The Slingsby estates then passed without the baronetcy to a distant cousin of Sir Charles', who was rector of Kirby Sigston, Northallerton. He, too, was passionately fond of hunting, despite his cloth, and broke his neck while out with the Ainsty hunt.

The estates thereupon passed to his son, Lieut. Slingsby of the royal navy, whose marriage in 1910 to Dorothy, widow of F. Warner of San Francisco, excited an immense amount of opposition on the part of his family.

As the estates are entailed, and Lieut. Slingsby is in poor health, the Slingsby family determined to prevent the American wife of Lieut. Slingsby from having any share in the control of the property in the event of her husband's death. Accordingly it employed lawyers and private detectives to discover whether or not the child born to the couple at San Francisco was really their offspring or a supposititious child.

Private detectives sometimes have a way of producing just that sort of evidence that their employers desire, and this seems to have been the case in connection with the Slingsby legitimacy suit.

Indeed, Lieut. Slingsby learning that on the strength of this evidence the succession of his boy to the estates would be contested after his death, determined to take the bull by the horns and to establish the child's legitimacy during his own lifetime.

It is this that has formed the basis of the suit which has just been decided by the courts in his favor, mainly by reason of the extraordinary resemblance of the boy, Teddy, to his father and to his mother, and to his possession of certain marked physical peculiarities of both parents which could only be ascribed to heredity.

DISPOSING OF AN ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I am my mother's only son by her first husband, whom she divorced. My mother had property in Pennsylvania when she married her second husband, bought property in Illinois since then, and is buying property in Mississippi on the installment plan, the deed to the latter property to be made when all payments have been made.

1. Has mother's second husband a dower right in any of the property mentioned in the event that she should die first?

2. Is a dower right one-third in fee simple or only for life?

3. Mother has willed everything to me. If the Mississippi property is not all paid for in the event of her death can her second husband secure a dower right or will the court decide it is personal property? A READER.

1. Yes, where the second husband survives your mother and has never been divorced.

2. The surviving husband may renounce the will and take a dower, which is one-third interest in the Illinois property for life. By leaving the husband any amount regardless of its value the husband takes no other interest in the Mississippi property, but if the will makes no provision for the husband he may take a child's share of this property. Under the Pennsylvania law the surviving husband takes an estate of curtesy, being a life estate.

3. Yes. Unless your mother's will was drafted by an attorney who was advised of all the facts she should have another will drawn by an attorney who is fully cognizant of her wishes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WIFE MUST CARE FOR HUSBAND.

Prophetstown, Ill., Feb. 2.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Two old people were married a few years ago. The wife had a small home, while the husband had only a team of horses, and made the living for the family. The wife also took in washing and spent most of the earnings fixing up her home. Now the husband is getting too old to do much work and the wife and her children want to get rid of him. If they should drive him from home, either by command or ill treatment, can the husband claim any share of the property or of anything the wife possesses? J. H. T.

A husband has a dower interest in his wife's property and in the event that he survives her he will be entitled to one-third of her personal property absolutely, and a one-third interest in her real estate for his life. In the event that the husband is unable to support himself his wife is under obligation to care for him if she is of sufficient ability. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TAKE UP MATTER WITH LANDLORD.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me if I can compel the landlord to give us regulated heat throughout the day. The lease provides for steam heat. MRS. J. F. N.

This is a matter which should be adjusted by agreement with the landlord. Doubtless the heating system can be so controlled as to keep the premises comfortable if the landlord and tenant will cooperate. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

JUSTICE TO THE GERMANS.

Amarillo, Tex., Feb. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It is indeed a pleasure, and even the cause of a reversal of opinion that Germany is not so bad as some of the "experts" have pictured her in their gaudy "atrocity tales" when a person may read the article printed in the world's greatest newspaper Sunday, Jan. 17, by James O'Donnell Bennett, a so-called "open letter" to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

I have read Bennett's articles of the war since he has been writing them, and am of the opinion that his earnestness, straightforwardness, and fearlessness in presenting the Germans' side of the great struggle will win for him and consequently your paper hosts of friends and also more supporters for the Teutonic side. I believe that, after all the carnage is ended, and the historians pen the cause, progress, and result of the struggle, it will be found that Bennett's writings were but a truthful presentation of the German side, and will have been but a prophecy as to what will be found to have been the case in regard to their alleged atrocities and violations of the international rules of warfare.

It is upon these articles that the American people must depend to get both sides of the question, as the cables do not transmit the German side of the war, or certain facts in regard to it, to the American citizens, and it is gratifying to know that the publishing of such articles as above mentioned by a newspaper as widely circulated as THE TRIBUNE tends to offset and possibly have a more far-reaching effect than the at times utterly untruthful and unreliable cables from the workshops of the London, Paris, and Petrograd "war correspondents."

Your paper is to be congratulated on having in that important position and field such a man as Bennett, who is not afraid to print the truth even if such a celebrated personage as Sir Arthur Conan Doyle tries to convince the world of certain unmistakable untruths. D. B. RUPPF JR.

HYPOCRISY OF SHIPPING BILL.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—After reading for the third time the editorial on the "Ship Purchase Bill," my curiosity prompts me to ask you a question or two. Does your editorial come to the attention of our president, Secretary Redfield, and the rest of the "crew"? How can they, in the face of such criticism, continue their efforts? I cannot believe they are sincere. Without neglecting the lesser fry, it appears to me that the president is an unconscious hypocrite when he preaches neutrality on one hand or at one time and then endeavors to get us into trouble with his present fad. While I consider him politically ruined these next two years hold possibilities too grave to allow any relaxation of your task to bring him to realize his obligations to this nation.

As a reader you have my support in your fight on the ship purchase bill and every other reform you have advocated. BURTON R. MOYNE.

LITTLE WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED ON FARMS.

Plainfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The inclination to pile everything on the patient American farmer is so often in evidence in efforts to cure adverse economic conditions that I am led to take notice of the latest announcement from the department of labor in Washington. Like myself, every farmer knows that it is a good deal of an illusion to suppose that much relief for unemployment can be given in agricultural districts. In farm life there are two short periods only when extra help is required—one for the harvest of small grain and the other for cribbing corn. In midsummer the farmer can ordinarily find plenty of local assistance from the nearest village for the few days when he must save his wheat, oats, barley, or rye from inclement weather. In the late fall the corn picking can go steadily on for weeks without risk and requires very little more than the ordinary hands of the place.

Of late a great many decent appearing men are calling at farm houses in search of work, but really there is no opening for such unfortunates. The farmer's family, his boys, and his hired men are fixtures, as a rule, forming an intimate group into which the head of the house is loath to admit as one of the table and fireside circle a person of whom little or nothing is known. Experience has often proved the danger of trusting to strangers, and the old standby hired man is usually kept on hand, or at least in mind, for any needed assistance.

Just at present the farmer is almost daily sharing his bread with the man looking for a job who happens to call at meal time. It is notable that the caller these days is not a tramp, but an individual of evidently respectable antecedents. He commands respect and pity, and is welcome to what encouragement can be given him in food and shelter to his "weary, stale, and unprofitable" journeyings through long stretches of jobless lands. R. SIXTH WEEK TO SEE A SPEAKER CHOSEN, MAYBE

Four Possibilities Loom at Springfield to End the Deadlock Soon.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 7.—The coming week—the sixth of the Forty-ninth general assembly and of the house deadlock—tonight promised to develop both the climax and denouement in the legislative drama, which has held matters of state at a standstill since the first of the year.

Assemblymen returning to the capital are practically unanimous in their predictions that before the week is over a speaker of the house will be chosen and that body well started on the road to business.

Here are some of the possibilities in the situation as seen by various lawmakers:

The selection of a speaker through an agreement in the Republican house caucus.

The election of a speaker through a combination of Dunne Democrats and members of the Republican side.

The naming of a speaker by a bipartisan organization of Browne Democrats and "wet" Republicans.

The selection of a speaker who is not a member of the house.

G. O. P. Unification Unlikely.

Of the foregoing possibilities the unification of the Republican members and their selection of a speaker without Democratic support appears the least likely.

When the party caucus adjourned the last session of last week many of the participants were thoroughly disgusted with the situation and were ready to abandon further efforts to reach an agreement. It is expected that the Republican caucus will be called together again before Tuesday morning's session of the house, but there is no indication that the situation will differ materially from that of last week.

House Democrats who are friendly to Gov. Dunne and the state administration will make a supreme effort this week to effect a winning combination with members of the Republican side that will land in the speaker's chair a Republican not antagonistic to the administration.

The big handicap in this movement is that all the "dry" votes in the house, on both the Democratic and Republican sides, must be included in the combination.

Browne Men Are Busy.

Those house members who are following the leadership of Lee O'Neil Browne are active in their efforts to organize. Several of them already have expressed their readiness to throw their support to any Republican "wet" who can win, but up to the present time that much-sought-for individual has not been found.

Sentiment among the members, both Republicans and Democrats, seems to center upon David E. Shanahan and E. D. Shurtleff, both Republicans, as the two between whom final selection must come.

Reports from Chicago, where the recounts in the Eleventh and Twenty-third districts are conducted, indicate that Henry W. Austin, Republican, is practically certain to be seated in the Twenty-third district, but the outcome in the Eleventh district is more doubtful. Enough ballots have been put in question in this district, it is reported, to seat Thomas F. Byrne, the Democrat, in event the present Democratic majority in the senate sees fit to do so.

LAKE FOREST POSTAL VOTE FAVORS SUNDAY THEATER.

Council Tonight Will Make Final Decision on Movies on Sabbath Day.

Whether its one motion picture theater should be allowed to open on Sunday is the question agitating Lake Forest.

A postcard ballot on the proposition resulted in a majority of the voters favoring the open theater, as against the present policy. The council will meet tonight and is expected to take action.

a hospital, the two young women invested the remainder of their money in a railroad ticket and came to Chicago.

For three or four years the name of "Ben Rosenstein" has been carried on the books of the Jewish Aid society. The charity investigators reported that "Ben Rosenstein had tuberculosis, that he was too weak to do any work, that he was in need of medical attention."

Physicians from the society examined the patient, according to Pauline Rosenstein, and discovered the secret of her hidden sex. They offered to place her in a sanitarium in the country where she might recover. But they insisted she would have to be put in the woman's ward. The young woman would not consent.

In the meantime Pauline's mother, who did not know until yesterday that her daughter's "husband" was not a man, was trying to get Pauline to "separate" from her husband.

"He is a sick man, my daughter," she said. "He can't live long. You must get a 'get.'"

A "get" is the ritualistic divorce under the orthodox Hebrew church which a childless wife must receive from her dying husband if she wishes to marry again without the consent of her husband's brothers.

Ida Weinstein's first dress in six years will be a shroud. She will be buried tomorrow. Sam Cohen went out in the back yard last night and burned "Ben Rosenstein's first black suit."

Pauline Tells of Match.

Pauline Rosenstein, 26 years old, sat on a stool next to the stove in the kitchen of her home and told her side of the "economic marriage." Sometimes she referred to her dead companion as "him" and sometimes as "her."

"I have been working awful hard while she has been sick," she said, "sometimes eighteen hours a day, just to keep things going along with the money from the society.

"Many times I wished that I had dressed up like a man like Ida. I would have been willing to do it during this last sickness, but I was afraid. Ida was not afraid. I feel I have lost my best friend in the world."

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Four masked bandits climbed into the observation platform of the Palm Beach limited, southward bound, while the train was taking water at Stuart, thirty miles north of here, tonight, drew revolvers on the passengers, and, apparently losing their nerve, had the train stopped and escaped without firing a shot or making a theft. Among those on the millionaire train was H. R. Soudon of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bannister of Chicago, the former of whom is president of the Foreign Freight association, were on the observation car. Mrs. Bannister says one of the bandits thrust a revolver in her face so closely she looked down the barrel.

That Judge Harry Olson's nomination for mayor at the primaries, through the coöperation of the Republicans, Progressives and independents, is as good as assured, is the confident forecast made yesterday by David F. Matchett, manager of the fusion campaign.

Mr. Matchett says Judge Olson has not needed a long and expensive campaign to bring his merits and qualifications before the people. He explains that the judge's work as the head of the Municipal court has carried his name into every precinct of the city.

"Judge Olson stands head and shoulders above all of his opponents," said Mr. Matchett. "He already has done big things—proved his capacity, and demonstrated his ability to keep abreast of the times. He has something more to stand on than promises.

Has Made a Reputation.

"His record shows he knows how to get results. He comes before the community with an established reputation and with a record of public service which for usefulness to the community is unexcelled.

"Judge Olson is the standard bearer in the revolt of good citizens against misrule in the city hall. All the forces which in recent years have gone separate ways toward the common end—good government—are united in support of Judge Olson. The women of Chicago know him. They know what he has done in the great Municipal court for the protection of women and children. The poor and friendless in Chicago have known him favorably. Every one knows that he will do the things that need to be done. He's that kind of a man."

Thompson Asks More Questions.

William Hale Thompson, Judge Olson's Republican opponent, propounded another series of questions to the judge last night, chief among them being one seeking to cast doubt on Judge Olson's Republicanism.

"Judge Olson, do you hold out as a proper example for good citizens to follow your failure last November to register and vote at the general election?" asks Mr. Thompson. "Is it not a fact that you failed to register and vote at the last general election because, to use your own words, you were undecided as to whether the Republican party or the Progressive party 'would be dominant in Illinois in the near future?'"

Cutouts from the Political Reel.

Frank J. Wilson, Democratic candidate for mayor, promises "progress for all of the people and a healing of all differences in the Democratic party" in the event he should be nominated and elected.

Representatives of all clubs affiliated with the Polish Republican league of Cook county have combined in an indorsement of William Hale Thompson, Republican candidate for mayor.

"Put Mr. Thompson and Mr. Olson in a cage where they can fight it out," says Ald. Jacob A. Hey, who is himself a Republican candidate for mayor, "while we others face forward to victory."

Almost at the moment when John J. Sloan, manager of the Harrison campaign, was giving out the statement that the Sweitzer Italian American club had exploded, 150 members of the club were in session at the Hotel Sherman. Francis Borrelli, the president, says. He asserts that 70 per cent of the Italian voters are with Sweitzer. The club has branch organizations in the Ninth, Fourteenth, Seventeenth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-Nineteenth Twenty-ninth wards, where the Italian population is the heaviest.

After discussing the "deplorable condition" of the city's transportation service, Peter J. O'Reilly, a Democratic candidate for mayor, said: "I cannot say that the present mayor owns traction stock, but I can say that the elder Carter H. Harrison acknowledged ownership of Chicago street railway stock, and I understand the present mayor was an heir to his father's property."

The Harry Olson Physicians' club has been organized and it will meet in the Hotel Sherman Thursday night. The club will start with a membership of 150. Among them are Dr. E. C. Seufert, Dr. S. Dahl, Dr. Charles Windmueller, Dr. J. S. Nagel, Dr. C. C. O'Byrne, Dr. A. M. Harvey, Dr. E. M. Webster, Dr. J. V. Fowler, and Dr. H. G. W. Reinhardt.

Lincoln's birthday, Friday, Feb. 12, will be observed by the Republican Women's Harry Olson association, with a reception at headquarters, 650 Otis building.

The Twenty-fifth ward organization of the Woman's party of Cook county will meet tonight in Hamilton hall, 4737 Broadway. Miss Eleanor Coddington will speak on "Effective Voting," and Louis K. Phillips on "Single Tax a Natural and Primitive Law."

Fifty-five concerns on the board of trade are represented in an organization which is said to have 673 members, formed to work for Robert M. Sweitzer. James P. Molloy is president; Edward G Heeman, secretary, and John J. Leonard, treasurer.

Two converts to the Sweitzer cause were announced yesterday. They are Peter Smith, member of the legislature from the Fifteenth district, and P. J. Hearsen, who says his name was used without his authority by the Harrison managers.

The Alma Mater Sweitzer for Mayor club has been organized, with fourteen colleges and law schools represented. Matthew Hartigan, Alexander W. Jamieson, William J. Sheridan, Leo O'Reilly, G. I. Rossiter, and George W. Ziska were named as a nominating committee.

The Women's auxiliary of the Fifth Ward Sweitzer club will meet tonight at 1949 West Thirty-fifth street. Mrs. Patrick J. Carr, Mrs. Martin, John W. Rainey, Charles Martin, and others will speak.

The women's fusion campaign committee of the Thirty-third ward has organized in the interest of Judge Olson for mayor and Robert M. Buck for alderman. Mrs. Emma C. Sears is chairman and Mrs. A. J. Ahern, secretary. Mrs. John T. Ray was made superintendent of precinct workers south of West North avenue, and Mrs. C. B Miller north of that street. Members of the executive campaign committee are Mrs. Laura P. Young, Miss Elizabeth V. Gardner, Mrs. F. G. Dickerson, Mrs. E. T. Taylor, and Mrs. W. H. Whigam.

While the exact results of Saturday night's revision of the registration lists probably will not be known before this afternoon, the estimate made at the election commissioner's offices, based on such reports as had been received yesterday, fixes the number of names erased at about 28,000. That would reduce the total registration from 690,720 to 662,720. The election offices were open all yesterday to receive the corrected books from the precinct officers, but only a small part of the figures had been tabulated at the close of the day.

HARRISON LIVES IN YESTERDAYS, SWEITZER VIEW

Mayor's Opponent Charges City Hall Is Cluttered with Leftover Tasks.

In the municipal progress race the present city administration never "shows," in the opinion of Robert M. Sweitzer, Democratic candidate for mayor, who accused Mayor Harrison of inactivity in an address at Seventy-first street and Calumet avenue yesterday afternoon. Mr. Sweitzer said four years of yesterday's tasks were piled on the mayor's desk, waiting for the tomorrow which never comes.

Pledges to Keep Up with Work.

"If I am enabled to get at that desk as mayor I promise to tackle that pile of work, and stick to it until it is cleaned up," Mr. Sweitzer said. "And after it is cleaned up it will be my pride, as well as what I conceive to be my duty, to do the work that comes to it day by day.

"I have said, and repeat, that if I am elected mayor I will keep the door of my office open to the world. It means that the door will be open for those who seek to serve the city, for those who have ideas and ideals, and those who are interested in the progress of Chicago."

Report Harrison Banner Destroyed

Supporters of Mayor Harrison in the Thirteenth ward charge that a banner at their headquarters, 3047 West Harrison street, was torn down and destroyed. As this is the home ward of Robert M. Sweitzer, his friends are accused of the vandalism. That is the report made to John J. Sloan, manager of the Harrison campaign, yesterday, and after hearing the charges he retired to his private office.

"Let them destroy our street signs if they will," he said defiantly, as he turned to go, "but they can't touch the Harrison flag."

Beginning on Wednesday night of this week, there will be a meeting in the Ninth ward every night except one, including Feb. 21, which leaves only one other vacant night before the primaries.

WILKERSON SAYS JUDGES ARE SUBJECT TO CORRUPTION

Former District Attorney Asserts Courts and Police Should Be Taken Out of Politics.

James H. Wilkerson, former United States district attorney, in an address on "Enforcement of the Laws in Large Cities" created a sensation at the Elks' banquet in the Congress hotel early Sunday morning when he said that corruption exists among judges on the bench as well as among policemen.

"We should take the judges out of politics and the policemen out of politics. There should be one criminal court subject to one direction. We must consolidate the law enforcing power," he said.

CHEAP BEEF DAY NEVER TO COME, INQUIRY VERDICT

Federal Body Finds Price Will Mount Steadily; Economic Laws Only Cause.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—You may say "good-by" to the 12-cent round steaks, the 20-cent porterhouse, and the 15-cent rib roast. The good old days of cheap beef are never to come again to the United States. Instead beef prices today are lower than they ever will be.

For the first time the government will recognize officially this spring the American beef shortage as a permanent institution. No longer will the government seek to find a "goat" to blame for the high price of beef; no trust; no indolence or shortsightedness on the part of American farmers is to be blamed in the future.

Will Hold Shortage Inevitable.

Instead the government will give as its official opinion that the present high meat prices are due to the inevitable working out of immutable economic laws, laws which working in the past have brought about the present prices, and which, continuing to work in the future, will cause even higher prices.

There is no remedy, no escape. No amount of Sherman law prosecutions and education of farmers can avert the fate in store for us. There is no escaping the fact that the poor of this country must prepare to say "good-by" to beef except as an expensive luxury.

Such, but in more technical language, will be the report of the department of agriculture's meat survey now nearing its conclusion. A year ago Secretary Houston appointed a commission of eminent farm economists to survey the agriculture of the United States, explain the shortage of cattle, and suggest remedies.

Membership of Commission.

The commission consists of Dr. Beverly T. Galloway, formerly assistant secretary of agriculture, now dean of the Cornell Agricultural college, chairman; Dr. T. M. Carver, adviser to the department's rural organization service; Prof. C. F. Curtis of Ames, Ia., director of the Iowa state experiment station; H. J. Waters, president of the Kansas Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kas., and Prof. Mumford, head of the department of animal husbandry of the Illinois College of Agriculture.

While not a word of the commission's report has yet been written, it is possible to forecast what it will be on the data which has been received at the department. From a study of the material on hand no other conclusion can be reached than that the beef shortage is permanent and certain to become worse.

Pork Prices to Stay Same.

A remarkable phase of the investigation shows that the same laws causing the rise in beef prices operate to keep pork at a reasonable price, and no great advances in the price of pork are expected. It is pointed out by department experts, however, that with corn at its present price, hogs are now being sold on the Chicago market at less than what it costs to produce them.

Higher corn prices mean higher pork prices eventually, but this meat for years to come is expected to follow in price the fluctuations in the price of corn.

The commission in its survey has discovered that man and cattle are not compatible on the same soil. As human population increases in density cattle decrease in number. The breaking up of the great cattle ranges into farms is one factor, but a more important reason is the continual shrinkage in acreage of the average American farm, a concomitant of increasing population.

Christian Endeavor Anniversary.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 7.—The thirty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor society, which was celebrated today by branches of the society throughout the world, was marked in two Dorchester churches by addresses by the Rev. Francis E. Clark, known as the "father" of the organization.

SHIP BILL FOR DISCARD SOON

Foes See Death This Week; Friends to Make Supreme Effort to Save It.

GORE MEASURE NEXT?

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—The death of President Wilson's ship purchase bill will be recorded officially this week in the senate, according to the opponents of the measure. Its advocates will make one more supreme effort to save it, but they admit that they are greatly discouraged by the outlook.

The Lusitania incident will be seized upon by the administration supporters as an argument in favor of the expansion of the American merchant marine at once by transfer of available foreign ships to the United States.

Use Lusitania Incident as a Club.

The opponents of the bill argue that the Lusitania incident has only complicated the international troubles in which the United States would become involved if it should purchase the vessels of belligerents.

Expediency, not international law, apparently is now dictating the war policies of Germany and Great Britain, it is contended, and, therefore, the purchase of belligerent ships by the United States will be dealt with by the opposing belligerents in whatever manner appears most likely to damage the interests of the enemy.

Dacia Coaling at Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 7.—The steamer Dacia, transferred recently from German to American registry, and on its way to Rotterdam with a cotton cargo from Galveston, arrived here today for coal before proceeding across the Atlantic.

EIGHT YONKERS HOME INMATES SLAIN, IS BELIEF

Officials at German Oddfellows Institution Suspected of Part.

Yonkers, N.Y., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Even more startling disclosures tending to prove "wholesale murder," and criminal complicity or at least culpable negligence on the part of one of the officials connected with the German Odd Fellows' home on the Tuckahoe road were promised tonight by Coroner James P. Dunn as a result of investigations in three counties of the deaths of eight feeble old inmates of the home.

Frederick Menarik-Mors, as he calls himself, a former porter, now in the observation ward at Bellevue hospital, has said he hastened their deaths by poison.

Can Show Motive for Act.

If his story is found to be true, the coroner is prepared to show in each case why the death of the inmate was desired. From the other porters and from other attendants at the institution he has learned, he said tonight, circumstances and remarks of Mors which immediately preceded the deaths of the old people and which tend to bear out the truth of the man's confession even more than the poison and surgical instruments found in his closet at the Odd Fellows' home.

It will be several days, Coroner Dunn estimates, before all the evidence is whipped into presentable shape and then, he added, people will scarcely believe the revelations he expects to make.

Buried Alive One Theory.

One theory which developed today is that the victims were buried alive.

Chief of Police Wolf tonight declared he expected to be able to prove "wholesale murders" at the home. Coroner Dunn said Supt. Bangert had not told all he knew about the conduct of the home and the death of inmates. He also will call again Dr. Juster, with whose testimony he said tonight he was not entirely satisfied.

The most essential development along this line today was the discovery of the sudden disappearance of a signed statement which Mors made to Bangert at the latter's request. Lieut. Patrick McGowan of the Yonkers police went to the home this afternoon to get it for the coroner, but could not find it. It is said to be very important.

CO-ED BEATS DORMITORY BY COOKING OWN MEALS.

Miss Hazel Johnson, Suspended Because She Rebelled Against Table Service, Now at Ease.

For Miss Hazel Johnson, a music student at Northwestern university, yesterday was the "perfect" day.

Miss Johnson went on a "strike" last month in a protest against the meals served at Collegian hall, one of the girls' dormitories. Her protest resulted in her temporary suspension.

Yesterday Miss Johnson moved into an apartment at 722 Emerson street, Evanston, which she shared with Miss Vivian Rathvon. Miss Johnson did the cooking. This is what she ate:

BREAKFAST.

Grapefruit. Coffee.
Waffles and sirup.

DINNER.

Oyster stew. Apple jelly.
Chicken croquettes. Roquefort cheese.
French fried potatoes. Cocoa.

Miss Johnson violated her "home cooking" rule at supper, however, by dining "out."

OCTOGENARIAN A SEA HERO; SLOOP'S PASSENGERS SAVED.

Commodore E. C. Benedict Goes to Rescue of Southern Cross in Tropics—Takes Off Wreck Victims.

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Commodore E. C. Benedict of the New York Yacht club, according to information received here by mail today from the island of Trinidad, passed a part of the day—Jan. 19—leading up to his eighty-first birthday, putting to sea aboard his steam yacht Oneida and saving the crew and eleven passengers of the dismasted sloop Southern Cross and towing the battered boat back to Montserrat, a British West Indian colony of the Leeward islands.

All of the sloop's masts and sails had been carried away by a West Indian storm, and although there was still some food aboard the drinking water was almost exhausted.

PREHISTORIC times in world history are long stretches of a starless night. Only feeble glimmerings are anywhere discernible—like the occasional discovery of human remains, with their implements of the chase, their household utensils, their pottery, their crude carvings and rude paintings. These, indeed, speak to us, but with dumb lips that are eloquent only in conjecture. In his wonderful introduction to his great history, Larned takes you back to prehistoric times. It is alone worth more to the reader than volumes of ordinary history. It is as fascinating as it is instructive and should be owned by every reader of this paper.

LILLIAN WADE - SELIG

THE mantle of "Kathryn" still hangs over the Selig people, who do some of their most likable work in their animal pictures. Their jungle zoo establishment with its tropic settings and wild animal inhabitants is admirably suited to the business of facsimiling the life of the wild, while the Selig cameras do exceptionally nice work in reproducing it.

These pictures, like this one, are always full of an open air vigor, with a nice touch of the human interest element afforded by a child in danger—danger of an animated animal sort, plus the picturesque animals themselves, who don't invite in any observer a desire to chum around with them in their native fastnesses, and the fastnesses which are convincing enough to suggest to the watcher that their Location is India or South Africa, rather than the edge of sophisticated Los Angeles. Via these pictures one can go on quite a little adventuring without needing any further preparation than the dime in hand.

In this picture there is a little veldt home illuminated by two bright and shining children who are left alone together in a room. Likewise, there are a pair of ambitious leopards roaming about, it being a wild country in which the principle of freedom and equality is quite well established, and they roam thither to the house.

It is rather singular to me that the window wasn't barred, but, then, of course there would have been no story. It was not barred, and the leopards, being creatures of simple instincts with a strong predilection for humanity as they knew it, vaulted gracefully into the children's playroom. Little Annie, terrified, hid in the closet, while the leopards seemed quite satisfied to carry off the baby.

If one doesn't look too closely and too skeptically, there is all the thrill of the infant really going leoparding, and later it makes a number of very cunning pictures out on the wide branch of a great tree.

After much picturesque searching and some exciting shooting, the leopards are finished up and the baby is recovered safe and sound. Altogether it is a very picturesque and interesting bit of picture-play.

Studio Gossip.

Charlotte Mineau won first prize, a pair of skates, in a recent skating contest on the rink that nature fixed up in the back yard of the local Essanay studio. That makes her the champion woman skater of the company.

That nice American person, Ed Coxen, has been dislocated from studio activity by the busy little goblin who is forever catching the unwary with colds.

Mr. Bacon Jr., though only 8 weeks old, is getting acquainted with American studio life by some ingenue work, in which he is proving himself a perfectly natural actor. He has appeared in one picture a week ever since his arrival at the Santa Barbaran corner of this mundane globe.

Joseph Byron Totten, youthful, yellow-headed Essanay actor and director, takes a few days off every once in so often to run over to his little forty-seven acre stock farm at Pendleton Hills, Conn., where he specializes in pedigrees, illustrated by six horses, a herd of cattle, and a kennel of interesting dogs.

Here are some more picturesque figures that show the slope of the continent, pictorially speaking. More than 80 per cent of American made pictures are produced in California, and of that about three-fourths originate around Los Angeles, which is the center of the universe for about 200 companies.

Pauline Bush made herself into a jockey by means of a sure nuff jockey suit the other day and surprised professionals by her expert riding, which she is going to have recorded in the picture labeled "All for Peggy."

Little Miss Helen Badgley, Thanhouser child charmer, has a new little baby brother, who has in the person of his small sister an excellent example to follow in growing up picturesquely.

Ruth Roland, Kalem's erstwhile comedy queen, is to be featured by the Balboa company in a series illuminating the twelve vital questions of life, which it is said will require much dramatic versatility on the young woman's part.

Dusty Furnace Registers.

"WILL you please tell me how to clean the registers of a hot air furnace? When the heat is strong the dust rises in visible clouds through them, besides making the furniture dusty. I do not think it can be good for the lungs to inhale this, which, whether we see it or not, must be floating in the air.

"MRS. L. E. L."

Every hot air register may be taken out of the floor or wall and cleaned by emptying the accumulated dust, then by brushing it out with a whisk broom. Lastly, wipe with an old soft cloth. The pipes should be cleaned by a plumber. You may do this down to the first elbow. You are entirely right in thinking that it is injurious to health to inhale the fine dust which is always there. There are appliances to be had from furnace makers and sellers which absorb the dust and keep the air from getting too dry. A homely substitute is a dampened, doubled cheesecloth spread upon the radiator when it grows hot.

Test for Real Amber.

"I had a necklace given to me at Christmas which I thought was real amber. A friend tells me it is only a clever imitation. Can you tell me any way to settle the question? I hate to wear a sham thing, and I just dote upon amber.

"CHARLOTTE G."

Genuine amber has magnetic properties. Rub a bead with a soft flannel until it feels warm, then hold it above a bit of cotton wool or a thin shred of paper. The amber will attract the cotton or paper and make it stick to it for a moment. Moreover, real amber has a slight and pleasant resinous odor when rubbed with the warm hand or heated bit of flannel. In weight it is so much lighter than any glass imitation that you should not be deceived. Have it tested by a responsible jeweler and settle the point. Unless your informant was sure that it is an imitation it was not a friendly act to make you uneasy with regard to the gift.

Dishes With French Names.

"I wish I were better 'up' in French names for everyday dishes. For instance, what is a salmi? And what do you mean when you tell us to make a 'roux for thickening a stew or gravy? There ought to be a pocket kitchen dictionary for housekeepers in this day.

"AN OLD FOGY."

At the back of some cook books you may find a sort of glossary that will help you to read hotel and restaurant menus. A "salmi" is nothing more than a warmed over dish of game rather highly seasoned. A "roux" means butter and flour cooked together in a saucepan or frying pan and stirred while in cooking to a smooth cream. A white roux is made with uncooked flour. A brown roux with flour that has been browned by stirring it upon a hot metal plate over the fire until it is colored but not scorched. Since one loses time in explaining the process in writing a recipe it is taken for granted that the housewife understands how the roux is made.

Origin of Old Proverbs.

"You are so successful in tracing the origin of old proverbs and so obliging in answering questions about them, maybe you can tell me who first declared that 'Might makes right.' It looks, nowadays, as if more than one nation had adopted the motto. And one thing more: Was it Israel Putnam at the battle of Bunker hill who said, 'Trust in God, boys, and keep your powder dry?' I am sure I learned at school that it was.

"AN OLD BOY"

In Plato's "Republic" we read: "I proclaim that might is right, justice the interest of the stronger." Hundreds have said it since then, and, as you hint, thousands have put the principle into practice. As to the second query, you are rather wide of the mark. Oliver Cromwell is credited with telling his troops in crossing a river to attack the royalist forces: "Put your trust in God, but keep your powder dry." I am glad to be able to answer your brace of queries and thank you for your kind words.

Women's Shoes Offered.

"I have a pair of low shoes, almost new, size six, A last. They are in excellent condition, and the reason I write to you is that so few people can wear a narrow a last and there is no use giving them where they will do no good. I have also two pairs of high shoes which have been worn, but may be used easily and repaired. They are also women's shoes, size six, double A last. The low shoes are heavy, but may be worn with galoshes in winter. There must be some woman who would be glad to get them. If I could get at her and keep in touch with her I should be glad. EDITH H. D."

Shoes are such a heavy item in the list of a woman's wardrobe that the "economical woman" will not be "backward in coming forward" for the gifts. You will soon get into touch with a grateful recipient. Shoes "ripen" with age, as castoffs are as valuable as new. Let us know when all are taken up.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

Easy Date Recipes.

DATES with cottage cheese; dates with any number of cereals; dates in bread and puddings; dates with nuts, for salads, puddings, and soufflées; dates with egg or butter or sirup, are some of the combinations made with this most valuable of dried fruits. The date is nearer ready for immediate service than the prune, and there are more ways of using it by itself, other than eating it out of hand, than most people realize.

Steamed Dates and Cream.

Wash a cupful of dates thoroughly and steam them for fifteen minutes. These well mashed with a little cream, make a delicious dessert, and this is a good way to prepare dates that have been allowed to get too dry.

Delicious Date Jam.

Wash and stone a pound of dates and cook for eight minutes in a cup of water put on the fruit cold. Simmer a few minutes, then add a cupful of sugar. It is not necessary, but some people like the juice of a lemon added. If the fruit is at all hard the jam will be better if the dates are steamed a few minutes before they are cooked.

Another Jam Recipe.

Since dates, milk, and a cereal constitute a complete food and variety is ever desirable, some people prepare the following to pour over a cereal: Wash a pound of dates and let them stand in a pint of water overnight. Let them come to a boil, then simmer gently for a few minutes. Remove the fruit, add a little sugar to the liquid left in the saucepan, and simmer until thickened. Pour over the cereal and serve cold. Before the fruit is taken up lemon juice or orange juice may be added, but this makes it less safe with cereals.

Marriage Mistake Letters

Would You Have Been Querulous If The Money Had Been Yours.

"When I was married, eight years ago, I had several hundred dollars invested in what my husband thought to be a hazardous undertaking, especially with the existing management. So at his suggestion I withdrew it and turned it over to him, he placing it in his own business, with my permission, of course. In a few years his business, through no fault of his own, very nearly failed, and we have had to live on less than one-half of what we did when first married, and we both have had to work much harder than ever before to save the business from bankruptcy.

"I kept continually telling him how better it would have been if I had kept my money out of the business—that then I would have a little income for myself and children. Finally, after a violent outburst from me, my husband replied that there was only one course for us, and that was a separation, as he could not stand the additional worry I was making him. I went to my room in tears and about heartbroken. When my husband came home that evening I asked his forgiveness and have never mentioned my money since."

Little Jay, who prided himself upon the readiness with which our little dog obeyed his whistle, went with us to a neighbor who owned a fine old collie. Jay whistled for him to come, but he refused to budge. Vexed at our laughter, Jay stammered: "W-w-well, I can whistle for little ones, but not for big ones."

Women and Flowers.

Lillian Russell

[Copyright: 1915: By Lillian Russell.]

THE world is accustomed to associate women and flowers. Poets have sung of them in the same breath and artists have pictured them in like colors. Women, with their sense of beauty keenly developed, are disposed to surround themselves with flowers. Indeed, some women so constantly wear and have flowers about them that they and the blossoms are inseparable in the minds of their friends. One may be associated with the rose she so frequently wears, another with the violet she so constantly has about her, and still another with the growing plants with which she fills her apartments. There is pleasure in the possession of flowers, and it is pleasing to know that people associate you with anything so beautiful as a flower.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

GRATEFUL READER: It is slow and tedious work to reduce the bust. Any viborous exercise that involves the muscles of the chest will help to reduce the bust. Boxing and fencing are beneficial for this purpose. Exercises with chest weights are also good. In the beginning the weights should not be over two pounds and a half. The weights may be gradually increased to five pounds, according to the increase of your strength. Practice each movement from ten to fifteen or twenty times. Overfatigue is harmful. Gentle massage is also helpful. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to send you my instructions for massaging the bust.

MISS ANNA O.: A red nose is sometimes caused from internal trouble, such as indigestion or catarrh, or it may be from poor circulation. A great many persons are afflicted with red nose as soon as cold weather starts in. There is but little that can be done for it. Avoid tight clothing of any sort, dress warmly, and keep the ankles and feet warm. Avoid sudden changes in temperature and do not eat rich and spicy foods. Bathe the nose daily in witch hasel or alcohol.

ELSIE B.: Hangnails usually come from improper manicuring. Unless you keep the cuticle around the nails pushed back and free from the nail it will become dry and will split and peel down the finger, causing most painful hangnails. The instructions for manicuring are much too lengthy to print in the column, but I shall be happy to send them to you by mail if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

B. R.: Blackheads usually come from indigestion and clogging of the pores of the skin. I would suggest your going on a diet for a few days, omitting all greasy foods, pastries, sweets, and oily meats, such as pork and veal. Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables. Do not drink tea or coffee. Take lots of exercise in the fresh air. Keep the face thoroughly cleansed. I shall be glad to send you the green soap treatment for removing blackheads if you will send me a stampso, addressed envelope.

ROSE: Now that the prevailing style for evening dresses displays so much shoulder, it is necessary to have a perfect shoulder. Not only perfect from a beauty standpoint but for the good of your health and happiness. Stand erect, weight on the ball of your feet, hands on your chest, fingers pointing horizontally toward each other, with elbows on a level with your shoulders. With your eyes raised toward the ceiling, slowly bend your body forward at the hips, keeping your eyes fixed on the point you have chosen. Don't let your elbows sag. Practice this faithfully every day and it will soon correct your round shoulders.

Have you reduced your flesh? If so, write and tell me how you reduced and how many pounds you lost. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Lillian Russell, "Chicago Tribune," Chicago.

A Clean Mouth Promotes Health

Oral hygiene is quite properly focusing the attention of the medical profession as well as the laity. A noted authority is quoted as saying: "There is not one single thing more important in the whole range of hygiene than hygiene of the mouth."

In the process of sterilizing the mouth—destroying disease germs—dependence may be placed on Absorbine, Jr. This germicidal liniment has made good under severe laboratory tests and its use as a germ destroyer and preventive is becoming quite general. It is unlike the usual germicide because it is non-poisonous and is safe and harmless to use.

Prof. J. D. Hird, Biological Chemist, Washington, D. C., after an extensive laboratory examination of Absorbine, Jr., reports: "Four or five drops of Absorbine, Jr., to an ounce of water is sufficient to thoroughly cleanse the mouth and teeth of injurious bacteria, without injurious action on the teeth." [Complete report mailed upon request.]

Sold by most druggists at $1.00 per bottle or sent postpaid by the manufacturer, W. F. Young, P. D. F., 309 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Former Oak Park Girl a Bride.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 7.—Miss Elizabeth Wheeler Spalding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rawson Spalding of the Hotel Somerset, Malden, was married last night to Edwin Lewis Burnham, Harvard '01, in the First Universalist church at Malden. Nearly 1,000 guests were present and the affair was one of the most brilliant events of the season in that city.

The bride is well known in church society. She is a graduate of Oak Park, Ill., High school and Ferry Hall school, Lake Forest, Ill. She is also a Bradford academy girl.

21 Princetonians Coming to Wedding.

THERE will be a strong dash of Princeton to the Linn-McCormick wedding festivities, as twenty-one of Cyrus McCormick's college classmates are coming on for the wedding and the dinner-dance that precedes it the night before at the Cyrus McCormicks.

This dinner dance is the only entertainment in honor of the engaged couple, and the coming marriage pact. The bride-to-be declined all the amiable offers of friends who wished to entertain her with every kind of party from a ball to an afternoon tea, saying that she and her fiancé had decided not to accept any invitations before the wedding.

Thus it remained for Miss Dorothy Linn to inaugurate a new era among brides, and return to the old New York custom of the best society, in which girls about to be married are not seen about in public after the wedding cards are out.

Mrs. Cyrus McCormick is making delightful arrangements for the dinner-dance next Friday night in the Huron street house. The table laid for eighty will occupy the ballroom with its beautiful tapestries; musicians will be stationed in the little balcony, and one can well foresee the gay scene, the lights, the bridal flowers, the Princeton songs, the toasts.

After dinner the guests will adjourn to the drawing rooms, and the dining room with its beautiful modern French paintings will become a smoking room for the time being. When the ballroom floor is cleared the dance will be on. The McCormicks are all very fond of dancing.

Mrs. William R. Linn and Mrs. McCormick were two interested guests at the Chandler-Markham wedding on Saturday, sitting together and conferring about the coming ceremony.

Miss Chandler had great masses of the pulpit, erstwhile flowers of the spring, tulips, lilies, and narcissus on each side of but fortunately for the beauty of February weddings, that interesting thing called "culture" brings them to us now in midwinter.

The pretty maids in quaint yellow satin with white tulle sleeves and petticoats, wore flat hats with gay wreaths, and huge bouquets of the joyous jonquils, tulips, etc.

For a dull day, it was a most enlivening scene, and the bride was charming in white tulle with ultralong satin court train and a little coronet of lilies of the valley over her veil. Guests were very finely arrayed for the most part. Among them Mrs. Moses Wentworth in a closely fitting long coat of ermine with a small silver lace capote, and Miss Hamilton McCormick in a loose garment of dark gray with Siberian fur, were notably handsome.

Mrs. Thomas Lindsay of Boston with her two tiny girls accompanied Mrs. Lathrop, and Mrs. James Waller had her two little Borden grandchildren.

It was quite the thing Saturday morning to hear Alfred Noyes, the English poet. North side girls were plentiful in his crowded audience in Fullerton hall.

Mr. Noyes is a tall blonde of the short haired, conventional type to be found in any British drawing room, the only poetical thing about him being his poetry which was very inspiring.

By request he gave "The Barrel Organ" and "The Highwayman." In his treatise on "The Future of Poetry," Mr. Noyes said a person in England thought he had a new name of three syllables for God—that name was Bernard Shaw.

Mrs. John Marshall Clark had as her guests Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kohlsaat.

Mrs. Marshall Field's box, which never is vacant during her prolonged absences from the city, was occupied by Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, the Misses Suzanne, Emily, and Ellen Ryerson, Abram Poole, David Adler, and Henry Dangler.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Smith had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Lucius O. Baird and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Coburn.

Charles L. Hutchinson had with him in his box Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Goldsmith and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Barnes had a party consisting of Miss Della Patterson, Harold Titus, and Rudolph Reuter.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Budhue were in the McCormick box.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Faber, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Newton were together in a box. Mrs. Frederick Stock, Mrs. F. J. Wessels, and Mrs. H. Herman made up a party.

Among those in the body of the house were Miss Elizabeth Wallace, Miss Shirley Farr, Miss Gertrude O'Meara, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton F. Summy, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henderson, Prof. and Mrs. R. G. Moulton, Dwight Elmendorf, Prof. and Mrs. John M. Clapp of Lake Forest.

Gossip of Plays and Players

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

ROMANCE among the players continues its strange, irregular rhythm. The irresolute Miss Nora Bayes now seeks to divest herself of her latest if not her last husband, Mr. Harry Corson Clarke, and asks for a divorce from him for one reason and another. This is the third time that Miss Bayes has beat her wings against the bars of matrimony. A Mr. Gaessing, a merchant, was her first gaoler; Mr. Jack Norworth was her second.

Miss Bayes' sister chanteuse, Miss Eva Tanguay, also looks back peevishly at what happened to her at the altar. Mr. "Johnny" Ford, who dances, did not suit her, and so she has returned him to a previous wife, Miss Mayme Gehrue, who is scrutinizing him again with a view to taking him back.

Mr. C. Morton Horne, who has been singing the soft songs in "The Follies," has sailed for England to take up arms against the predacious Teuton. Mr. Horne has the voice and the figure of an oboe, and if he is as effective in the battle cry as he was in the roundelay, the war is practically over.

"Children of Earth," by Miss Alice Brown, will cease to exist as an entertainment after next Saturday. This was the play for which the verdant Mr. Winthrop Ames paid a price of $10,000 at the suggestion of Adolph Klabber, erstwhile New York dramatic critic, and Augustus Thomas, former New York playwright, who regarded it as the best of many contributions to a contest.

Mr. William Anthony McGuire, the most eminent of the dramatists in the Wilson avenue district, has written a war play called "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." It is being presented in the hamlets of New Jersey under the direction of Mr. Gus Hill, one of the overlords of burlesque.

Granville Barker seems to have left his repertory idea on the doorstep of the serious drama in New York, and is now in breathless pursuit of the coin. Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" is a financial success, and all the other Granville Barker productions have been declared off.

Mr. B. Iden Payne, who insolently obtruded Sheridan's "The Critic" on New York, will do so no more after tonight. He is now en route to Boston, there to joine his wife, Miss Mona Limerick, in the performance of the perfect plays which prosper in that community.

"The Trap," a collaboration by Richard Harding Davis and Jules Eckert Goodman, is at last to be produced with a cast including Miss Martha Hedmore, Tully Marshall, David Powell, Holbrook Blinn, William Riley Hatch, and Elaine Hammerstein, whose father is the financial sponsor of the enterprise.

"Cardui' Patten Feared Criticism?

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

FEAR of impending criticism from the religious press of the Methodist denomination is believed to be the cause of the resignation of John A. Patten of Chattanooga, Tenn., from the chairmanship of the book committee and other official positions in the Methodist Episcopal church which he holds, as announced yesterday morning in THE TRIBUNE.

The reason for his resignation, given in the telegram which came from Chattanoogs, Mr. Patten's home city, as expressed by Mr. Patten, is his desire to relieve the church from embarrassment during the suit for libel for $300,000 which he has instituted against the Journal of the American Medical association soon to begin in Chicago.

A paper signed by sixty ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago and Illinois is printed in the current issue of the Epworth Herald now in the mails, which demands action against Mr. Patten on the ground that the "Wine of Cardui," manufactured by the Chattanooga Medical company, of which Mr. Patten is the chief owner, is composed of 20 per cent alcohol.

The same criticism on Mr. Patten, the Epworth Herald says, is to be printed this week in the Northwestern Christian Advocate of Chicago, the Western Christian Advocate of Cincinnati, the Zion's Herald of Boston, the Central Christian Advocate of Kansas City, the Southwestern Christian Advocate of New Orleans, and perhaps in other church papers.

Mr. Patten is chairman of the book committee which supervises the publication of these and other papers of the church, and it is believed that knowledge of the forthcoming attack from papers of his own church is the real reason which induced Mr. Patten to resign.

OBITUARY.

"PRINCE HENRY," RECORD SHOE SALESMAN, IS DEAD.

H. Luetkenhus, Who Had Sold as High as $100,000 Worth of Shoes in Year, Is Stricken.

Henry Luetkenhus, known as "Prince Henry" to the shoe trade of Chicago, to which he had been known to sell as much as $100,000 worth of shoes in a year, died at 3437 Bishop street yesterday.

He came to Chicago from Germany, where his family had aristocratic connections and he had served as a lieutenant in the army in 1881, and soon afterwards began to sell shoes. A. S. Kreider of the Kreider-Cushman company, for whom he was engaged in selling at the time of his death, said he had a wider acquaintance than any other salesman in the city. He owned a shoe store at 3051 South Ashland avenue, but still persisted in working as a salesman.

He is survived by a widow and two step-children. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning from St. Augustine's church, Fifty-fifth and Laflin streets.

ERNEST WIEDEL, one of the old time druggists of the northwest side, for many years in business at Chicago avenue and Paulina street, died yesterday at 1220 North Hoyne avenue. For the last six years he had been connected with the state food commission.

JOHN J. O'BRIEN, chief engineer for Marshall Field & Co. died yesterday at 5733 South Marshfield avenue. He is survived by his wife and four children.

Christian Endeavor day was observed in Chicago churches of various denominations yesterday.

Clergymen of Congregational, Christian, Reformed Episcopal, Lutheran, and Presbyterian churches lauded the movement in their sermons.

Plans were outlined in the churches for the clergymen to cooperate with the committee arranging for the entertainment of the world's and international Christian Endeavor convention, which will be held in the Coliseum July 7 to July 12.

Redfern Corsets

Not how much we sell you, but how well we please you.

The fashion of the hour finds its counterpart in Redfern Corsets of latest design. Trim, graceful and well-boned, they are a welcome relief from the shapeless vogue of seasons past. The natural curves of a beautiful figure are again conserved by the new Redfern models.

A most pleasing variety affords you a choice of either laced-back or laced-front patterns best suited to your individual figure. In all styles ground top clasps are used, insuring soft flexibility over the diaphragm. An added comfort in the laced-front style is the patented protecting shield which is attached beneath the lacing.

EDWARD TILDEN'S FUNERAL HELD IN BOYHOOD HOME

Special Train Carries Chicago Friends to Services Over Late Packer.

The funeral of Edward Tilden, banker, packer and politician, was held yesterday at Delavan, Wis., the boyhood home of Mr. Tilden.

The sermon by the Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, was a brief description of the career of the late millionaire packer, touching on the charitable nature of the man whose friends throughout the United States were numbered by the thousands.

The services were conducted in the town residence in Delavan. They were attended by most of the population of Delavan, where the picnics of Mr. Tilden had been an annual feature for years. The body was placed in the Tilden vault in the cemetery at Delavan.

A special train of eleven coaches on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road carried 425 friends from Chicago to the funeral. Mrs. Tilden, Averill and Louis, the sons; W. A. Tilden, a brother, and Mrs. Tilden traveled to Delavan in the private car of Newman Erb, president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad.

Diversity of Friendships Shown.

Among the passengers of the special train, the diversity of friendships which the late millionaire packer formed was shown. Gov. Dunne was at the train when it pulled out for the Wisconsin town, but could not make the trip because of the indisposition of Mrs. Dunne.

Mayor Harrison, State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, William Lorimer, Peter Bartsen, Daniel V. Harkin, chief state bank examiner; State Auditor J. J. Brady, Judge Adelor J. Petit, O. E. Dyson, state veterinarian; Edward J. Fleming, secretary to the state's attorney, and Charles C. Fitzmorris, Mayor Harrison's secretary, made up a partial group of those in public service who have received the support of the late packer at various times.

Louis F. Swift, Edward Morris, Edward Swift, Harry Boore, and George Miller were among the packers who attended the funeral. Capt. Patrick J. Gavin of the Hyde Park police station and John E. Owens also were there.

Pallbearers Business Associates.

The pallbearers were business associates of Mr. Tilden. They were H. R. Bent of the Fort Dearborn National bank; H. W. Hardy, assistant treasurer of Libby, McNeil & Libby; Charles F. Bean, Libby McNeil & Libby; Thomas Cross, Armour & Co.; Charles F. Goepper, stockyards commission man; George M. Benedict, cashier of the Drovers' National bank; Fred Cowin, president of E. F. Cowin Co.; William C. Cummings, president of Drovers' National bank.

"FRAT" ENLISTS AS GOOD FELLOW

Lambda Sigma Phi Arranges Annual Fund to Aid Needy Families.

TAX EACH CHAPTER.

One permanent result for good of THE TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow movement is being demonstrated by the Lambda Sigma Phi fraternity. A short time before Christmas one of the members of the fraternity found a family destitute.

There were four children and the father was out of work. The fraternity was appealed to, and responded with enough money to support the family until the man found employment. Through the Good Fellow movement the little family spent a happy Christmas.

The plan was so successful that at the meeting of the fraternity yesterday at the Hotel La Salle it was announced the Good Fellow campaign would become a permanent institution in the organization. A needy family will be supported by each one of the ten chapters.

Each member is assessed a certain amount a month, which is either paid to the organization or spent directly for supplies.

"We want to show there is some good in a high school fraternity, after all," said Harold B. Rathburn, a member of the committee in charge of the work. "We hope soon to have each chapter providing for one family. We will take care of a family until the father obtains employment. If he is out of work we'll get a job for him. As soon as the family is on its feet and self-supporting a new family will be looked up and cared for."

WOMEN SLEUTHS HOLD NO TERROR FOR DANCE HALLS

Tangoing and Fox Trotting Mix Merrily with Drink as Investigators Work.

SOUTH SIDE VISITED.

Investigators seem to hold no terror for Chicago dance hall frequenters.

Despite the known presence of club women "sleuths" in several halls late Saturday night and early yesterday morning, foxtrotters and tangoers made no effort to restrain their danger line gyrations.

Dancers continued to drink freely and in at least one hall women stood boldly at a bar with men. In another hall masked men lifted women upon their shoulders and showed little ceremony in planting them back upon their feet.

Neither have policemen been struck with fear. One member of the force was found in a hall sipping a cocktail. He made haste to conceal the liquor, however, when he learned investigators' eyes were riveted upon him and his badge number.

Mrs. Merriam Leads Investigators.

Mrs. Charles E. Merriam, wife of the Midway alderman, led a party into the "open transports" of Walhalla hall at Thirty-seventh street and Wentworth avenue, the Oswald hall at Root street and Wentworth avenue, the Seventh Regiment armory, and the Coliseum Annex.

Mrs. James G. Bour, chairman of the dance hall committee for the Chicago Political Equality league for the Twenty-third ward, conducted a group of observers into north side halls. On account of a sprained ankle, Miss Kate Adams, head of Coulter house for girls, was unable to accompany her party on a tour of the dance halls in the 'old First" ward.

The investigators' observations show that the dance halls are used more for drinking than dancing, and that special bar permits tend to increase the drinking habit, they say. They will therefore ask the city council that liquor sales under special permits cease at 1 o'clock, or that all special permits be abolished.

Girls Kiss as They Dance.

Mrs. Merriam's first stop was at Oswald hall, Root street and Wentworth avenue, where former natives of Austria were dancing for the Red Cross. Both men and women were at the bar when the investigators entered. While the orchestra played at one end of the room men and women drank at small tables in the other. The space between were for the dancers. Two couples on the floor were not only active with their feet but with their lips also. While they danced they were free with their osculations and embraces. A policeman, whose number an investigator said was 118, was sitting at one of the small tables in the rear. He was eager to get rid of the cocktail in a glass, when he heard that "investigators" were in the room, they said. He shoved the glass containing the cocktail over to another table with the "investigators" had selected for their observation point.

Leopold Neumann, organizer for the United Societies, was in the hall. He had just delivered an address to the Austrians on their duties to the Red Cross.

Neumann Waxes Sarcastic.

"This is a nice respectable dance hall, is it not?" he inquired of the "sleuthing" party. "Now, you will go to the Lake Shore drive, will you not?" he asked the departing investigators.

"No liquor should be sold on the floor of the dance hall," said Mrs. Merriam. "The ordinance states that nothing but beer and wine may be sold, while whisky must be purchased at the bar. Even with Leopold Neumann, organizer of the United Societies, present, this ordinance is violated. This goes to show that private lodges and inspectors cannot control the situation, and the only way is not to have any liquor sold at all."

Masquerade at Armour.

At the Seventh Regiment armory where a masquerade was attended by perhaps 7,000 persons there was found an argument over the giving of return checks to dancers who left the hall. For a long procession of hatless masqueraders poured out of the armory at all hours.

The dancers, minus their warm wraps, and in thin ballroom costumes, endlessly were seeking liquid refreshments at a saloon at the northeast corner of Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue. The young people went trailing their costumes and yelling along the whole block from the armory to the saloon, with their return checks in their hands.

Soft "drinks" only were sold at the armory and the dancers were forced to make the journey a block away for the stronger liquids.

But most conspicuous were three girls in red dominos. Each was borne on the shoulders of her man companion through the throng. She made her elevated position secure by holding tight to her companion's forelock, while he held her ankles, which met under his chin. The girls accomplished quite a feat in dismounting from the men's shoulders.

Plenty of Room to "Spoon."

The Badischen Benevolent society had a "grand masquerade" at Walhalla hall, Thirty-seventh street and Wentworth avenue. Four girls in nightgowns and blue boudoir caps, carrying a banner announcing "Wir suchen manner" ["We seek men"] won the first woman's prize for costumes.

The thirty-fifth annual grand masquerade ball given by the Nordstjernan society at the Coliseum Annex was visited by the clubwomen from 1:30 o'clock to 3:30 Sunday morning. By 1 o'clock the place had become too cramped for many dancers. They had retired into the chilly atmosphere and darkness of the Coliseum proper. There they sat on one another's laps and otherwise demonstrated their affections.

A woman of 50 and two young men not half her age did not take the trouble to leave the ballroom to indulge in embraces. One young man hugged the woman with both arms about her waist, while the other embraced her feet. The woman's eyes were glassy from liquor.

North Side Conditions Better.

North side halls were inspected for the third time in as many weeks. Conditions seem to have improved, Mrs. Bour, the leader, declared.

At Mozart hall, 1532 Clybourn avenue, a costume ball was held. Tables were set along the walls and young girls flocked there after each dance for beer and pretzels. A room near the entrance was filled with couples drinking beer and singing. The costumes were decorous.

Three devils, two ghosts, and much beer were found at the mask ball given by a lodge at Yondorf hall, North avenue and Larrabee street. A girl in her teens wore a cowboy costume with a large caliber revolver hanging in a holster and a belt full of cartridges in approved western style. She made quite a "hit" with the boys. A policeman sat in the balcony joking with a pretty young girl for about an hour. He drank soda water.

Girls Display Hosiery.

Girls between the ages of 15 and 20 marched around in short dresses allowing a view of expensive silk hosiery.

One girl about 14 paraded wearing a combination of one black leg of a trouser and a red Turkish harem style pantaloon. Her black silk hose showed up to her knee.

The last dance was on at Columbia hall, 1537 North Clark street, when "visited" by the investigators. A large room under the dance hall was filled with tables. There was only one couple sipping beer there.

East End hall, North Clark and Erie streets, was the last stop. The newspaper drivers, helpers, and stablemen were holding their annual dance. In a rear smoke filled room sat about fifty couples drinking beer. Young girls painted and powdered sang, drank, and smoked.

NECK BROKEN AT PARTY ON DAUGHTER'S BIRTHDAY.

Aged Woman Has Fatal Fall Down Stairs After Arriving to "Celebrate" at Mrs. Lexow's Home.

Mrs. Amelia Faehnrich, 85 years of age, of 5131 South Sawyer avenue, fell downstairs in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Lexow of 5112 South Spaulding avenue, yesterday. When her daughter went to help her to her feet she found her mother's neck had been broken. She died before a doctor arrived.

Mrs. Faehnrich went to Mrs. Lexow's home to help her daughter "celebrate her birthday." When she reached the house she was cold and tired from her walk. Her daughter directed her to go to an upstairs room where there was a stove. The aged woman had gone only a few steps when she fell backward.

The police took the body to undertaking rooms at 5137 South Ashland avenue.

TONIGHT AT THE FASHION SHOW.

ANTARCTIC ICE SHACKLETON BAR

Sir Ernest Sees No Chance of Getting to the Pole This Season.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton, commander of the British antarctic expedition, sends the message given below. He left Liverpool on Sept. 19 and sailed from Buenos Aires, Argentina, for the Weddell sea on Oct. 26 on the Endurance with a part of his expedition, the other part being started on the Aurora for the Ross sea.

Ice Breaks Up Plan.

The original plan was for the Shackleton party to cross the antarctic ice over the south pole to the Ross sea, a distance of 1,700 miles, the two sections of the expedition to join next April, if possible. But the ice conditions prevented so early a junction.

South Georgia is a barren, uninhabited island, three times the size of greater New York, lying in the South Atlantic ocean, about 800 miles nearly due east of Cape Horn and within forty-five degrees of the south pole.

Text of Message.

"South Georgia, Nov. 30.—News which awaited the expedition when it arrived here finally decided me in the plans which I have now made.

"All reports show that the ice is further south than it has been for years, and that means that the pack has not broken up.

"I see no chance of our getting through this season by the ice report. It is so bad that you must not look for us until about the beginning of March, 1916, from New Zealand.

"The Endurance will return to South Georgia also about that time and do some work scientifically and then go to Buenos Aires.

Composition of Party.

"The party, I think, will cross the continent with me will be composed of Frank Wild, second in command; Tom Green, in charge of the general stores; F. Hurley and Dr. Macklin, surgeon. They are all splendid men and fit and capable of looking after the dogs. Indeed, they spend their whole time with the dogs, which know them and are amenable to them.

"One notable thing that has been done is the erecting of a set of true meridian posts, so that the twenty-one whalers and other steamers which use the island can correct their compasses. This was badly needed, and the information will be of interest to the admiralty.

What Chief Expects.

"Now, as to the future, what I expect will happen is this: We shall sail from here about December. That will give a chance for the ice to be breaking up in the south and we ought, with luck, to get a landing about the end of the month. If the ice had been up north we could have landed about the beginning of December.

"We shall at once investigate the road to the south, and if Filchener's landing place proves to be any sort of harbor suitable for the ship I shall put down both anchors and wait for her to freeze in. Then I shall know that the ship will be handy to take off the remainder of the shore party about Feb. 1, 1916. I am not going to risk them later.

"The ship will go north then to South Georgia."

Robbed by Negroes.

George Burke of 1744 Chase avenue told the Stanton avenue police last night he was robbed of a gold watch and $29 early Sunday morning by two negroes at Thirty-seventh and Dearborn streets.

FRENCH NAMES OUT OF FASHION

American Designations to Rule at the Chicago Style Show.

Paquin? Poiret? Mais non!

Smith, Jones, Brown, Fisher, and other good old Anglo-Saxon names will supersede those of the noted French designers at Chicago's 1915 spring fashion show, which will open tonight at the First Regiment armory. Real dyed-in-the-wool American styles will hold sway—styles of the people, for the people, and by the people.

Tonight has been set aside as "society night," and a special program will be given, as 300 living models parade through the sunken gardens built in the armory. The models, selected by beauty experts, will pass before a jury headed by Mrs. Lockwood Honoré and composed of Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr., Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, and Mrs. George C. Clarke. The jurors, who have been named Chicago's best dressed women, will select the winning costumes and models as to grace and beauty as well as utility of style.

Show a "Fete of Fashion."

The show this year has been styled a "fashion fête." The patronesses of the evening will be:

Mrs. Byron Lathrop, Mrs. Leroy Fuller, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. L. Armour, Mrs. Edw. Cudahy, Mrs. Aug. Peabody, Mrs. J. A. Carpenter, Mrs. J. A. Stevenson, Mrs. L. Bassford, Mrs. J. L. Cochran, Mrs. W. Salisbury, Mrs. John C. Black, Mrs. Glidden Osborne, Mrs. Richard T. Fox, Mrs. M. L. Johnston, Mrs. Tracy Drake, Mrs. William Yager, Mrs. Jos. G. Coleman, Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr., Mrs. R. H. McCormick, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs Chas. A. Hamill, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Bertram Winston, Miss Caroline Kirkland Mrs. Mary Walker, Mrs. Albert Dick, Mrs. George Ingalls, Mrs. H. Schwartz, Mrs. Thos. Friadiville, Mrs. Lockwood Honoré Mrs. H. H. Porter Jr., Mrs. Kay Wood.

Pure Wool Bill.

Recommendations to congress favoring the passage of a pure wool bill providing for the branding of all fabrics will be considered at a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America.

Mere man will come in for his share of the fête at a summer garden party to be given on Wednesday by the association at the Congress hotel, when lectures on the anatomy of clothes and a general costume clinic will be held. Charles Orre of Chicago will operate on a pair of "seedy" trousers to dissect cloth "tumors" from the seat, remove the bags from the knees, and extract the wrinkles and pouches from the legs. "Cures" for the "ills" in riding breeches and knickerbockers will be prescribed by T. C. Conlon of Charlottesville, Va., and operations on sack coats and vests will be performed by Charles Eberg of Baltimore.

22 COURSE WEDDING FEAST.

Guests at Batti-Frugoli Nuptials in Evanston Fail to Win Eating Trophy.

Twenty-two courses—count 'em—at a wedding dinner.

That's the way Nicholas Frugoli and Martha Batti started out on their married career last night in Evanston. The wedding guest who successfully partook of each course and did not appear the worse for wear at the close of the meal was to have been given a gold watch. But no one won the watch, and it went to the bridegroom.

The dinner was given at the home of Charles Biagi, a fruit merchant. Not only did he honor the bride and bridegroom with the feast but he gave them a half interest in his business. Miss Batti had been a clerk in his store for several years.

SAYS DR. BARTON OVERSTEPPED HIS VOWS OF CHURCH

The Rev. J. E. Walker Wallops Oak Parker for Criticizing "Billy" Sunday.

CALLS PASTOR UNFAIR.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

A charge of unfairness, inconsistency, and the overstepping of his ordination vows was hurled last evening at the Rev. W. E. Barton, pastor of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, in a sermon by the Rev. James E. Walker, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church.

Dr. Walker is chairman of the Chicago "Billy" Sunday campaign committee and his accusations of Dr. Barton were based on an editorial in the Advance, of which Dr. Barton is editor-in-chief, which was quoted in THE TRIBUNE last Friday.

Dr. Barton Defective, Too.

"Dr. Barton calls Mr. Sunday a 'defective' Christian," Dr. Walker said. "So is Dr. Barton a defective Christian. So am I and so are all of us defective Christians. This does not warrant Dr. Barton in overstepping his ordination vows and judging Mr. Sunday in an unChristian way.

"Dr. Barton said of Mr. Sunday's talk in the conference which followed his address given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium that it was 'shrewd, boorish, shifty, and rude.'

"Of course only the few who were in the conference heard what was said, but my feeling and the feeling of others with whom I have talked was that Mr. Sunday's remarks and manner had none of these characteristics Dr. Barton charges him with.

Heard "Billy" Once.

"Dr. Barton says he heard Mr. Sunday once. Would Dr. Barton like to be judged by the editorial he wrote against Mr. Sunday and by nothing else? Judged by that editorial alone Dr. Barton is a very inconsistent, unfair, and disgruntled individual, but we would like to have our judgment modified by editorials of a saner and sweeter temper.

"Westminster college, New Wilmington, Pa., is called 'misguided' because it conferred on Mr. Sunday the degree of D. D. This college is the leading eastern college of the United Presbyterian denomination.

PHILADELPHIA OUT $100,000 IN SUNDAY'S SOUL HARVEST.

Evangelist Expected to Get $40,000 as His Share of the Last Day's Contributions.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Facts and figures compiled today show that $100,000 is the price Philadelphians will pay for the harvest of souls reaped by Billy Sunday.

It is altogether probable that the free will offering of Philadelphia will be at least $50,000. Out of this amount Mr. Sunday will pay immediately $1,000 to the members of his party and will put aside one-tenth for charitable purposes, God's tenth, he calls it.

That there will be other donations by Mr. Sunday to members of his party and to religious and charitable work is asserted by those who are close to him. It seems safe to say, however, that Mr. Sunday will take approximately $40,000 from Philadelphia as his share of the contributions made on the last day.

KILLS SELF AFTER BESTED IN DISPUTE OVER CARDS.

Edward Pavell, Evanston, Found Dead Following Controversy with Family Friend in Game.

A dispute over a game of cards is the only reason offered by relatives for the suicide of Edward Pavell, 26 years old, of 1811 Church street, Evanston, last night. Pavell was found dead in the basement of his home by his brother James. A bottle which had contained acid was beside the body.

Two hours before Pavell had taken part in a card game with his widow, his brother, and Chris Winters of 809 Foster street, a friend of the family. An argument arose between Pavell and Winters, in which the former was bested.

He left the table and walked into the kitchen, followed by his brother. The latter thwarted an attempt he made at that time to swallow some poison from a bottle which he had taken from the pantry.

The Evanston police were unable to learn of any other reason for his act. The widow said it was a puzzle to her.

GIRL IS RAISED FROM DEAD.

Three Friends Give Blood to Revive Heart Action in Millikin College Student.

Decatur, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Taken from an interurban car in an unconscious condition after a slight operation performed in Springfield, Miss Camille Hawkyard, a Millikin university student, was for a time given up as dead this afternoon. With her pulse gone and heart action no longer perceptible, it was found that a leakage in an artery in her throat had sapped her blood.

Calling for volunteers among the girls in the college dormitory, three doctors transfused blood from three of the best subjects who volunteered, and late tonight it was believed that the girl's life had been saved, although her condition is critical.

Miss Hawkyard is 18 years old, a daughter of G. E. Hawkyard of Warrenburg, Ill., a prominent banker and land owner in Macon county.

Rhum Champ Loses Title, but Gets Away with Neighbor's Wife

Mr. Gibbons of Roselawn Puts a Good One Over on Constable Hatton.

Roselawn, Ind., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Frank Hatton, night director of public safety here, plays the fastest game of casino in town. Seven up, cribbage, and "500" are other of his specialties, but above all other card contests of skill and endurance he prefers and excels at rhum.

Constable Hatton—some call him that, although it is generally known he prefers the other title—was sitting in the parlor in Mrs. Ida Peterson's home last night when Clyde Gibbons remarked he was probably the best rhum player in Indiana.

"Got a deck of cards?" suggested Constable Hatton quietly. "Let's see how good you are."

Calls In the Neighbors.

While Gibbons was in search of the cards Hatton called in a couple of neighbors.

The neighbors with difficulty controlled their risibilities after a sharp voice from upstairs—Mrs. Peterson's—had suggested that 9 o'clock at night was a pretty hour for such cutting up.

"If you're going to catch that milk train you'd better be getting to bed, Frank Hatton," she cried.

The constable was too busy shuffling to answer. His mind was far from the milk train as he proceeded to puncture Gibbons' puny claims to the rhummy championship.

Champ Gives Up.

When the constable took the fifth game with a hit and a spread, Gibbons threw down his cards and went upstairs. For a few minutes the card players heard him tramping about.

"He's safe as if I had the darbies on him," said Hutton, when he heard the second shoe drop on the floor of the bedroom above.

But a half hour later when Constable Hatton went up to report fresh victories to his earlier victim, Gibbons' bedroom was empty. So was Mrs. Peterson's. A ladder leaning against one of the upper windows gave a hint of the manner of their departure.

Cordial Invitation Declined.

Hatton raised a posse and tried to get into the home of George Haskell, an old soldier, who, it was believed, might be harboring the fugitives. Haskell stuck a musket through a front window and invited everybody in. Then the posse quit work for the night.

Gibbons and Mrs. Peterson, the wife of a railroad man who is home seldom, had been arrested on complaint of scandalized women neighbors of Mrs. Peterson's. Lacking bonds, they were to have been taken to the county jail on the milk train, and Hatton, instead of lodging them in the calaboose, had transferred himself to the more comfortable quarters which they had been jointly occupying when arrested.

SHOOT AND ROB AS THEY PLEASE

Holdup Youths Wound Man in Zone Where Sleuths Cover Large Areas.

Only one plain clothesman is detailed to each square mile of territory between the river and Paulina street and West Kinzie and West Harrison streets. Three highwaymen entered a saloon in this territory yesterday, shot down the bartender, rifled the cash register, and had plenty of time to get away.

When the Desplaines street police reached the saloon at 1852 West Lake street William Thyroff, the bartender, was lying on the floor with a bullet in his abdomen and another in his left arm. He said two young men, one wearing a sweater and the other an overcoat, came in and ordered beer. One of them stepped to the side door and whistled and a third man entered with a revolver.

Bullets Reply to Stare.

He ordered Thyroff to hold up his hands, but the bartender merely stood and looked at him. The robber fired three shots, two of which struck Thyroff and the third shattered a large mirror behind the bar. As the wounded man fell, the other highwaymen emptied the cash registar of $5, all it contained.

"It's no wonder they can pull off these robberies when there are only six detectives in the territory between the river and Paulina street," said Senior Detective Sergeant Bowler. "There are six square miles they have to cover."

Several Other Holdups.

Several other saloon holdups were reported, and in each case the highwaymen worked in trios. Three masked men burst into the saloon of John Botka at 3031 Archer avenue, while eleven patrons were standing beside the bar.

"Line up!" commanded the leader.

One of the men took $54.70 from the cash register, while the others relieved the patrons of about $25 and a gold watch. Botka seized a revolver and fired several shots at the fleeing robbers, but they escaped.

CHICAGO HAS GHOUL THIEF; DEAD WOMAN'S PURSE RIFLED

Man Who Banks with Newsboy Swindler Takes $900 After Manufacturer's Wife Drops Dead.

The man who stole $200 from the purse of a dead woman yesterday is believed to be the same man who has been swindling newsboys out of their pennies.

Mrs. Helen Harms of 649 East Forty-fourth street dropped dead of heart disease on the elevated platform at Wabash avenue and Madison street. Her husband, August C. Harms, a cigar manufacturer, caught her as she fell and carried her into the station. Mrs. Harms had been carrying $200 in her stocking. A woman removed it and gave it to Mr. Harms, who placed it in his wife's handbag.

He placed the bag on a bench. The thief, taking advantage of the excitement of those gathered about the body, opened the bag, removed the roll of bills and fled.

SOCIAL DEBATE ENDS IN A ROW

Exponent of Science Calls Off Series with Pastor at Stormy Forum.

Science and religion crossed bats yesterday on the stage of the Garrick theater. At the stormy conclusion of the debate, Arthur M. Lewis, the scientific exponent, and the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, the religious contender, had hopelessly locked horns.

After a stinging exchange of personalities, Mr. Lewis canceled a subsequent debate, and told ticketholders to get their money at the box office. Mr. Tucker replied that Mr. Lewis had failed to meet the religious arguments and was backing out of the contest. The question was, "Can a Socialist Be a Christian?"

Tucker Explains Stand.

"Socialism is an expression of Christianity," said Mr. Tucker, "but not from the standpoint of the backwoods preacher. The possession of property does not give the right to dominate life. The psalms of David are literature's most magnificent expression of Christian socialism.

"The reason socialism hasn't succeeded is because the workers so far have failed to realize the full significance of the social bond as thoroughly as religion.

"Intellect is not the basis of social bond. A man has to feel and desire, and not only know. In other words, knowledge is not the basis of action. Science is not inspiration—it is merely knowledge. If a scientist is clever and uses his knowledge to the damage of his pupils he is a devil."

Mr. Lewis started the second round:

"Science and religion will never go along together. Religion is opposed to the intellect. The origin of a deity goes back to the boogy man of prehistoric times. The deity is the result of the fears of savages. The authority of the Bible is to be questioned."

Mr. Tucker replied:

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Lewis has so frequently interrupted this debate with reference to the large telescope which he has here on the stage. I heard his appeal to you to join his astronomy class by placing $5 in an envelope. Religion has always been against the fake scientist, the astrologer, and fortune tellers."

Never Can Agree.

Mr. Lewis' rejoinder was:

"Mr. Tucker came to me with a proposition to raise the price of admission for next week's debate. I wish to announce that I am so disgusted with this performance that there will be no debate next Sunday. All of those who bought tickets can secure their money at the box office.

"On behalf of a number of members of the Garrick society I must resent the references that have been made to 'fake science.'

"It is such instances as these that prove the fact that when you step from the street in Chicago to the inside of a church you step from the twentieth century back into the dark ages."

Mr. Tucker replied with a challenge to enter debate with Mr. Lewis at any time, and chided him for "backing out."

BOARD TO START $500,000 FUND FOR IDLE TODAY

Henderson Will Meet Commission for Conference on Campaign.

CORN CROP FOR CHICAGO.

The solicitation of the $500,000 fund to provide jobs for Chicago's unemployed will begin today. Prof. Charles R. Henderson, chairman of the municipal industrial commission, will meet with the members of the commission's executive committee at the Chicago Athletic club.

"We expect to complete arrangements at the meeting," said Prof. Henderson. "From the assurances already received the response will be ready. The money should be forthcoming. The emergency is here. The idle men are here.

"The economic waste is something terrific as long as those men are out of work. Think of 100,000 men out of work in Chicago. If they were only getting $1 a day that would mean that $100,000 worth of labor was going to waste in this city every day.

Year's Citizenship Needed.

"It is the object of the commission to insist upon a year's citizenship in Chicago as a qualification for a job. Our home workers must be taken care of first. By relieving the charity organizations of their present burdens in this direction they will undoubtedly be able to do more along other lines.

"The suggestion has been made already by one of the wealthiest members on the commission that the improvement work done by the men be first directed toward the poorer districts where there is greater need of clean streets and clean alleys.

"The suggestions of donors as to where the work will be performed will be respected by the commission, as far as it will coincide with the purposes of the project."

Back to Nature.

Onions and sugar beets and the stately sweet corn will be next summer crops in Chicago, according to James W. Calley, municipal director of unemployment, whose request through THE TRIBUNE for vacant land which might be given over to cultivation this year met with an enthusiastic response.

"The movement has a triple purpose," he explained. "It is a great step toward beautifying the city. It will make hundreds of unsightly spots in the outlying regions relatively beautiful. Then it will go a long way toward solving the problem for the hundreds of unemployed men in the city, and it will instill in many of them the love for the land, which is important in the forward to the land movement."

Needs Funds for Plan.

Mr. Calley explained the chief problem was not securing the right to use the land, which is readily given, but the funds to finance the enterprise.

"Perhaps the city will give us an appropriation," he explained. "Perhaps, too, the emergency fund being raised by Dr. Henderson's committee can be diverted in part in our direction.

"Chicago land is as fertile as most of the Illinois land that we hear about. Out at Seventy-fifth and Halsted streets a truck gardener grows ten acres of onions every year. Near Washington Heights dozens of small farmers make more than a good living at growing sugar beets. All over the city—even in the thickly settled regions—you will find men who have made a round sum by growing sweet corn on some vacant plot."

Mr. Calley believes the experiment will prove more successful here than it did in Cleveland, where the city was proud of the results attained.

MAN PERISHES IN COLD ON MOUNT CARMEL PRAIRIE.

Thomas Miles, Bookkeeper, Found Dead from Exposure Near Cemetery—Had Been Ill.

The nipping winds which sent the mercury to within fifteen degrees of the zero mark yesterday and converted the slush of last week's thaw into masses of snow covered ice brought death to one man in a prairie off the Wolf road, near Mount Carmel cemetery.

The victim was Thomas Miles of 1448 West Sixty-first street. He was 51 years old and had been a bookkeeper for Armour & Co. for sixteen years. He had not been working for a month on account of illness.

He left his home at 5 o'clock Saturday evening, telling members of his family he was going for a walk and would return in a short time. He is believed to have taken the wrong street car and to have lost his way across the prairie in the snowstorm.

His frozen body was found by employes of the cemetery, who notified the Hillside police. There were no marks of violence on the body.

GIRL FOUND DEAD OF GAS.

Miss Cora Barnes, Out of Job, Stuffs Cracks of Door with Paper.

Miss Cora Barnes, said to have been a victim of tuberculosis and out of employment, was found dead yesterday in her room at 1048 Monroe street. Gas was escaping from an open jet, the one window was closed, and the cracks around the door had been stuffed with paper.

HOOSIERS TO INVADE SOX DOMAIN IN CALIFORNIA

INDIANA MEN ENGAGE CAMP AT SAN DIEGO

Hendricks Gets Turndown When He Asks 'Commy' for Contests.

TOPEKA GIVEN TIME.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Comiskey's White Sox will have to share the sunshine of California with a rival baseball club this spring. It was learned yesterday that Owner McGill and Manager Hendricks have practically closed plans to take the Indianapolis American association squad to the Pacific coast on a training and sight seeing tour, making San Diego the principal camp.

As the White Sox already have bagged all the exhibition games in both San Francisco and Los Angeles, it will be impossible for the Hoosier crew to show in either of the large cities, but even that does not discourage the AA fellows. They have booked some games against the Vernon club in San Diego, and several other exhibitions have been dated in other cities of the state.

Hoosiers May Play Giants.

It is possible that before tonight a series will have been arranged against the New York Giants at El Paso about the time of the Johnson-Willard fight. Manager Hendrick has cabled John McGraw, boss of the Giants, who is in Cuba. McGraw conceived the idea some time ago of showing in the border town at the time of the big fistic battle, but was unable to land an opponent. Hendricks is willing to take on the former champions and wants a three days' series.

McGraw and his players will be at Marlin, Tex., about March 1. If he declines to travel the 700 miles to El Paso, Hendricks will attempt to induce the St. Louis Cardinals to go over from San Antonio or the Browns from Houston. But whether the El Paso series is arranged or not, he intends to take his players to the coast.

Sox Refuse Invaders Games.

Hendrick attempted to get games against the White Sox, either the first or second team, to be played in San Diego, but was given the cold shoulder by Secretary Grabiner, who, Hendricks says, seemed to think the Hoosiers had no business going to California.

The Hoosier bunch will leave from Indianapolis on the morning of March 1, when the reduced railroad rate to the Pacific coast goes into effect. The round trip for each man will be only about $62 plus the sleeping berth, and Hendricks figured that because of the cheap rates it would cost little more for his boys to train in California than in Hot Springs, Ark. On the coast there will be a chance to pick up some gate money from exhibitions, but in Hot Springs, he claims, it isn't possible to get a dime.

Western Leaguers Meet.

Magnates of the Western league had the floor in Chicago yesterday when they were called to order at noontime at the Great Northern hotel by President Tip O'Neil. After the meeting was opened, President O'Neil went out and left his club owners in the room to thrash out the schedule as best they could. They thrashed all afternoon, but hadn't decided on any one of the eight submitted by the committee when night came on.

Aside from the schedule issue, the thing of importance was the future of the Topeka club and the league took action on that question, deciding to give the Topeka fellows until Friday morning to be prepared to furnish a guarantee that they will go along. The club is in the hands of a Topeka bank, which has foreclosed on a mortgage of a little more than $14,000 which it held.

The Western will have only 154 games this year and although the magnates hadn't decided on the schedule last night, they may adopt one today or possibly wait until after Friday, when the Topeka situation will be settled. Those who attended were: Bill Rourke, Omaha; Jack Holland, St. Joseph; Frank Isbell, Des Moines; J. C. McGill, Denver; Ed Hanlon, Sioux City; Hugh Jones, Lincoln, and E. M. Ebright, Wichita.

Cub Leaders Start East.

President Thomas and Manager Bresnahan of the Cubs left yesterday for New York to attend the National league meeting there tomorrow and incidentally attempt to make about seven trades of ball players, besides trying to buy a couple of stars. They took blank checks along and said they were prepared to pay $30,000 for the men they want.

Manager Rowland of the Sox is expected here today to make final plans for the training trip. He is to be the guest of honor tomorrow night at a dinner on the south side, given by the White Sox-Rowland club, a new organization formed to root for Rowland and the Sox until a pennant is won.

STAGG RETURNS TOMORROW TO COACH TRACK ATHLETES.

The return of the victorious Maroon basketball five after winning the closest game of the conference schedule at Minnesota on Saturday came yesterday at the same time as the news that Coach Stagg would be coming back to take charge of Chicago athletics. The veteran Midway coach will reach the campus tomorrow, after two months' absence in the south.

"Old Man" Stagg will return to Chicago entirely recovered from the attack of sciatic rheumatism which caused him to direct his football drill of this fall in a motorcycle car from the sidelines. He will at once take charge of the track candidates. Coach Page will concentrate on the Maroon basketball men, on whom the Chicago fans are pinning all their hopes for a "Big Nine" title this year, and also will direct the indoor practices of the baseball men.

CHICAGO SKATERS ATTRACT CROWD OF 8,000 AT AURORA.

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Ice experts of the Northwestern Skating association of Chicago gave an exhibition of speed on the Fox river this afternoon which attracted a crowd of 8,000 persons. Seven events were put on, but fast time was impossible because the races were over a circular course.

The track was laid out between the Main street bridge and the New York bridge. Both these structures, as well as the banks of the river between the two bridges, were covered with spectators. The promoters were so well pleased with the affair that already they have begun plans to hold a national professional meet here. A new course will be laid out before next Sunday, when races will be put on again by the Chicago club. Besides the regular events today, Harry Kaad gave exhibitions.

I. A. C. FIVE LEAVES ON TRIP.

The Illinois A. C. basketball team started on its long western tour yesterday. The five will go into action tonight at Independence, Mo., and from that point will wend its way to the coast, where it is booked to play several games the latter part of this month.

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND.

POWERS ADMITS BUYING KAWFEDS

Eastern Magnate Will Move Club to Jersey City or Newark at Once.

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Pat T. Powers, veteran minor league magnate and six day bike race promoter, declared officially today that he had purchased the Kansas City franchise of the Federal league, which will be moved east in time to operate at the beginning of the season, either in environs of New York or Newark.

Further than the bare admission of the fact Mr. Powers did not appear inclined to elucidate. He intimated that full particulars would be announced within the course of a very few days. Where the Kansas City business will be reëstablished is now being considered by the moving spirits of the independent league.

Site Is Not Announced.

Two different sites may be had in or near Newark, directly on the tube system between that city and New York. It is said that Vice President Robert B. Ward and President James A. Gilmore of the Federal league favor an invasion of the Bronx.

A meeting of the eastern club owners of the Federal league was held in this city on Saturday, when the transfer is supposed to have been made.

The price is said to have been $60,000. Robert B. Ward, Lee Magee, and H. T. Brewer, eastern representatives of the independents, held a conference at the Biltmore hotel, but the parties in question refused point blank to discuss the nature of the business.

According to Jersey City friends of Mr. Powers, the former president of the Eastern league, who is to serve as executive of the new eastern club, was assured the financial support necessary to swing the deal by certain business men of Newark and Jersey City. The names of these men have not yet been disclosed.

News to Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 7.—Officers and directors of the local Federal league club tonight asserted they knew nothing of the transfer of the Kansas City franchise to Patrick T. Powers, who announced the purchase in New York tonight.

"James A. Gilmore, president of the league, probably has the authority to transfer the franchise without consulting officials of the local company," said Charles H. Baird, president of the Kansas City club, "but I don't believe he would do it."

Mr. Baird admitted difficulty had been encountered in raising the fund of $100,000 necessary to maintain a club in Kansas City and said that unless the money is subscribed shortly it would be necessary to make arrangements for the transfer of the franchise, but that so far as the knew no transfer had been made yet.

CHICAGO "SPORTS" HELP STAGE BIG COCKING MAIN.

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—What is declared to have been the biggest cocking main ever pulled off by Chicago and Wisconsin sports was held at Carrollville, in Milwaukee county, early today after the main had been forbidden in Kenosha county by Sheriff Andrew Stahl. Kenosha for years has been the scene of chicken fights, and the one arranged for a local resort Saturday night was to have eclipsed all others.

Forty birds were in Kenosha for the battle when Stahl got wind of it. He informed the promoters that every man at the pit would be arrested and sent deputies to guard the resort where the main was to have been held.

With the birds concealed in the usual canvas bags, the sports went to Carrollville. It is said that hundreds of dollars changed hands on the results of the battles, which continued until daybreak this morning.

In the Wake of the News

LOST—A LANGUAGE.

Where are the words of yesterday,
The baby words that amused us so?
Gone, as your babyhood will go,
Your baby pranks and your baby play.

"Peetah"—archaic and obsolete;
Now it's "potato," prosaic, plain.
"Reen" is supplanted by common "rain";
"Meme's" discarded for everyday "meat."

"Milk" has taken the place of your "Mawk," and "ba-ba" is now mere "bread";
"Wawa's" forgotten, and in its stead,
"Water," filtered, untainted, pure.

"My, how plainly he talks!" they say,
Thinking the comment gratifies.
"Yes, he's a wonder," my heart replies,
"But, O, for the words of yesterday!"

LEO NEAR TITLE; BEATS LA RABIDA

Victory by 10 to 8 Puts Team in Position for Southern K. C. Honors.

BY SAM WELLER.

Leo. XIII. council practically clinched the championship in the southern division of the Knights of Columbus Indoor league by trouncing La Rabida, 10 to 8, in a seesaw battle at Entertainers' hall yesterday. Gleason fanned twenty-two, and Colfer led the attack for Leo with four safeties, one a home run. La Rabida overcame a four run handicap and took the lead by pounding around five tallies in the fifth, but Leo staged a four run assault in the sixth that decided the game. Score:

JUNIOR DIVISION.

Pilsen Sokol.	21	Sleipner A. C.	1

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Seven new champions were unearthed and four grapplers retained their titles in the finals of the annual wrestling championships of the International Gymnastic union yesterday at Hoeber's hall, Twenty-first street and Blue Island avenue.

Honors in the senior division, which was made up of seven classes, went to the Chicago Hebrew institute team, which corralled nineteen points. The Chicago Swedish A. C. was second with fifteen units, and the Sleipner A. C. third with eleven. The championship shield in the junior class was won by the Pilsen Sokol aggregation with a score of twenty-one points. Chicago Hebrew institute was second with thirteen. The Sleipner A. C. and Finnish A. C., the only other teams to score, registered one point each.

Minkley Meets Surprise.

The surprise of the final contests was the defeat of A. C. Minkley of the Danish America A. C., holder of the National A. A. U. heavyweight title, by Fritz Larson of the Chicago Swedish A. C. Minkley was looked upon as a sure winner and his defeat was a bitter disappointment not only to himself but to many of his friends, who crowded into the small hall.

After the big fellows had been on the mat for thirty seconds Larson secured a vicious head hold on his opponent and threw him heavily. The victor still held the lock, and he put the clamp on harder as Minkley tried to squirm away. Larson finally side rolled the champion, thus gaining credit of a rolling fall.

Ben Reuben Given Tussle.

Even Ben Reuben, the crack Chicago Hebrew institute grappler, holder of the National A. A. U. middleweight title, had to extend himself to retain his title. In his semi-final contest with J. Sukki of the Finnish A. C., the latter kept away from a fall for 8:07, the longest time any wrestler had stayed on the mat with Reuben in these championships for the last five years. When it came to the final bout with his teammate, Walter Mauer, the pair wrestled ten minutes and Reuben was given the decision. He was content to let Mauer stay the limit.

In the junior division all wrestlers who won in their classes are new champions. In the senior class the new title holders are Knut Anderson, M. Nygaard, and Fritz Larson.

Ernst Kartje acted as referee of all the contests and his officiating gave satisfaction. Considering that rolling and flying falls count in this tourney, the work of the arbiter is not of the easiest kind. William Hale Thompson, Republican candidate for mayor, who presented the shield for the winning team in the senior division, delivered a short speech during the bouts.

The leaders of the two big downtown leagues, the City and Randolph, lengthened their lead, and the Edelweiss team in the Colonna league did likewise. Standings in local leagues:

Survivors of the first round of play in the Chicago High School Basketball league tournament last Saturday will engage in a further elimination series next Saturday, when four games will be staged in each of the three divisions. The draw for these contests has been made, but the committee will select the gymnasiums at a meeting this afternoon. No team will play on its own floor.

The field after the second round will be reduced to four teams in each section, and on the third Saturday of the month the semi-finals will be played. On the final Saturday the championship contests will be scheduled. Forty-five teams started the tournament, but only twenty-four remained after the preliminary round. Several drew byes.

Some dissatisfaction was expressed by the losers, who were forced out of the tournament after playing just one game all season. Only tournament form of play was permissible under the new constitution, which went into effect at the beginning of the school year. Because of the limitation of interscholastic competition and the loud yell from the students, there is a possibility that the old system of league play will be restored.

The contests Saturday were excellently conducted, according to the faculty representatives in charge of the four schools. The customary "roughhouse" accompanying league contests in the past was not in evidence at any time. Not a single serious injury was reported among the 150 players who participated.

AMATEUR BOXERS COMPETE IN FINAL TRIALS TONIGHT.

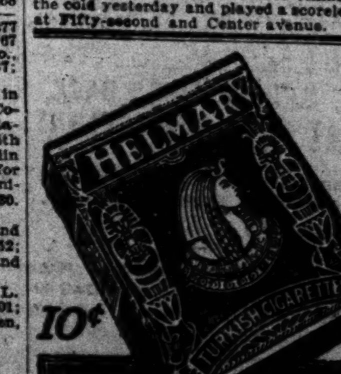

Final tryouts to select a local amateur team to meet Milwaukee boxers in a series of contests will be held tonight at the Forbes gymnasium. All the boxers who qualified in the three preliminary trials will compete. Only those who show the best and look promising will be selected. The bouts will start at 8 o'clock.

Johnny Ertle, the promising St. Paul bantamweight who is matched to meet Ruby Hirsch, the local fighter, in one of the ten bouts of the all star show at Kenosha on Feb. 15, is in Chicago to seek a match with Johnny Coulon, ex-king of the bantams. According to Manager Mike McNulty, Ertle is matched to box Gene Gannon in Milwaukee on Feb. 19, and he will be ready to tackle Coulon a week later. If Ertle wins these three fights he will seek a match with Champion "Kid" Williams.

When Willie Ritchie, former king of the lightweights, arrives there on Thursday on his way to New York, where he is matched to meet Champion Freddie Welsh next month, he will receive several offers from Milwaukee promoters who are angling for his services.

CHICAGO JUMPER LOSES NATIONAL "PRO" SKI TITLE

Omtvedt Drops Honors When Lars Haugen Wins in Tourney at Duluth.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Displaying the best form under the most trying conditions, Lars Haugen of Chippewa Falls, Wis., earned a total of 276 2-3 points and won the professional ski championship of America in the closing day of the national tournament this afternoon. Ragnar Omtvedt of Chicago, last year's champion, was not in condition and finished seventh.

A sharp, cutting gale blew at a nasty angle across the jumpoff, and the riders were afraid to let themselves out. While no one was injured seriously, a dozen riders sustained bad bruises and sprained limbs from nasty falls due to the wind.

Under such trying conditions no serious effort was made to shatter the world's record of 169 feet, made at Ishpeming, Mich., two years ago.

At the business meeting of the association Glenwood, Minn., was voted the 1916 tournament and all the old officers were reëlected. President Nic Nelson of Stillwater, Vice President T. O. Rasen of Chicago, and Secretary Axel Holter of Ashland retained their offices.

Henry Hall of Ishpeming, Mich., won the long standing jump record with 126 feet, leaping against the heavy wind in sensational style. Summaries:

Professional class—Won by Lars Haugen, Chippewa Falls, Wis., 276 2-3; Henry Hall, Ishpeming, Mich., 271, second; Barney Riley, Blair, Wis., 238 1-3, third; John Evenson, Virginia, Minn., 235, fourth; Nels Fiean, Hibbing, Minn., 216 1-3, fifth; John Bratlund, Ironwood, Mich., 228 1-3, sixth; Ragnar Omtvedt, Chicago, Ill., 219 2-3, seventh; A. Henrickson, Duluth, Minn., 217 2-3, eighth; S. Gustafson, Ironwood, Mich., 215 1-3, ninth; A. Bratlund, Ironwood, Mich., 215, tenth; Chris Overby, Duluth, Minn., 195, eleventh.

Long standing jump—Won by H. Hall, Ishpeming, Mich., 126 feet.

CALLAGHAN HURT IN MOTOR EVENT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—Jack Callaghan, automobile race driver, skidded through a fence in a 100 mile sanctioned automobile race at Ascot Park today, impaling himself on a board. Two ribs were broken and a large hole was torn in his chest. He is reported to have an even chance for life.

Callaghan was running third at the twelfth mile when the accident occurred. His mechanician, Victor Wells, was not hurt, and, seizing the wheel, he brought the car to a stop without damage to it.

Callaghan's teammates, Eddie O'Donnel and Tom Alley, finished first and second in the race with times of 1:41:15 2-5 and 1:41:31.

LEAN TO PLAY KIECKHEFER IN CUE CONTEST TONIGHT.

August Kieckhefer of Milwaukee, champion of the Interstate Three Cushion league, will play his first local game tonight, meeting Joe Lean at Flenner's. The young Milwaukee player is tied for seventh place, and will have to win most of his games on his present trip to have any show to retain his title.

Harry Quintenz, Illinois pocket billiard champion, will meet Frank Bradley in a 600 ball match for the championship play, starting tonight at Petersen's room, Thirty-fifth street and Archer avenue. The second block will be played tomorrow night at the Green Mill room, Broadway and Lawrence, and the third at Petersen's Ashland avenue room.

PUBLIC EAGER FOR RAIL BONDS

Quick Response to Issues an Indication of Improvement.

RECOVERY IS GRADUAL.

New York, Feb. 7.—[Special.]—Early last week, at the very beginning of a business day, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. made a public offering of the $49,000,000 first mortgage bonds, which only a few days before had been purchased from the Pennsylvania railroad. At the end of one hour the international banking house in question withdrew its offer, announcing that the $49,000,000 issue of bonds had been largely oversubscribed. That incident has a direct bearing on a question which has been troubling the mind of many people for the last six weeks.

When the railroads were told by the interstate commerce commission on Dec. 18 last that they could increase their freight rates and do it within ten days, instead of waiting the usual thirty, business men, manufacturers, lawyers, merchants, doctors, investors, speculators—in brief, the public in general—breathed a sigh of relief, adding: "Now business will pick up."

Business Improvement Gradual.

After a decent pause, however, the average business man began to look about and wonder why something cheerful did not happen. Instead of reading of the placing of long delayed orders by the railroads for locomotives, cars, rails, and supplies, the day's financial news was made up of such items as "Louisville and Nashville reduces its dividend," or "Receiver appointed for Rumely company," or "Steel corporation passes common dividend," or "Seeking work for city's unemployed."

During that period it was to be expected however, during the last six weeks general business has been gradually improving, and in a perfectly normal and natural way. The trouble has been that few realised how very ill the patient was durin the five months which began with August as a result of the complete collapse of the carefully constructed business machinery of the world.

During that perid it was t be expected that receivers would be appointed for a company like Rumely, which has been in financial hot water for more than a year. Dividend action of such companies as Louisville, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania (lines west), the Steel corporation, and Pressed Steel Car, also reflected water that had passed under the bridge.

To realize fully where we stand now in the matter of trade, it is necessary to compare present day conditions with those existing only a few weeks ago. The last three months of 1914 were absolutely the worst in the fifteen year history of the United States Steel corporation, net earnings for that quarter amounting to only $10,933,000, compared with $45,503,000, the high record for three months.

Figures compiled by twenty western railroads on Aug. 1, or just as the war began, showed that 90,000 men, or 10 per cent of their entire force, had been discharged. On the same day the pay rolls of thirty-four western concerns manufacturing railway equipment and supplies showed a reduction of 57,000 men, or 64 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year. That conditions steadily grew worse after Aug. 1 is shown by the Steel corporation's tonnage figures.

Improvement Pointed Out.

Now, consider what has happened during the last few weeks. By Dec. 12 the situation had so righted itself that the stock exchange was reopened. That gave a certain percentage of business men confidence. Six days later the interstate commerce commission handed down its freight rate decision, and thus added greatly to the general recovery.

Before the close of that month there were other developments of a similar character, with the net result that on Dec. 31 the Steel corporation had on its books unfilled orders of 3,836,643 tons, an increase of 512,051 tons for the month, and the first gain reported since July. Next Wednesday the company will give out its tonnage figures as of Jan. 31, and the statement will certainly show an increase over the 3,836,643 tons of unfilled orders as of Dec. 31.

The widely diversified railway equipment and supply industry also affords unusual opportunities for judging general trade conditions. Since Jan. 1 the railroads have quietly come into the market for locomotives, freight cars, rails, and supplies. That is not a matter of opinion; it is a matter of fact.

Railroads Need Money.

To come back to this week's bond offering, the railroads have not placed the orders that many people expected would immediately follow the freight rate decision of Dec. 18, simply because they did not have the necessary money and could not get it.

Within the last few weeks, however, the growing demand of investors for good railway bonds has increased to such an extent that it was only necessary to keep the subscription list for a $49,000,000 issue open for one hour. Because of that increased investment demand Lackawanna has just sold $5,000,000 bonds, Illinois Central $10,000,000, and Erie will shortly sell $18,400,000, and St. Paul $30,000,000. New York Central is figuring on a $100,000,000 issue.

PLAN BURIAL OF MRS. VOLIVA

Zion City, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Special.]—The body of Mrs. Mollie Steele Voliva, wife of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, will not be buried in Mount Olivet cemetery. A grave has been dug in the park adjoining the Tabernacle, which has been set aside as a site for the large new temple that Voliva proposes to build. It is probable that the remains of Dowie, the late overseer, also will be removed to the temple park site. While Mrs. Voliva's funeral will not be held until this afternoon, a preliminary funeral sermon was delivered today by Apostle E. L. Carey.

WOE TO ALL LOOP JAGS.

Drunken men taken to the Central station are to be locked up on charges of disorderly conduct, instead of being allowed the use of the cells to sleep themselves sober, according to Lieut. James McMahon.

Asks More Convicts on Roads.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Employment on highways and greater liberties for convicts are recommended in a report prepared by John B. Riley, state superintendent of prisons. Convict labor last summer saved the state $100,000, Supt. Riley says. Six hundred and ninety-four convicts were employed in the various camps.

ALLIES AGREE TO MERGE DEBTS

Action of Financial Ministers in Paris Stimulates Stocks There.

BRITAIN FEELS DRAIN.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Feb. 7.—The chief financial interest in France during the last few days centered in the conference between the finance ministers of France, England, and Russia. The intention was manifested of coming to a cordial understanding in financial matters, affecting themselves and other states already in alliance with them or likely to join.

The chief points of agreement include the determination of the three powers to make common cause with respect to financial as well as military resources until victory is assured. They will assume collectively and in equal parts all money advances made or to be made by states fighting with the three great powers or those ready to enter into contest by their side.

Questions affecting the relations between issues of the banks of France, Great Britain, and Russia were framed in the shape of a banking entente and also the issue of a loan at the opportune time in the name of those states.

Act on Russian Rouble.

One of the most important matters discussed and of urgent necessity was an agreement to take steps to raise the exchange of the Russian rouble, which has declined considerably since the war, as near as may be possible, to parity of exchange with the allies.

These financial arrangements between the allied governments have seemed also to stimulate the languishing stock market, and thus certain securities derived a notable advantage. French national funds were the principal gainers, the 3 per cent rentes gaining a half franc. This rise was partly also the result of last low levels, and consequent demand for this stock, which finished at 72 francs 75 centimes.

The 3½ per cent rentes also were active on the certainty of this loan being merged in the coming great issue of French treasury 5 per cent bonds. This rente made an advance on Saturday of about a third of a point to 89 francs, but redeemable 3s were unquoted and unchanged at 78.

Situation in Britain.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Feb. 7.—There was a rise of $30,000,000 in "other deposits" in the Bank of England last week. This was despite the payment of another call on the war loan, but it must be taken in consideration that government disbursements caused a fall of $45,000,000 in government deposits.

Thus it is apparent that a large part of the government disbursements are returned to the bank in the form of "other deposits" and if the record of the last five months is examined the evidence is that since the beginning of the year payments on the war loan have caused a steady drain on the public's resources.

Outside of the government's purposes the demand for money grows less week by week in comparison with the huge amounts available, and rates steadily fall.

HIDE PRICES HIGH; TANNERS OUT OF FUTURE MARKET.

The Chicago Daily Hide Report gives the following review of the market last week:

Fairly liberal orders are going around the market for popular weights of hides provided prompt deliveries can be guaranteed. Tanners decline to anticipate the future demand for leather on account of the high prices prevailing for raw materials and the poor quality of stock now coming forward.

Country heavy hides sold at 20½c for choice, free of grub stock. Buff weights moved at 20c and this rate is bid and declined for further lots. Regular country extremes without restrictions sold at 20½c. This is bid for more for prompt shipment. Sales of choice extremes were effected up to 21c. Bulls display a firm front on account of the cheapness and adaptability for sole and harness leather purposes. Branded hides remain dull on account of their scarcity.

Packer hides were rather slow to move. The call at present is for branded hides which are not received in numbers in the winter season. Native hides, which constitute the major portion of the slaughter at present, are not wanted except at lower rates. Buyers are refraining from operating in order that the slowly accumulating stocks will assume a weakening pressure on the situation. Native steers are held at 23c. Texas steers sold at 20½c and at 20c for underweights. Butts realized 21c. Colorados were sold at 19⅝c. Branded cows were also quiet on account of the limited stocks. Heavy native cows are offered at 23½c and special weight light cows sold at 23⅝c. Native bulls would be taken at 18c through June and branded bulls are quoted at 16@17c.

Calfskins are held firmly, but trade is slow. Stocks are moderate, as this is the tail end of the season. City skins range up to 24c asked; outside cities are held up to 23c; packers are wanted at 25c and held at 26c. Kipskins are sold up to 24c for packers, 22½c for cities, and 21½c for the country run of stock.

LABOR FEDERATION REFUSES TO BACK IDLE MASSMEETING.

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday declined to sponsor for a massmeeting on unemployment despite the vigorous efforts of Miss Mary O'Reilly, delegate from the teachers' federation, in behalf of the meeting. The meeting was projected for Feb. 12.

"We stand by the report of our executive committee on the subject of unemployment," said President John Fitzpatrick of the federation. "We have declared our attitude and we have been glad to give our time and attention to the study of the question. However, we can't on such short notice take over the whole responsibility for agitating the question, pressing as it may seem."

Secretary Ed Nockels of the federation explained that he withdrew from the industrial commission on unemployment because "the men on the commission were there to give jobs, like Rosenwald and Crane, and I didn't have any to give."

Victor Olander, business agent of the Lake Seamen's union, declared that unless the seamen's bill recently passed by the senate was enacted into law the inevitable accident to an excursion steamer on the lakes would reap an enormous toll of lives.

$125,000 FOR UNEMPLOYED.

New York, Feb. 7.—Unemployment conditions in this city and the progress of plans for remedying them were outlined in a report submitted today by subcommittees of the mayor's committee on unemployment, of which Elbert H. Gary is chairman.

Up to Feb. 2 figures compiled from 165,-395 families, estimated to contain nearly 850,000 individuals, showed unemployment in 34,560 families, among which 42,407 individuals were out of work.

Statements from officials of twelve needle trade unions with a membership of 129,750 indicated a total of 80,640 out of work in December last.

More than $125,000 has already been raised as a nucleus to be used in financing emergency workshops, which have been established in various portions of the city. Money is also being raised to finance a central loan fund for use of the poor.

HIS USUAL SARDINE ORDER TRAPS STORE CUSTOMER.

When Israel Jamulski walked into William Gorenstein's delicatessen store, at 1006 West Twelfth street, last night, Mrs. Gorenstein waited on him. Gorenstein remained in a rear room peeping through a key hole.

"A can of sardines, if you please," said Jamulski.

It was his usual order, as Gorenstein had noted. The sardines were on an upper shelf in the rear of the store. Mrs. Gorenstein had to climb a ladder with her back to the customer to reach them. Jamulski waited until Mrs. Gorenstein was safely on the ladder. Then, it is alleged, he leaned across the counter, flipped open the cash drawer, and transferred two $1 bills to his pockets.

Gorenstein whistled. His wife jumped from the ladder and ran out the front door, locking it behind her. The lock of the rear door, at which Gorenstein was stationed, clicked simultaneously. Jamulski was a prisoner. Two policemen took him to the Maxwell street station.

American Real Estate Company.

R. H. M.—The American Real Estate company has just sent out its annual report for 1914. It reports the total value of properties owned at $26,907,764, compared with $26,009,011 one year before. The statement is made, the same as last year, that these properties are listed at their book value and that their appraised value is substantially greater. These properties are mortgaged for $11,710,960, compared with $11,326,710 a year ago. The company reports $327,948 cash on hand Dec. 31, compared with $768,267 a year ago. It calls attention to the fact that during the year it paid all debentures as they fell due, just as in ordinary years. During the year the capital stock outstanding was increased by $850,300 and the surplus decreased from $2,147,789 to $1,610,555. Attention is called to the fact that these changes increase the margin of security for the holders of $8,362,894 paid up debentures and $5,329,730 "accumulative" debentures. During the year the amount of paid up debentures outstanding decreased by $479,264, while the "accumulatives" increased by $510,488.

Detroit United Railways.

J. L., Omaha, Neb.—The Detroit United railways had outstanding $12,500,000 capital stock and a bonded debt of $24,950,000 April 1, 1914. Dividends of 4, 4½, 5, and 3¾ per cent were paid from 1901 to 1907, then nothing till 1911 when 5 per cent was paid, and this rate was increased to 6 in 1912 and 6 is still the rate. In 1914 some decrease in receipts was reported compared with 1913. This year starts with an increase. There is a plan pending looking to a purchase of lines within Detroit by the city. An appraisal of the lines has just been completed. The stock is quoted nominally at 69 bid, 75 asked.

Underlying bonds of the Erie railroad are conservative investments. Junior issues are not.

Republic Iron and Steel.

W. C. M.—The reply to your question about the Republic Iron and Steel company a few days ago was based on the semi-annual report of that company for the six months ended June 30 last, that being the latest official information available. That report says there were $18,305,000 sinking fund bonds outstanding and $3,000,000 collateral notes. The printers added $800,000,000 to the bonds, making the item appear $813,305,000. Since June 30 the company has called $694,000 of these bonds for redemption. The total now outstanding is $12,611,000.

American Automobile Insurance.

G. R. W.—The balance sheet of the American Automobile Insurance company for 1914 has been received. It allows assets increased from $579,188 on Jan. 1, 1914, to $680,931 on Dec. 31 last. The surplus shows an increase from $62,151 to $110,702. The premium receipts for the year were $533,166 and the losses $208,156. The company paid a 2½ per cent dividend in the latter part of the year.

Brief Answers.

J. A. L.—The International Fire Insurance company of Dallas, Tex., has been in business nearly six years, has $200,000 paid in capital and $49,701 surplus. No dividends had been paid up to Jan. 1, 1914. During the year 1913 the company increased its surplus $12,888 and made an underwriting profit of $1,884.

R. H. F., Wayne, Ind.—There is only a nominal market in La Salle street for stock of the United Agency. A Chicago broker's list, recently issued, bids $5 a share for fifty shares of the preferred.

E. R. S.—The stocks of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads and of the American Telephone and Telegraph company are all in the investment class. Bonds are a safer investment than stocks for savings.

C. H. H.—The moving picture company you ask about does not make public reports of earnings or of its financial condition. Its stock is quoted at 4⅝ bid, 5 asked.

WEST AND SOUTHWEST RAILS SHOW ENCOURAGING GAINS.

Gross earnings of United States railroads making weekly returns to Dun's Review continue to show considerable falling off from a year ago, the total for three weeks in January amounting to $23,043,667, a decrease of $2,067,476 as compared with the earnings of the same roads for the corresponding period last year. In the south pronounced contraction still appears on Louisville and Nashville and Southern, and moderate losses on some less important systems, but in the west and southwest there is further evidence of a trend towards improvement as a number of roads now make somewhat larger returns than in 1914, among them being Colorado and Southern, Denver and Salt Lake, Mineral Range, Minneapolis and San Francisco, and Toledo, Peoria and Western. In the following table are given the gross earnings of all United States railroads reporting to date for three weeks in January and the loss as compared with the earnings of the same roads for the corresponding period a year ago; also for the roads that reported for the same weeks in the two preceding months, together with the percentage of loss as compared with last year:

	1915.	Loss.	Pct.
	1914.

LONE POLICEMAN TAKES 14.

"Burglar shot in basement of the Monroe apartments," said a voice over the telephone to the Hyde Park police. The patrol was hurried to 5511 Kenwood avenue, where the police found Patrolman Patrick Stokes herding fourteen men and boys he had arrested in the basement on a charge of gambling with dice. He had heard voices and, going to the rear door, ordered all to submit to arrest. Six ran and escaped. To keep the others captive he had fired his revolver. The shot caused the station call.

WHEAT FUTURES HAVE REACTION

Uncertainty Regarding the Foreign Situation Induces Free Realizing.

EXPORTS STILL LARGE.

The fear of political complications abroad that would check the free movement of wheat from this country to European countries put a damper on wheat operations the latter part of last week. There was, moreover, a disposition to take profits or reduce long lines to comparatively small limits, owing to the possibility of a big shrinkage in values.

The whole situation appeared to be a little strained and with commission houses striving to keep their customers on the safe side there was a material reduction in the volume of trade.

The more conservative attitude displayed, however, only served to make moderate reductions in prices, the May being 1⅞c higher for the week and the July 4⅜c up. Closing prices were approximately 4c below the top figures. May scored a new high price for the crop every day except Saturday.

Exports to Date, 220,000,000 Bu.

Exports of wheat and flour to date have been about 220,000,000 bu out of an exportable surplus estimated at 275,000,000 to 300,000,000 bu. During the remainder of February and through March it is expected clearances will run on an average of 1,000,000 bu per day. There appears to be more tonnage available at the seaboard, judging from recent daily clearances, which have been unusually heavy. Argentine shipments are expected to run about 3,250,000 bu per week, and it is not believed they will be large enough to interfere materially with the demand for wheat from this country.

Some of the bulls were upset by the proclamation of Germany stating a blockade would be inaugurated against England and France. Whether such a blockade could be made effective was doubted, but the report nevertheless took a good deal of the snap out of the buying demand.

Embargo Is Not Expected.

Leaders in the trade are of the opinion that foreign governments will take all the wheat we can spare, and they do not believe any embargo will be on wheat and flour exports, or at least not until the surplus is disposed of. Receipts of wheat are expected to show a fair increase the next two or three weeks, as farmers have sold considerable wheat in the aggregate where they have been able to get $1.50 for their wheat. With this run over, small receipts are predicted both in the spring wheat and winter wheat belts.

Foreign reports continue to emphasize the increasing scarcity of foodstuffs in all the western European countries.

In this country the winter wheat prospects are excellent, and little frost damage is indicated so far, the crop having ample snow protection during all periods of severely cold weather. With the big acreage there should be another huge surplus to dispose of the coming year.

Big Stocks Affect Corn.

Corn followed the advance in wheat to a moderate extent, but there has been less bullish enthusiasm. There is now a stock of corn at Chicago more than twice as large as on Feb. 1 in any other year since 1902 and the visible supply is of record proportions.

Usually there is a big demand for corn for shipment east at the opening of navigation, which takes care of the bulk of supplies here. However, if stocks at Chicago continue to increase for a few weeks longer the problem of disposing of the stocks of winter shelled corn will be a serious one. Much will depend on the dimensions of the export demand. Bulls are hoping the demand from abroad will improve when the wheat and flour movement begins to let up.

Chicago Receipts Smaller.

Receipts of corn at Chicago have showed a big reduction the last week, and country offerings as a rule have been reported light. The domestic demand, according to most shippers, is still slow, and there has been less speculative buying than there would have been if the cash trade had been more active. Prices are high compared to normal, but are not high as compared to wheat, oats, and other cereals. The consumption of corn is heavy in the country. Canada is taking a fair quantity from the northern section of the corn belt, but the southern demand has not been particularly active.

The recent reports from Argentina have indicated glowing prospects for the crop, but it will be some time before the new corn will be available and the need of coarse grains abroad will be heavy, providing Russian stocks are not released by the forcing of the Dardanelles. Primary receipts for the week were 8,637,000 bu, against 5,194,000 bu a year ago. Bradstreet's reported clearances for the week of over 1,600,000 bu and Plate shipments were nearly 4,000,000 bu.

Oats Prices Are Lower.

Oats closed the week ¼@1c off, the May selling most of the time between 60c and 62c. Trade has been active and the bull campaign was under full way until the wheat market advance came to a halt. Traders as a rule have been bullish on oats and bearish on corn, although stocks of oats are about as large as of corn.

The domestic and export demand has been only fair recently, but shipments from Chicago continue quite heavy, and there is a considerable amount cleared daily. European requirements of oats are believed to be heavy, and bulls look for heavy clearances from now until the new crop. The last few days there has been much selling of long oats, and bulls regarded the situation as being healthier from a technical standpoint than for some time.

Outsiders Buy Pork.

Provisions showed a steady tone most of the week, outside buyers being convinced that prices of products are too low compared to everything else. However, the bearish hog statistics with the late reaction in grain prices took the edge off the market, and prices at the end of the week were lower for everything except pork, which has become a favorite with the outside speculative buyer.

Hog receipts in the west for the week showed the extent of the receipts at present, being 669,000, compared to 521,000 a year ago. The cash trade generally is called dull, but shipments continue heavy from here and lard exports are liberal.

WOMEN'S WEAR.

For the women who wants to make evident her sympathy for the warring powers abroad, a New York wholesale firm is showing a line of silk hose on which are embroidered crossed flags. For the sympathizer of the allies, crossed English, Belgian and French flags are shown on a single pair of hose, while for the pro-German woman there are hose embroidered with three sets of crossed German flags. Strangely enough, the Russian and Austrian flags do not figure in the offerings. These hose are meant to be worn with pumps, the bottom set of flags coming over the top of the instep and the top set about at the ankles. All of the flags are embroidered on the front of the hose. For loyal Americans there are hose shown bearing a single American flag, which is placed on the front of the stockings about at the ankle. The body of the hose in question may be black, white or any other shade that is desired. All of them are "made in U. S. A."

Notwithstanding the fact that orders for spring lines are reported only about 60 per cent normal by leading factors in the corset trade, there seems to be a belief that better things are in sight. Nothing approaching a boom is looked for, the expected improvement being in the shape of a gradual return of the demand to normal proportions. Stocks are reported low in the hands of the retailers, and those of the manufacturers are said to be only fair sized. A marked tendency is reported toward better corsets, the $1 grades [retail] which succeeded the 50 cent lines in popular approval now giving way in turn to corsets priced at $2 or $3. In the higher priced lines of these goods $5 seems to be the most popular figures now. Flesh pink corsets are favored by buyers of the better lines, and brocaded materials are especially liked. Five inch bust models are most in demand just now, though there is talk of still higher busts. Moderate length corsets are also sought by buyers, and those with elastic inserts continue in favor.

Good business in fancy cotton goods in the gray was done in the New York market last week, the call for piques, mock lenos, coutils, and lawns being especially good. One sale of importance was of 5,000 pieces of carded lawns to a manufacturer of handkerchiefs at prices which showed good advances over the figures at which these goods were held in the recent past. This was said to be one of the biggest purchases of these goods by the handkerchief trade that has been made for some time.

The leading factor in the piece goods market will open prices on staple suitings today. The popular serge, No. 3,192, it is understood, will be quoted at $1.27½ a yard, which is an advance over last season of 7½ cents. The lower priced goods will show increases of about 15 per cent, and in some cases the advances will be slightly more. On the high grade merchandise prices will remain about the same.

Nugent's Bulletin says:

There is a tone of assurance that prevails in the markets on the part of both manufacturers and buyers. There seems to be common resolve no longer to shy at the merest suggestion of a change in some style feature.

Ready to wear buyers and merchants are everywhere to be seen in the principal markets buying plentifully, but with discretion. They know their trade, they know the requirements of their localities, and therefore are buying with discrimination.

Cloak and suit manufacturers throughout the country report favorably on the orders received so far. There has been no deviation from the earlier decision in regard to materials and colors. Gabardines, poplins, serges and a few vigoreux, black and white checks and stripes, are all well thought of. Sand and putty, battleship gray, navy and Belgian blue and now the bleu soldat lead the color list.

Dress manufacturers are booking substantial orders in the aggregate, but are put on their mettle to satisfy the demand for the wide range of materials and colors that fastidious buyers and merchants select.

In silk one hears gros de londre, faille, satin sublime, radium silk, etc., discussed along with the better known taffetas, crepe meteors, silk poplins, etc., when placing orders. An unusually wide range of colors is shown, including many pastel hues with new names and the more staple shades. Blues from the navy to the lightest tints sell freely. Sand and kindred shades and grays, from pearl to battleship gray, come in the order of their present vogue.

The slightly raised waistline, the moderately wide skirt, in many modifications, seem to sell best. There are many influences discerned in the styles of dresses which buyers are trying out—boleros, etons, various military ideas, Dutch effects, and other conceptions taken from European peasantry, all of which are much in evidence.

Coat houses are well pleased with their bookings, their orders including an unusually large variety of materials for a spring season. Fancy mixtures from inexpensive to high priced fabrics are selling. Checks in the larger type are particularly good. The so-called staple materials and colors are going strong. Golfines and the more costly corduroy materials are also among the favorite sellers.

Those buyers from different points who cover the market rather thoroughly are also giving their attention to more highly specialized lines, such as waists, separate skirts, petticoats, infants' and children's wear, silk and muslin underwear, and other lines embrace the ready to wear market.

Manufacturers of these various specialty lines report a favorable business. Some of their plants are running full time, and while individual orders sometimes show caution on the part of buyers, the aggregate business is very gratifying.

Estimated receipts at Chicago were 255,000 for the coming week.

VIEWS OF POTTS ROIL RISK BODY

Criticisms of Illinois Insurance Head Stir Up Missouri Commission.

REGULATION THE ISSUE

BY C. M. CARTWRIGHT.

Fire insurance men in Illinois are much interested in the issue between Superintendent of Insurance Potts of Illinois and the Missouri fire insurance commission, appointed by the governor to investigate fire insurance affairs in Missouri. This commission was composed of eminent business men, the chairman being Edwin F. Goltra of St. Louis, Democratic national committeeman from his state.

The commission brought in a report which is being used as the basis for a number of bills in the Missouri legislature. One of these is a bill to regulate fire insurance rates. Supt. Potts has seen fit to criticize this bill severely, which the commission resents.

The insinuation was made by Supt. Potts that the fire insurance companies had more or less to do with shaping the Missouri report. This reflection has brought out some rather bitter correspondence between the Illinois supervisor and some members of the Missouri commission.

Potts Urges Regulating Law.

Supt. Potts has drawn up a drastic rate regulating measure, which the insurance companies claim would drive them out of Illinois. The insurance companies are willing to coöperate with the state authorities in coming to some reasonable agreement for the state to regulate rates, the United States Supreme court having held in the Kansas case that states have the right to regulate fire insurance rates. In Missouri the commission gave a hearing to the insurance interests as well as to the insured and the bill that it has recommended and which has been introduced in the legislature is one that has met with approval on all sides.

A similar bill has been introduced in Michigan. This is a bill that is based on the one recommended as a model law by the Insurance Commissioners' association.

Supt. Potts is the only commissioner who has come out for an extremely radical measure. The companies charge that he is unfair and unjust in his attacks on them.

How War Affects Insurance.

President A. W. Damon of the Springfield Fire and Marine Insurance company, in making a report to the stockholders, calls attention to the effect of the war on fire insurance. In the first place, the emergency revenue tax creates quite an added burden on the fire insurance companies.

For instance, President Damon points out, the war revenue tax on premiums which will be paid by his company the present year, added to the already large taxes, will equal the dividend paid to stockholders. These taxes must be paid whether or not any balance is left over for dividends.

The other effect of the war is the added hazard to plants supplying war material from spies or sympathizers with the contending nations. Some of the companies have felt that the spy hazard is one that needed to be watched carefully and it is thought that some of the recent losses can be traced to this cause, in cases of plants that were making materials that were to be sent to the belligerents.

New Insurance Capital Needed.

There is great activity in Connecticut in the way of creating new insurance capital. A number of bills have been introduced in the legislature authorizing new companies and permitting some of the older companies to increase their capital. Almost all the so-called treaty reinsurance business in this country is done through foreign companies. The European war has created a demand for American companies to do a reinsurance business and some of the new bills are largely the outgrowth of this tendency.

There has been a tendency during recent years for the big fire insurance companies to organize casualty companies as running mates. The fire companies have built up extensive and valuable agency plants which a large casualty company can use. In addition, the fire companies that write automobile business by having a casualty company can thus handle all the automobile indemnity that the assured desire.

MEN'S WEAR.

There is very little stirring in the way of new army contracts, and the mills that have taken on some of this work will soon be running out of it. The Russian contract is understood to have been held up when it was just on the point of being given out. The same thing took place on the contract that was to have been let by Serbia. The latest arrival in the field is Italy. The clothing manufacturers and the mills believe, however, that within a short time the foreign governments will again become active. The difficulty in this event will be to find mills not taken up with regular business to take on the contracts.

While the clothiers in the main are satisfied with the business they are doing considering conditions, the buyers, they say, are in a very uncertain mood as to what they should purchase. Business for this reason has not the snap that the manufacturers would like to see in it, and what complaint is made can be traced to this condition. There is an unusual tendency noted from the style standpoint. In past seasons there were certain numbers known as "repeaters." This season, however, the buyers seem to be keeping as far away as possible from duplicating the numbers they bought last year. Whether this may be set down to the greater prominence given to style is not certain. But it is a condition that the clothiers find difficulty in meeting.

The head of a large clothing manufacturing concern found occasion recently to read a lecture to his selling force on the lack of wisdom displayed in consenting to make special changes for customers. The house, he said, usually has to refuse to comply with the salesman's promise, as in many instances a change in the construction of a garment means a disruption of established methods of manufacturing. By promising something that the firm cannot allow, he added, the salesman only succeeds in making a dissatisfied customer. If, on the other hand, the salesman sells his goods just as they are and refuses to fall in with the customer's suggestion, he has the opportunity of visiting that customer again and possibly getting an order that will not mean expense and dissatisfaction to both the retailer and the manufacturer.

Some of the strongest selling agencies in the men's wear trade in the east are ready to show full lines of medium and higher grade suitings under the opening prices of last year, where prices are compared directly with those of the last heavyweight season and the goods are offered as absolutely the same in construction. These factors in the trade do not represent a majority, or in fact a sufficient percentage to disturb the generally firm tone of the market. One of the largest clothiers of the middle west, now in the New York market and making a close examination of the suitings and overcoatings that are on sale, declares that in the effort to get more than their ordinary percentage of first orders these houses are making prices on goods which they will not be able to deliver or to accept repeat orders without entailing a heavy loss. In some commission houses it is mentioned that clothiers and cloth wholesalers are indifferent to the course of the market on piece goods for the new season and are not to be brought into the houses by a few favorable prices being named on staple fabrics. It may take a month of gradual development to get the 1915 heavyweight woolens and worsteds open to an extent that will give a clear idea of the direction in which the market will move for the balance of the season.

BOSTON COPPER NEWS.

Report of Utah Copper company for last quarter of 1914 shows net profit of $1,076,073, compared with $1,312,738 in previous quarter. After dividends of $1,218,367 a deficit of $142,293 resulted, which compares with surplus of $94,371 for previous quarter. Production amounted to 20,229,012 pounds of copper for the quarter, which made total for the year 121,779,401 pounds, compared with 119,939,609 pounds for 1913.

D. C. Jackling, while in Butte with Bruce Mackelvie, said no time had been set for beginning increase of production by Utah Copper and other properties, but hope is that conditions will continue to improve and that production can be restored to normal before long. There was a slightly increased output in January.

Copper exporters have a new situation to face in the German threat to seize cargoes for England and France. As a result some producers now refuse to sell for export unless paid cash against documents. First hands have sold copper down to 14⅝ cents a pound and in rarer instances at 14½ cents.

New directors of Butte & London Development company have elected W. W. McDowell president, John H. Haines, vice president; Edward S. Passmore, treasurer, and W. E. Reynolds, secretary, all of Butte.

North Butte has purchased 1,250 acres of land about twenty miles west of Butte and eight miles from Anaconda, together with large water rights near the St. Paul and Northern Pacific railroads. It is understood the land was selected for a future smelter site or other copper recovery plant.

In connection with rumors that James Phillips Jr. had disposed of his interests in Tennessee Copper company, Mr. Phillips makes the following statement: "The report that I have disposed of my Tennessee Copper holdings is absolutely without foundation. I have not disposed of my interests or any portion of my stock, but have added several thousand shares to my holdings. As to the report that the acid contract has been terminated, this contract does not expire until Dec. 31, 1920."

RUNAWAY BOYS FOUND HERE.

William Humphrey and Harry Keeley, both 16 years old, read in story books how boys acquired riches in Chicago with little effort. They packed their few belongings and last week ran away from their homes in Louisville, Ky. Last night they were found crying at One Hundred and Seventeenth street and Michigan avenue by Sergeant James Phalen. Their parents were notified.

TOUR STATE FOR 2 1-2 CENT RATE

POINT TO U. S. ACTION.

Officials of the passenger traffic departments of the various railroads entering Chicago will depart tonight on a tour of northern Illinois for the purpose of placing the question of an increase in passenger rates directly to the people. Eleven cities will be visited in the course of three days. Next week the same delegation will carry the campaign into the southern half of the state.

The purpose of the tours will be to present the railroads' side of the question directly to the voters and commercial associations before asking the legislature to increase the fare from 2 cents to 2½ cents a mile.

Point to U. S. Action.

The interstate commerce commission recently held that the roads were entitled to an increase and a majority of the states have laws providing for rates higher than 2 cents. Eastern states, even more densely populated than Illinois, have higher rates.

A special train will leave over the Illinois Central at 11:30 o'clock tonight. Tomorrow the officials will speak before the Commercial club at Galena, the chamber of commerce at Freeport, and a joint meeting of the chamber of commerce and Manufacturers and Shippers' association at Rockford. Another delegation will speak at Joliet and Ottawa.

Members of Party.

Among those who will speak are: S. G. Hatch, passenger traffic manager of the Illinois Central; John Francis, general passenger agent of the Burlington; Charles Cairns, general passenger agent of the Northwestern; F. A. Miller, passenger traffic manager of the St. Paul; A. L. Craig, general passenger agent of the Chicago Great Western; William Leahy, general passenger agent of the Rock Island lines, and W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe.

On Wednesday talks will be made before the commercial associations in Polo, Mendota, and Dixon, and Peru, La Salle, and Peoria will be visited on Thursday. The officials will then return to Chicago preparatory to taking a swing around southern Illinois next week.

EGG MARKET TAKES SLUMP; FURTHER DECLINE EXPECTED

Egg prices at Chicago last week declined 2@3c a dozen and the expectancy is that further reductions will be made before any permanent advance is recorded. Prices are still 2c to 3c a dozen higher than at this time last year, while indications point to an early opening of the spring producing season.

There has been a noticeable improvement in the quality of the eggs received, and the movement from northern points has exceeded arrivals from the same centers in previous years. This has caused anxiety among holders of supplies, and while receivers have made every effort to keep receipts moving, holders of cold storage eggs have slashed prices to stimulate buying. Cold storage stocks are still about 100,000 cases in excess of holdings a year ago and owners are anxious to clean up.

Buying for shipment abroad has lent strength to the market for butter and cheese. Higher prices have been secured for both commodities and further upturns are expected. Receipts for the week showed a decrease, which was attributed to increased buying in the country, and holders at leading market centers were less anxious to sell the product they had on hand. Cold storage stocks of butter are more than 6,000,000 lbs short of reserve a year ago, and comparative figures show that they are being reduced at a satisfactory rate.

Potato market displayed decided firmness during most of last week, but the strength was due to insufficient receipts and there was a prompt reaction when the movement from the interior increased. Buyers will pay 45c to 50c a bu for fine potatoes and make generous purchases at those figures, but they balk every time the price threatens to pass 50c. According to reliable statistics recently compiled, holdings of potatoes on the farms and in dealers' hands Jan. 1, 1915, were 166,846,000 bu, compared with 123,292,000 bu a year ago, an increase of 43,554,000 bu.

Poultry values showed strength last week and closed on a firm basis for all descriptions. Receipts are readily absorbed by the demand and prices are low enough to encourage unrestricted consumption.

GOES TO BURIAL; FOUND DEAD

The coroner was asked yesterday to investigate the sudden death of Mrs. Lena Swanson, 1067 Ainslie street, who was found dead in bed. Mrs. Swanson and her husband, Charles Swanson, went to a funeral Saturday and upon returning she complained of pains in her head and chills. They retired early and upon awaking in the morning the husband found her dead.

The Women's Costume Section Announces One of Its Greatest Sales:

Gowns for Street, Afternoon and Informal Dances at $25.00

Behind these values are weeks of co-operation with manufacturers. The usual profits were disregarded, exclusive designs produced and fabrics of an exceptional quality put into these models.

It is a sale to win more new patrons for this section—a sale that will acquaint women with our unusual facilities for obtaining advance styles and dependable, beautiful fabrics and of offering them at a price that is a surprise to all who know values.

Four of these Frocks are sketched.

The newest style features—combining plain taffetas with checks, offering wide, pleated skirts, hand embroidery with tinsel accentuations and charming colored nets used with laces—all these are noted.

We have made all arrangements to facilitate shopping and advise that prompt selections be made when sizes, styles and colors are here in greatest diversity.

Sixth Floor, South Room, State Street.

Special Values in Spring Hat Shapes at $2.75

These are hats for early Spring wear; they may be worn now and are serviceable until the time comes for the regular Spring Hat of straw.

Twenty-one dozen of these Hats have just arrived, and will be placed on sale today. There are seven shapes, including smart turbans, tricornes and narrow and medium brim sailors. The colors are black, military blue, tete de negre, and combination of sand with tete de negre and rose with tete de negre.

Beautiful Flower Wreaths, Special, 75c

We secured just eighty-seven dozen of these beautiful Flower Wreaths. The flowers are in the favored varieties and the colorings are exquisite. Wreaths of this quality are not usually obtainable at anywhere near 75c.

A suggestion: One of the smart new Hats and one of the Wreaths, with the addition of a couple of yards of narrow ribbon, completes a very desirable hat, and our expert milliners will do the trimming for you without charge.

Fifth Floor, Middle Room, State Street.

In the Second Week of Our Annual February Skirt Sale—

Remarkable Values in Skirts of Silk and Wool at $10.00

Special merchandising efforts have created exceptional values while bringing at the same time the newest and smartest styles.

It is the month of the year in which to buy separate Skirts of Cottons, Silks, and Wools for Outing and Street Wear.

Sketched are two representative values.

The "Suspender" Skirt—of willow taffeta—in black, navy or shepherd's check—with its straps edged with finely pleated Van Dyke frills.

The Skirt whose belt line suggests an inverted waistcoat, is made of wool poplin in blue, black, sand and dreadnaught gray. Its hip yoke develops into button trimmed tabs for the striking pockets.

Each is an unusual value at $10.00.

Sixth Floor, South Room, State Street.

Smart Serviceable New Suits, $37.50

Suits that women will welcome for the simplicity of their new lines and the integrity of their materials and workmanship.

Sketched is a distinctive model offered in navy, black or shepherd's check serge, with a pique collar, marble-like buttons and bias folds for trimming.

The coat has the large patch pockets of the season, and a partial belt above Godet plaits at the back. The skirt is a conservatively flared model with a yoke at the sides and back.

We count it a special value and predict its good style throughout the season.

Buy Them Now in the Second Week of Our Great Annual Sale

The scores of special values offered are causing most favorable comment. Notwithstanding the spirited selling of last week, color assortments remain unbroken. N w ideas are arriving almost daily from fashion centers abroad—added to the exceptionally fine showing of merchandise and colors that are the product of America.

The extensive showing of white and black effects, which are much in demand at present, deserves special mention.

Second Floor, South Room, State Street.

A Great Sale of 54 In. Wool Serge at $1.10 a Yd.

A sale that is certain to interest every woman who plans a suit; frock, spring coat or skirt for herself or her daughters. A sale that will interest dressmakers, tailors and boarding schools who require the regulation student's dress of serge.

There are several notable things about this sale:

We purchased a manufacturer's overstock and so are able to offer fresh goods.

The weights vary from the supplest and finest French serge to heavy diagonal weaves, good for separate skirts and coats.

The colors most in favor, navy and black, with an interesting assortment of other staple shades, are offered.

There are about 4,000 yards, all of the great 54 inch width—which cuts to such advantage with present styles.

Women will find economies of a surprisingly extensive nature made possible in this sale.
